Howls of protest at wolf management meeting

Large crowd at NCTC theater Monday shows little empathy for timberwolf population in northwest Minnesota

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

Loudest applause for any speaker at the meeting on a timberwolf management plan for Minnesota Monday at Northland Community and Technical College in Thief River Falls was given to a statement made late in the meeting.

"We can't wait for the government to take care of the problem," volunteered Boyd Wilson of rural Newfolden. "It's time to implement the three s's—shoot, shovel and shut up."

Sentiment among most of those volunteering to speak and called on to provide input was hostile to the wolf—from parents espressing fear to let their children play outdoors to livestock producers suffering losses to deer hunters concerned about depletion of the objects of their sport.

Left hanging in the middle between outraged residents who see little value in wolves and the federal Endangered Species Act which demands wolf preservation were employees of the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources conducting the meeting. Whatever their own personal feelings regarding wolves, they are faced with the task of making the best of the situation should the wolf be removed—as it is expected to be—from the list of endangered species as early as 1999 or 2000.

John Williams, area wildlife manager for the DNR in Thief River Falls, served as moderator for the meeting. A slide series on wolves was shown to open the session, after which comments were received. Responding to comments and questions were Mike Don Carlos, furbearer specialist and Bill Berg, who has spent much of his wildlife career studying wolves, both with the Minnesota DNR.

Purpose of the Thief River Falls meeting and o number of others to be held in the nest couple of weeks throughout the state, is to receive input for study by a roundtable to be appointed by the DNR. The roundtable is to include all entities with an interest in wolves and its purpose is to recommend a wolf management plan for the state. (See information included in a separate article on the state management plan in this issue of the Times.)

DNR Position Statement

According to information presented at the meeting, Minnesota DNR's position statement on wolves in the state is: "The Minnesota DNR is committed to ensuring the long-term survival of the wolf in Minnesota, and also to resolving conflicts between wolves and humans."

If the tone of Monday's meeting is an indicator of widespread resentment toward the wolf, resolving conflict between wolves and humans may be as futile as trying to mix water and gasoline.

Information presented in the slide show indicated that Minnesota had an estimated 350 to 700 timberwolves in the late 1960s. The wolf had been bountied as a predator from 1849 to 1965—the year bounties on a number of animals were discontinued. Wolves were listed as an endangered species under the federal Endangered Species Act of 1973.

Wolf Population Increases

By 1978 the wolf population had increased to an estimated 1,235 so its status under the act was upgraded from "endangered" to "threatened." Removal of problem animals by federally licensed trappers was permitted. Thirty-five wolves were removed in 1970. This increased to 174 in 1994 and more than 200 in 1997.

Despite the removal of these animals, wolf populations grew to an estimated 1,500 to 1,750 in 1988-89 and an estimated 2,000 to 2,200 at the present time. Wolf range has expanded to include about 35,000 square miles.

Several persons speaking at the meeting questioned the validity of the DNR estimate, believing it to be far too low, but Berg defended the estimate and the means by which it was obtained as an honest effort. An estensive survey is being conducted this winter, he said, which will provide new information. By comparison, the entire state of Alasks, he noted, which has a large population of various large hoofed animals as potential prey, has a total population of only 8,000 to 9,000 wolves.

"When we get to meetings fur-

Bill Berg, who has spent much of his Minnesota Department of Natural Resources career studying the easter timberwolf, defended the department's estimate of wolf population Monday at NCTC. Berg said the state's wolf population presently stands between 2,000 and 2,200 animals.

Mike Don Carlos, furbearer specialist for the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources, responded to a question at the meeting on a timberwolf management plan for Minnesota which was conducted Monday afternoon at Northland Community and Technical College.

Gibson earns Hixson Medal from Kiwanis

In recognition of his commitment to Kiwanis, Earl Gibson of Thief River Falls has been awarded the George F. Hixson Fellowship by Kiwanis International through the Thief River Falls Kiwanis club. The award was presented by the Thief River Falls Kiwanis Morning club at its annual Christmas party.

Earl Gibson

The George F. Hixson Fellowship is named for the first president of Kiwanis International. A gift of $1,000 to the worldwide service project of Kiwanis International grants an individual membership to the fellowship. The club made that donation and designated Gibson as the award recipient.

Thief River Falls Kiwanis club selected Gibson as the recipient of the fellowship award medallion, plaque and pin in recognition of his service to the local club and particularly his efforts toward Kiwanis International's worldwide service project, the virtual elimination of the world's most prevalent cause of preventable mental retardation in children—Iodine Deficiency Disorders (IDD).

Kiwanis adopted the global project in 1992 and set the goal to virtually eliminate IDD by the year 2000.

Review of 1997 events taken from Times file

This is the second of three reviews of events from the front pages of The Times and Northern Watch.

May

In the May 3 edition of the Northern Watch, it was announced that two teams from Lincoln High school had earned advancement to the Minnesota State Envirothon by placing first and second at the Area 1 Envirothon. The front page also included a news item about information going out to flood evacuees in Thief River Falls and a request to residents to share their experiences from the flood with the Thief River Falls Times.

Th Lincoln High School graduates inducted into the 1997 Prowler Hall of Fame included: Tim Bergland, Elaine Charlson Bredehoft, Morris Bye, Frank Hamerlinck, Paul Ihle, James Jaranson, Sheldon Joppru, Stanley Newland, Michelle Olson, Gary Paulsen, Joey Poole, William Saetre, and Lester Vigness, according to the May 7 edition of The Times. The pages of the newspaper also included an account of Spanish students at Lincoln High school assisting Spanish speaking flood-evacuee families.

Focus on events in East Grand Forks and Grand Forks had allowed some disasters closer to home go unnoticed. In the May 10 edition of the Northern Watch, the flood experiences of Doyle Martin and other farmers living near Agassiz Refuge, were discussed. Also in this edition, it was announced that Geothermal heating had been turned down as an option for the multi-events cultural center.

In the May 14 edition of The Times, temporary housing units for flood evacuees in Grand Forks were being held at a staging area at the Thief River Falls Regional Airport. Scholarships to local students were also listed, and, there was a story about the Schirrick dam, which was credited with saving Crookston

In the May 17 edition of the Northern Watch, a progress report on the dairy farm operation planned by Larry and Rhonda Amundson accompanied a photo of construction. Arctic Cat announced its 14th consecutive sales growth year; more than $16.3 million in housing grants, low-interest loans and assistance from individual programs had been issued to Minnesota disaster applicants; and the Middle River Community Club was working projects to improve its community.

In the May 21 edition of The Times, interest in the community turned to subjects other than flooding: groundbreaking for a $7 million facility for Dakota Clinic was planned; residents espressed their anger about garbage which had been allowed to be blow away from SwisPennCo and into their yards, Lowell and Marge Swenson, and Romal Bunness were honored by Northland Community and Technical College Foundation; and Memorial Day Services were being planned.

The May 24 edition of the Northern Watch featured photos from the Dakota Clinic groundbreaking. It also included a story about four directors being elected to the board of directors of Jobs Incorporated.

In the May 28 edition of The Times, two local businesses, Purdy's Shoe Store owned and operated by Cliff and Shirley Swanson, and Universal Screenprint, owned and operated by Doug and Pam Dallman, were honored by the Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce. An avenue of flags was unveiled at Memorial Day services. Minnesota Pollution Control Agency were forced to take a harder look at the waste problem at SwisPennCo.

In the May 31 edition of the Northern Watch, the focus was on future events. County fair dates for a number of county fairs were

The Stephen Birdseed plant was also featured, and a Thief River Falls teenager, Jessica Pream, was the winner of $538,070 in the Minnesota lottery game Gopher 5.

A review of Northwest Dairy Day in the June 18 edition of The Times showed that entries were dwindling. Association of Free Lutheran Congregations (AFLC) held its 35th Annual Conference at Northland Community and Technical College in Thief River Falls. Activities and reports were reviewed in the pages of The Times.

Elementary special education teacher Ruth Haagenson, the Newfolden Education Association Teacher of the Year, was featured in the June 21 edition of the Northern Watch. Family priorities spurred the Kurt Dvergsten family of Greenbush to concert a large hog operation into a large dog operation, according to a feature in the newspaper.

It was good news to many when teens found it difficult to buy cigarettes in area stores, according to a story in the June 25 edition of The Times. The teenagers had volunteered for a state program to check compliance of area stores to state law. Construction on the Pennington County Family Preservation Center in Thief River Falls was underway, six young women were set to complete in the 52nd Miss Thief River Falls Scholarship Pageant, and plans were being made for the American Festival in July.

About 300 people attended a community picnic to thank residents for helping during the flood, according to the June 28 edition of the Northern Watch. In Red Lake Falls, 15 fire departments participated in a training exercise, which included burning down two grain elevators. The Olde Time Quilt Shop of rural McIntosh was also featured.

July

Kari Thompson of Red Lake Falls was named Miss Thief River Falls 1997-98, according to the July 2 edition of The Times. Events and activities of the American Festival were reviewed; and it was announced that Ingrid Hanson had been named Region 1 Dairy Princess.

The weather was once again in the news. In the July 5 edition of the Northern Watch, a photo submitted by Darrel Nilson, showed a tornado which moved through the Badger area June 27. Pennington County requested $481,820 in reimbursement for federally declared disasters. Judy Yutrzenka of Viking was named Rural Mail Carrier of the Year.

As pictures of the American Festival in Thief River Falls appeared in the July 9 edition of The Times, plans were being made for the Pennington County Fair, and the Cultural Festival in St. Hilaire. Orville Hanson of Thief River Falls, and senior vice president and cashier of Northern State Bank was recognized at the annual meeting of the Minnesota Bankers Association in Rochester as one of nine recipients of 50-year service to banking awards.

The events of the 96th Pennington County Fair, which was set to open was featured in the July 12 edition of the Northern Watch. Among the events featured would be Bullride '97. Northland Community and Technical College landed a plane and funds for student instruction. Jack Sundrud of Oklee, and now country music musician of Nashville, TN, was featured.

In the July 16 edition of The Times, letters of application for a vacancy on the board for School District 564 were being accepted. Norma Hanson of Goodridge was elected treasurer of the American Dairy Association/Dairy Council of the Upper Midwest at its annual meeting in St. Paul.

As pictures and a story documented the close of the Pennington County Fair in the July 19 edition of the Northern Watch, plans were reviewed for Crazy Day, and Pioneer Day Camp an Pioneer Village. News included a story about a high voltage power line extension from Oslo to Thief River Falls; and the woodworking skills of Vince Raaen.

Many pictures and stories about the Pennington County Fair were featured in the July 23 edition of The Times. One of the interesting stories included an account about bulls from Bull Ride '97 escaping. One of the bulls was struck by a car traveling on the highway and a teenage passenger in the car was injured.

Memorial Service for Dr. David Brown, 78, long-time physician and mayor of Goodridge, was featured in the July 26 edition of the Northern Watch. Only 20,0002.7 acres of land in Pennington County would be under the new Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) contracts — a far cry from the present 73,000 acres, virtually all of which will come out of the former program. The feature story in the Watch took a look at some interesting archery tournament targets.

Kim Rose, who grew up southwest of Erskine, has a voice, stage personality and repertoire, was featured in the July 30 edition of The Times as she was returning to her home town to perform in the Erskine Summer Sizzler. News also included a report that Pennington County was proposing to create a septic system ordinance. It would be only the beginning of a long battle however. The City of Thief River Falls was also taking steps to annex 80 acres of land for the city's industrial park.

August

In the August 2 edition of the Northern Watch, a story informed readers of Lakehead Pipeline's open house at its station in Clearbrook. There are nine tanks at the facility ranging in size from 90 to 210 feet in diameter. They store anywhere from 2.26 million to 16.4 million gallons of crude oil. Also in this edition PKM Electric explained its plans for continuing to rebuild its system after last April's ice storm.

As a nationwide strike began, United Parcel Service employees who are members of the Teamsters Union were pictured on the picket line in Thief River Falls in the August 6 edition of The Times. A story also looked at its impact on local shippers. Construction of a particle board plant in Thief River Falls was still seen as a possibility. Local representatives had met with representatives of at least one company.

In the August 9 edition of the Northern Watch, it was announced that Cheryl Lee had been chosen as Larry Belmont's replacement on the school board for district 564. Relatives of J.P. Johansson, inventor of the adjustable wrench, patented in 1892, were interviewed.

In the August 13 edition of The Times, School District 564 explained reasons for calling for an excess levy referendum. Also in this edition, Alicia Bakken and other lifeguards at the Franklin Middle school swimming pool were recognized for saving the life of a young girl; a story examined the growth of canola crops in the region; and Dick and LaVonne Radniecki were recognized as receiving a beautification award.

In the August 16 edition of the Northern Watch a Colorado group's efforts to help repair the Methodist Church in Warren were recognized. Also in this edition, it was announced that the community band would perform in the 1998 Sydney Music Festival in Australia; and cows were in the new barn at Excel Dairy north of Thief River Falls.

An emergency drill at the Regional Airport in Thief River Falls prepared personnel for such a possibility. What happened and how it turned out was reviewed in the August 20 edition of The Times. Details of an agreement between SwisPennCo and Minnesota Pollution Control Agency were released.

Use of toy handguns by minors in Thief River Falls had local authorities concerned, according to a news account in the August 23 edition of the Northern Watch. A Northwest Airlines DC 9 was delivered to the Regional Airport in Thief River Falls. The airplane would be used by students in the aviation program at the school.

In the August 27 edition of The Times, construction on a new walking bridge at Hartz park began. Bids on the proposed Multi-Events Cultural Center came in disappointingly high and without any bids for a track or football field. Tax delinquencies in the county also increased slightly.

The harvest was underway according to the August 30 edition of the Northern Watch. Quality and yield were seen as poor. Also in the newspaper, a state audit at Northland Community and Technical College uncovered serious problems and prompted some severe changes. Following receipt of bids on the Multi-Events Cultural Center, the approved operators of a Wellness Center, which was part of the project, withdrew their Letter of Intent to operate the facility.

Using hydraulic resistance equipment

Fitness center offers gain without pain

by Kathi Carlson
The Times Reporter

Fitness is often found on the resolution lists of those who seek to reinvent themselves in the New Year. The reasons are many and varied. Weight loss, sports training or simply to stay healthy are a few of the goals people set for themselves when they begin an exercise program.

At Pace Fitness Center one can reach all of these goals, and owner Theresa Blakely is her own best advertisement. Since I last saw her in August she is a mere shadow of herself, losing pounds and inches in all the right places.

Theresa is the wife of Gary Blakely who is employed at Arctic Cat, Inc. and the mother of Jason, 13, and Jeff, 12, both students at Franklin Middle School. She opened the center in May of 1997, located at 1552 Hwy. 59 South next to Twice But Nice.

While there are Pace Fitness Centers in cities and towns throughout the country, it is not a franchised business. Pace, rather, is the brand name of the equipment, the registered trademark of Henley HealthCare and the name used to refer to the fitness program itself.

Pace machines use hydraulics to generate resistance. Hydraulic resistance can be compared to rowing a boat. If you pull an oar very slowly, there is very little resistance. If you pull fast on an oar, there is a lot of resistance.

Compared to weight or air resisted equipment, a hydraulic machine allows the user to push and pull with the force they desire using two different muscle groups. On a weight stack or air machine one must use both a biceps and triceps machine. The Pace machine works the biceps when pulling and the triceps when pushing. Another machine will work the leg muscles in the same manner.

The hydraulic resistance equipment is considered safe because at anytime, the user can stop exercising and let go without weights crashing to the floor, risking personal injury or equipment damage.

Requiring no seat or machine adjustments, the equipment accommodates everyone — men and women, young and old, fit and unfit. And because the user sets the "pace," the aches and pains of muscle soreness and fatigue are reduced or eliminated.

Pace Fitness Center has seven different hydraulic resistance machines, two jogging squares and a step bench.

Using cross conditioning circuit training, the concept behind the Pace workout is simple — fun, fast, easy and effective.

When you go to a 30-minute class, you go to one of the stations and push and pull with your arms and legs to the beat of the music of a guide tape. After 30 seconds of pushing and pulling at a strength station, you are instructed by the tape to jump, jog, or step at an aerobic recovery station to maintain your target heart rate and then continue around the circuit. Before you know it, 30 minutes have passed and you've had a total body, calorie burning workout.

The resulting muscle definition may give you the confidence to once again don a bikini. Weight loss or the appearance of weight loss comes naturally. Resistance or strength training will actually allow you to eat more and not gain weight because added muscle burns more calories.

While the machines accommodate themselves to every user, Theresa accommodates her hours to every schedule. Beginning at 6:15 a.m. and ending at 6:20 p.m., she offers nine 30-minute Pace classes and four half-hour toning sessions Monday through Friday. There is also a special class for those 60 and over at 10:30 a.m. on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. On Saturday mornings there are three sessions, a 40-minute Pace class from 8:50 to 9:30, a 40-minute toning session from 9:35 to 10:15 followed by a 30 minute Pace class from 10:20 to 10:50.

While the Pace class is an aerobic workout using the machines, the toning sessions are floor workouts which concentrate on the abs, legs and gluteus maximus using three and four pound weights.

Fees at Pace Fitness Center are $90 for three months, $162 for six months or $288 for 12 months. Theresa also offers a monthly rate and a family membership for couples with children over 12 years of age. Punch cards are available too.

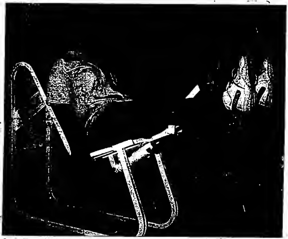
The payment of fees entitles the member to unlimited usage. While some members attend classes three times a week, others go every day.

Theresa welcomes calls at 681-7738 and says she gets a lot of calls inquiring about the Pace workout — the only program of its kind in the Thief River Falls area. She added that many people are "fearful of the unknown." To remedy that, she offers one free session to anyone at any time enabling one to see for themselves what Pace is all about.

According to a plethora of studies, the benefits of exercise are endless. Besides the obvious weight loss, exercise is known to reduce the risk of heart disease and cancer, help one manage stress and alleviate depression. For women, premenstrual syndrome symptoms can be eliminated and the risk for osteoporosis is greatly lessened.

Exercise is a good habit that provides a host of benefits to health and overall wellbeing. No wonder fitness is at the top of so many lists of New Year's resolutions.

Using the hydraulic resistance equipment at Pace Fitness Center, one may even be able to experience the gain without the pain so often associated with exercise. Instead, one will discover fun and reinforcement in a supportive environment — elements necessary to turn that resolution into reality.



Owner Theresa Blakely is all smiles as she uses one of the hydraulic resistance machines at Pace Fitness Center. Two muscle groups — quads and hams on this machine — are worked at once as the user pushes and pulls. Fully accommodating for everyone, the Pace strength training circuit offers a complete workout without lingering muscle aches or soreness. Theresa welcomes interested parties to stop by the center located at 1552 Hwy. 59 South and see what the program is all about. The first visit is free.

Pace Fitness Center owner Theresa Blakely demonstrates the stepper, one of several hydraulic resistance machines used in the many circuit strength training classes she offers each week. Pace Fitness Center is located at 1552 Hwy. 59 South next to Twice But Nice.

ON MY MIND

Kim Chadwick-Quade

You Betcha

As Minnesotans, I feel we're fortunate to live in a land of 10,000 lakes, to have wide open spaces, safe communities and friendly people. But also as Minnesotans we're subject to many jokes such as it's so cold here it keeps the riffraff out. There are books and plays teaching people "How to Talk Minnesotan." We're often accused of being "Minnesota Nice" and I always thought being "nice" was a good thing.

I guess it's nice that people in other states know we exist. So when I found the following ditty on my desk (at one of my various jobs) I thought it captured being Minnesotan in a fun way. The text doesn't credit anyone for penning these humorous thoughts so I can't give proper credit to anyone.

You "betcha" you're from Minnesota when:

- You own only three spices...salt, pepper and ketchup.
- You have more miles on your snowblower than your car.
- You know Ole and Lena personally.
- You've spent the last 15 minutes getting your child dressed to play in the snow only to have him tell you he has to go potty NOW.
- You design your Halloween costumes to fit over snowmobile suits.
- You feel warm and toasty at -12 degrees Fahrenheit.
- You know which leaves make good toilet paper.
- You know the four seasons: winter, still winter, not winter and almost winter.
- Though you're not breaking the law, you break into a cold sweat when the game warden appears.
- You owe more money on your snowmobile than your car.
- You think the opening of deer season is a national holiday.
- You thought the movie "Grumpy Old Men" was a documentary.
- You find -40 degrees Fahrenheit or Celsius only a mite chilly.
- You think everyone from a different state has an accent.
- Your husband thinks sexy lingerie is a flannel nightgown with only eight buttons.
- You've taken your kids trick-or-treating in a blizzard.
- You find it exciting to stare through a hole in the ice and look at the bottom.
- You have ten favorite recipes for venison.
- You can tell the difference between a gopher and a chipmunk at 300 yards.
- You think white rice is exotic and wild rice is a hot dish.
- You've attended a formal affair in your best dress wearing your finest jewelry and your Sorrels.
- Somewhere in the state is a piece of frozen metal with bits of your tongue stuck to it.
- At least three times a year your kitchen doubles as a meat processing plant.
- When you win the prize for the smallest fish, you're proud of it.

Some of these are so true and I'm sure there are many more ways to distinguish us from the rest of the crowd. Such as, you betcha you're from Minnesota when you're convinced the state bird is a mosquito. Or, you betcha you're from Minnesota when...

Workshops for judging, youth service planned

University of Minnesota extension service has planned two workshops in January which are open to 4-H club leaders and others interested in county fair judging and working with youth.

The first session for any adults interested in 4-H judging at county fairs will take place Thursday, January 22, at 7 p.m. in the courthouse meeting room in Thief River Falls. Those attending may elect to be placed on a list of judges to be shared with other counties. There is no charge to attend this training.

The second workshop is scheduled for Saturday, January 31, from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Greenbush community center.

DeAnn Johnson, NDSU extension agent in Cass county and Fargo/Moorhead Service-Learning director, will lead the service-learning workshop for any adult working with youth. A minimum of 12 people is required for the event to be held. Cost of $20 per person includes a noon meal and handout materials.

Registration deadline is January 23 and those interested may register at the county extension office. There are funds available in Pennington county for 4-H volunteers who attend. Other adults are welcome but must pay their own registration fee.

For information on either of the workshops, call the Pennington county extension office at 683-7030.

SPEAKING OF...

Sherry LaCoursiere

...Is It Winter Yet?

Is everyone having trouble with their clothes this winter? I can't seem to get comfortable

I try to wear a warm, cozy sweater to work and find myself perspiring by mid-morning. I wear a short-sleeved top and end up freezing. At home, my normal sweats are fine if I'm just lounging around doing nothing, like reading on the couch, but they are much too warm the minute I get up and do any work, so I have to run upstairs and change my clothes when I am going to be active. I can't seem to find the happy medium.

I'm playing with my thermostat all of the time this winter. I suppose it doesn't make matters any better that I have a brand new digital thermostat to play around with and I can just give it a little poke and it changes the temperature for me. But it seems as if I'm freezing one minute and roasting the next and I have to adjust the thermostat accordingly. There's nothing worse than being overheated in the middle of winter - it seems so wrong, somehow.

And I'm having even more trouble with my outdoor clothing. Sometimes I find myself changing coats three times in one day because the weather doesn't stay the way it began.

I can start out in the morning with a lighter coat, because mornings have been warmer this year than usual. Not that I'm complaining or anything, but shouldn't winter mornings be cold - they've always been cold and cars don't want to start and neither do people - but this winter, mornings have been warm, so I dress in a lighter coat.

By mid-morning, however, my lighter coat may not be appropriate anymore. The weather has changed and a cold wind is blowing, so I change to my medium-warmer coat to keep myself warm and some short boots to keep my feet warm, as well as warmer gloves so my chapped hands don't get cold and more chapped. By noon, the cold wind has brought some cold snow and it is piling up. I change to my warm coat, higher boots and warmer gloves, since drifts are forming from the blowing snow. Now I am bundled up for winter weather.

When I come outside after work, I find that the wind and snow have disappeared and it is once more warm outside. I stand there, bundled warmly in my warmest coat, highest boots and warmest gloves - looking like a dork.

Sometimes the entire day is balmy and I am dressed in my light coat all day and perfectly comfortable. Then when I leave work I find that the warm air has become frigid and I am freezing in my spring-type clothing. I hurry home, shivering, park my car in the garage, plug it in, and scurry into the house. "Winter has come," I think, planning to wear cozy warm clothing the next day.

Of course, the next day I dress in my warm sweater and put on my warmest coat, lined boots and gloves and even tie a scarf around my neck. As I step outside the door, I find that once more Mother Nature has played a trick on me. It is warm again. I trudge back into the house, exchange warm coat and accessories for lighter ones, and trek out to my car that has been plugged in all night in temperatures barely over the freezing mark.

I don't think I'm alone with my clothing and coating problems, but I think many people have gotten tired of playing the "dress for winter" game like I do. They got out their winter gear and are going to wear it, by golly, no matter what the weather is like. Have you seen those people? They trudge around on balmy, 30-degree days in full winter coats, boots, gloves and head gear, red faced, but very determined. But they are smarter than the dummies who are still running around in sweat shirts when it is 30 degrees below zero though.

Feel free to email me with comments and ideas.

TIMES FOR TODDLERS

Snow People Masks

Make a mask by cutting eyeholes in a large white paper plate. Add some crumpled orange construction or tissue paper for a nose and torn scraps of black construction paper for the mouth. Then cut a hat from black construction paper and glue it to the mask. Attach a piece of string to each side of the paper plate, so that it can be worn. Wear the masks while acting out the poem below:

I'm A Snowman

I'm a snowman, round and fat,
And I have a tall black hat.
See me move this way and that.
I'm a snowman, round and fat.

PARENTING TIPS

Discipline

"Can't you make your children behave?" "What that child needs is some good discipline."

Maybe you have either heard or said something like these two comments. Unfortunately, these comments are not very helpful for anyone. They are too vague. Exactly what does "behave" mean; what does "discipline" mean? For both adults and children it is far more helpful to say exactly what you mean.

For some people the word, "discipline," means punishment. I prefer the dictionary meaning of "to train." If we are going to train children as to what is acceptable and what is not acceptable, then it seems to me we would have to do two things:

1. to be specific and
2. to let them know what to do every time they do something they shouldn't.

For example, if your discipline consists of "Stop that," "No," "Don't do that" and nothing else, I would expect a young child to continue the misbehavior. Why? Two reasons:

1. you did not tell him/her what to stop doing and
2. you did not tell what to do.

A more effective approach would be to say: "Stop jumping on the couch. Couches are for sitting on. If you want to jump, you will have to go to the basement."

Try to think of yourself as a teacher or trainer and then discipline your children in a way that will teach or train.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

Talk about winter and what you see when you look out the window. Do you see snow, trees, birds, squirrels, cars? Describe what you see by color, size, shape, etc.

Q&A SOCIAL SECURITY

Provided by the Social Security District Office in Grand Forks, ND

Q. When I retire I will be eligible for a pension from my employer as well as getting Social Security. Will my pension lower my Social Security?

A. No, with an exception. For most people, having a private pension through their employer will not involve their Social Security benefit at all. However, government employees receiving a pension from work which was not covered by Social Security will have that government pension lower potential SSA benefits. For example, a government pension paid under the FERS system, or a military pension, will not lower the SSA benefit because the government pension includes Social Security. A government pension paid through the earlier Civil Service system would lower the SSA benefit because the pension was from work not covered by Social Security.

Q. I am a lady in my mid-forties, long married but about to get a divorce, and with very little work of my own paid into Social Security. Will I be able to collect Social Security from the record of my soon to be ex-husband?

A. The possibility definitely exists that you could assuming that you meet all the requirements at retirement age. Between now and then the program can change but, as of now, a divorced person could receive Social Security on the record of the ex-spouse (husband or wife) if they had been married at least ten years, be at least age 62, unmarried, and not eligible for a higher SSA benefit on their own or someone else's Social Security record. It is also possible to receive benefits on the record of an ex-spouse who is deceased, assuming, of course, that you were not convicted of causing their death.

Rydell Refuge hosts winter bird feeding program Sun.

Chickadees, nuthatches, woodpeckers, bluejays and redpolls are just a few of the winter bird species that can be attracted to the yard by providing some basic food needs.

Information on how to get started or increase winter bird feeding will be given at a free program Sunday, January 11, at 2 p.m. at the Rydell National Wildlife Refuge southwest of Erskine.

Wayne Gocken will share his experiences with bird feeding and observation from many years of feeding birds. Topics to be covered include identification of the birds that can be expected to come to feeders and the types of seed and other food—such as suet—that are preferred by different types of birds.

Use of various types of bird feeders will also be discussed, as well as guards to deter squirrels from eating food intended for birds. Options for making inexpensive bird feeders from recycled materials will be demonstrated.

More than a third of Americans are involved in bird feeding of one type or another and they spend more than a billion dollars on bird seed each year.

Following the bird feeding program, at about 3 p.m., Diane Bach of Thief River Falls will present information on snowshoeing and making your own pair of snowshoes. This program was postponed from a week ago due to illness.

Persons unable to attend the program but interested in the snowshoe building class which Bach will offer in January may call her at 681-8170.

Changes in Medicare and Social Security in 1998

(Following information has been provided by the Northwest Area Agency on Aging with offices at the Northwest Regional Development Commission building in Warren.)

Premiums for Medicare Part B will not increase in 1998, according to the Department of Health and Human Services. This means that Medicare beneficiaries will have to pay $43.80 per month for Medicare-covered doctor services, outpatient hospital care, durable medical equipment such as wheelchairs and other services outside hospital. The Medicare Part B premium is automatically deducted from their Social Security check each month.

The premium for Medicare Part A, which covers inpatient hospital services, home health care, skilled nursing facilities, and hospice care will drop slightly. This saving will affect very few people, because most people qualify for Social Security benefits and do not have to pay a premium for Part A. However, the annual Part A deductible, which beneficiaries must pay before receiving hospital benefits, increases slightly from $760 to $764 per benefit period, beginning January 1.

The cost of living increase for Social Security recipients for 1998 will be just 2.1 per cent. This means that the average monthly check will rise by only $16, from $749 to $765. The increase will be included in monthly checks starting in January.

The maximum monthly payment for Supplemental Security Income (SSI) recipients will also rise 2.1 per cent, with the average check increasing from $484 to $494. The annual increase in both Social Security and SSI benefits is based on the Consumer Price Index over a year's time.

The amount of earnings needed to earn one quarter of coverage, or Social Security "credit," will be $700 in 1998, up from $670 in 1997. No more than four credits can be earned in a year, thus anyone earning at least $2,800 in 1997 will receive the maximum of four credits.

To be eligible for Social Security benefits, a worker needs a specific number of credits. The number depends on his or her date of birth and the type of benefit involved. Most people need 40 credits to be eligible for retirement benefits, but some younger people may qualify for disability benefits with as few as six credits.

The maximum amount of money that beneficiaries between the ages of 65 and 69 can earn in 1998 without reducing the amount of their Social Security benefits is $14,500. For every $3 a person earns over this limit, $1 is withheld from his or her benefit. In 1997 the limit was $13,500.

The benefits of people aged 70 and older who continue to work are not reduced, no matter how much they earn.

Direct deposit of Social Security payments is mandatory for anyone newly filing to receive Social Security benefits. There currently are exceptions made for people without bank accounts. As of Jan. 1, 1999, no exceptions will be made. All people entitled to any federal payments will have their Social Security payments held in a debit account accessible through their local bank.

This change is a cost-saving measure. It costs the Social Security Administration 42 cents to mail one Social Security check but only two cents to direct deposit funds for one person. It is estimated that $9.6 million per month would be saved if everyone used direct deposit. By 1999 the savings to the Social Security trust fund as a result of mandatory direct deposit is estimated to be more than $115 million.

If you have recently attempted to notify Medicare that your address is changing, you may have received notice that you need to contact the Social Security office in your area. The Social Security office will ensure that all documents will go to the new address. This affects most of the seniors who have permanent residences in two different states throughout the year.

If, however, you would like to have Medicare documents and paperwork sent to another person, such as a son or daughter who processes claims for you, you need to indicate that in writing to the Social Security Administration. In your letter, simply indicate your change of address, the effective date of the new address, and then give the name and address of where Medicare paperwork and documentation should be sent.

Be sure you sign your letter. The letter cannot be signed by someone other than yourself. Any paperwork being processed through Medicare at the time of notification of change of address will be sent to your old address. Remember—it is important to notify any medicare participating providers (hospitals, clinics, pharmacists, etc.) of your address change as well.

For more information about these or other aging issues contact the Northwest Area Agency on Aging at 115 South Main, Suite 1, Warren, MN 56762 or phone 218-745-6733 or 1-800-333-2433 (the Senior Linkage line.

Single-House Legislature Starts Making Sense

The more we read and hear reasoning behind the push for a single-house legislature in Minnesota, the more sense the idea seems to have. We are still waiting to hear arguments from those who believe the present system of House and Senate is too good to change.

For the most part, we tend to stand with tradition. We think things that have been in existence for some time must be working or they would have been changed long ago: Government, however, severely tests that theory. Changes have been taking place under the two-house system, but those changes are part of the reason to give serious consideration to a change.

Primary promoters of a single-house system are two men who have been a part of the present system. George Pillsbury was a Republican Senator from western Hennepin county from 1971 to 1982. Gene Merriam was a DFL Senator from Coon Rapids from 1975 to 1996. They contend, and statistics support the contention, that Minnesotans are getting laws made by conference committee rather than the legislature. In fact, the conference committees are referred to as "The Third House."

Pillsbury said that in his first legislative session in 1971 the legislature formed 19 conference committees. In 1990, a scant 18 years later, the number grew to 157. Legislators themselves have difficulty keeping track of legislation under such a system; for the general public it is an impossibility.

There may be cost savings from a single-house legislature, but we wouldn't see that as a reason for change if the present system were working well. Changes made to cut costs frequently don't live up to expectations. What is more persuasive to us is the fact that the original purpose of a two-house legislature no longer exists.

The bicameral (two-house) system dates back to the establishment of the English Parliament. Its House of Lords and House of Commons were established to represent the interests of property owners and the interests of the people. In Minnesota, the Senate was established to represent the counties and the House to represent the people. Senators were elected on a geographic basis and Representatives on a geographic basis by population.

In 1962 the U.S. Supreme Court apparently found that system too sensible, and declared that all elected bodies in the United States (with the notable exception of the U.S. Senate) had to represent the citizens equally. The means the state Senate is now elected on the same basis as the House, which basically eliminates any need for it to exist.

Former senator Merriam gives this view: "The two houses generally consider legislation fairly deliberately, linearly and rationally through the first several months of a legislative session. The public can track through the media what is happening. Then all of a sudden in the last few weeks of the session this deliberative process ends up in turmoil as all the major bills go to conference committees. All too often this process produces garbage bills, in which assorted pet projects and unrelated pieces of legislation are tossed together. It's difficult even to read everything that is being passed, and it's impossible to understand all of it with any depth."

In the 1997 session, there were 2,255 bills introduced in the Minnesota House and 2,003 in the Senate. By session end, 251 bills had been passed.

A single-house legislature is no guarantee of consistently good legislation being enacted, but it would keep more of the debate in the open where it could be followed. It should also make legislators more responsive and responsible since they wouldn't be able to leave details of lawmaking to a 10-member or six-member conference committee, nor would they be able to blame the other house.

At least on the surface, we see no particular danger to non-metro Minnesota with a unicameral legislature. The rate of representation would be the same, but with fewer members.

It would take a constitutional amendment to change the system. This would require a majority of the House and Senate to place the amendment on the ballot, and a majority of those who vote in a general election to approve the amendment.

Presently there is only one state—Nebraska—with a single-house legislature. Other states must have some of the same problems as Minnesota. Are there compelling reasons not to change? If so, we would like to hear them.

Special Purpose Law Doesn't Fulfill Purpose

"Check this box if you would like to prohibit disclosure of your personal information to the general public for the vehicle records listed above," is the statement next to a little box on vehicle registration forms. The law providing for that option was passed in 1994 in reaction to the stalking death in California of an actress named Rebecca Schaeffer.

An editorial in the Ames, Iowa Tribune points out that "it's ridiculous for government to keep secrets, of course, and it's even more ridiculous for it to think that if stalkers can't find your name in a vehicle registration record they won't know where you live. But there's no question about it: A killer no longer can get your name and address off your motor vehicle record if you have checked that little box. Unless...."

The editorial then goes on to list exceptions: "Unless the killer works for a government agency....is a researcher....is a licensed private investigator....is an insurance worker....drives a tow truck....employs people with commercial driver's licenses....you get the idea."

Then the editorial concludes:

"The information is available to almost everyone—except you. If someone has a car parked in front of your driveway and you want to call the motor vehicle department to find out who it belongs to, you won't be told if the owner had checked that box. If a car follows you home and you wonder who it is, you won't be told if the owner checked the box. If you see a car back into yours in the grocery store parking lot, you can't find out who owned it if its owner had checked that box.

"Unless, of course, your a private eye or a....

"The whole thing is more than a little ridiculous—and more than a little scary.

"You don't stop stalkers by closing public records. You stop stalkers by enforcing laws, not amending them.

"Oh, one other thing: That guy who killed Rebecca Schaeffer? His name was Robert John Bardo. He got her name by paying $100 to a private eye to go through some records.

"Under the new law, he could still get that information.

"But you can't."

Sign in veterinarian's waiting room: "Be back in five minutes. Sit! Stay!"

U.S. Income Tax Returns Soon Due

"Farmers and other persons required to file estimated or final federal income tax returns were reminded this week by Edward T. Anglim, deputy collector of revenue in Thief River Falls, that their returns for the calendar year 1947 must be filed by January 15, 1948. To assist taxpayers who must file returns, Deputy Collectors Anglim and Roy Brown will be stationed in their office in the municipal auditorium January 12-15 inclusive between the hours of 9 a.m. and 5 p.m."

Navy Recruiter To Be Stationed Here January 7

"A member of the staff of the United States Navy recruiting station at Grand Forks will be stationed at the veterans service office in the court house in Thief River Falls Wednesday, January 7, to accept applications for enlistment in the regular Navy, it was announced today."

Bob Baker Sails For Olympics on Friday, January 9

"A communication from Bob Baker, local hockey luminary who has been selected as a member of the United States Olympic hockey team, relates that the squad will leave Boston on January 5 to play several exhibition games and then will sail for Europe on January 9. Baker states that Coach John Garrison has named Bruce Cunliffe, Ralph Warburton and Bruce Mather as the team's first line, and this trio, all from Dartmouth college, has shown up well in practice."

Frank W. Breneman New Manager of Hertz Bakery

"Frank W. Breneman, employed in the Hartz bakery the past three years, recently took over the management of the local plant, succeeding Ed Carlson, who last week assumed new duties as production manager for Sweetheart Bakeries at the Fargo branch. He served as manager of the bakery here the past 13 years. Mrs. Carlson will join him at Fargo shortly."

Thief River Falls Fire Losses In 1947 Total $98,035

"Fire losses in Thief River Falls in 1947 aggregated $98,035 according to records maintained by the local fire department, Chief Roy Langevin announced Wednesday. Of the total, $81,000 in losses resulted from two fires started by arsonists in the Peterson-Biddick plant and Land O'Lakes warehouses. The department responded to 62 calls during the year including five turned in from the Town of North and one drowning case."

BUSY NEW YEAR

"Here we are, off to a fresh start, with another whole year ahead of us. It should be a good year. Here on the home front, we will have a new city administration with less experience to start with and more problems ahead of it than ordinarily is the case. One big problem that will have to have early attention is the expansion of the water system. This expansion was authorized by the voters several years ago and a bond issue to finance that project was sold. The bid that was rejected at that time because it was too high might be considered a very low bid now, but regardless of cost this is a problem about which something must be done in the interests of sanitation and public health. The present plant actually does not have sufficient capacity.

"Some time during the coming year we should try to agree among ourselves on a few of the questions of this kind: What are we going to do about a community hospital program? With the building of an armory, shall we convert the auditorium to a city and county office building? It is desirable that we come to an understanding on these questions for several reasons and one of these is the possible use of municipal liquor store profits for projects of this kind. It is generally agreed that we need better court house and hospital facilities. It will require special legislature, however, to permit the spending of liquor store profits for such purposes and that is why It is Important that we agree on some program before the legislative session of 1949. We can foresee a lot of good arguments over these questions.

"And there are many things in the offing for the coming year that should make it an exceptionally busy fifty-two weeks. With fifty-three Thursdays in the year, the great family journal is going to be a bigger bargain than ever. We will try to make it more interesting. And because we are least unhappy when we are busy, our New Year's wish to all of you is Busy New Year!"

Candidates Forgot To File Their Expense Accounts

"Quite a sensation was caused last week by the fact that not any of the candidates at the recent city election had filed expense accounts with the county auditor, as by law required. The victorious ones last Friday filed their accounts, however, and all were the same. They stated that the receipts had been nothing and the expenditures the same. By their neglect to file these expense accounts all the candidates at the recent city election are subject to a fine of not more than $1,000 or less than $1.

"In this connection it can be stated that several other candidates are subject to a more serious charge. At the last election two of the candidates, P. O. Bergh and John Burkee, passed cigars around and left several baskets of grapes at each of the poling places. They evidently wanted to be good fellows and get the cheap votes but for each offense of this kind they subjected themselves to a fine of not less than $25. City Clerk Backe states that he knows of a candidate who bought three kegs of beer."

—Wouldn't it be fine if The Times could go through 1948 without recording the death or serious injury of a local citizen in an automobile accident?

—This would have been an almost ideal holiday season if only Uncle Sam and Joe Stalin had exchanged Christmas greetings and put some real feeling into them.

—Au revoir is good-bye in French, but, says Billy Noonan, speeding at 70 miles per hour is good-bye in any language.

—To coin a phrase, "Happy New Year to you all."

—That was a thoughtful Christmas gift from the state income tax division, sending out blanks to arrive on Christmas Eve.

ther south in the state," he said, "I'll be told that our estimates are far too high and there can't be that many wolves in the state."

Goal Far Surpassed

Goal of the wolf recovery program under the Endangered Species Act was to reach a population of 1,251 to 1,400 by the year 2000. Another part of the goal was to establish another population of at least 100 wolves and sustain that population for at least five years. That population has already been well exceeded in Wisconsin and Michigan.

Should the wolf be "delisted" as a threatened species, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service will monitor the population for the succeeding five years. If the population drops below the goal, the wolf could be put back on the endangered or threatened list.

Fears For Children

Doyle Martin, who farms northeast of Thief River Falls, said the presence of wolves in his yard has resulted in not allowing the children to play outdoors. Berg responded that while no healthy wolf has been known to have killed a human in the United States, it has not been uncommon in Europe. He advised keeping children close.

Ken Murphy of Thief River Falls stated that there has always been a high population of wolves in the Baudette area and that in the 1950's school bus drivers drove into the yards to pick up children rather than risk having them walk to the bus. He said that each day during the deer season this fall he had wolves follow him from his cabin to his stand and from the stand back to the cabin. He questioned why the wolf has to be given special status.

"We hear about compensation," a woman in the audience said. "How much is the government going to pay if wolves take one of my children? What is the value of a child's life?"

Wolves Lose Fear Of Humans

Leonard Moe of eastern Marshall county expressed the opinion that wolves have lost their fear of humans, the deer herd has been reduced by half and that pickups with antennae are seen driving around in farm country instead of on public lands. He said not to expect action until the wolves move far enough south to cause concern there.

Don Carlos responded that wolves are now near the Twin Cities and that one wolf with a radio collar spent 12 days in the Twin Cities suburbs without being observed and then left that area. He said that as wolf range extends south, attitudes may indeed change.

Dana Klos of Thief River Falls said that deer hunters spend a lot of money on deer and that the rural economy in some areas depends on an influx of hunters. Reduction of wolf numbers is necessary, he said, to help maintain a viable deer herd.

DNR An "Innocent Player"

Berg characterized the DNR as an "innocent player" in the controversy since it doesn't have authority to control the wolf population. With wolves taking an estimated 18 deer per wolf per year and the deer herd reduced by heavy winter losses, "you're darn right the department is concerned," he said.

Delroy Larson of Gatzke said he didn't believe wolf control required any additional staff and could be accomplished with hunting and trapping.

Wayne Lunsetter of Gatzke said he had lost sheep to wolves and a licensed trapper had taken six wolves in the fall and five more in the spring within an area half a mile in diameter near his house. He said he had no idea there were that many wolves in his area and he continues to see tracks frequently of single animals and small groups.

Turkey Losses High

Russ Christianson, manager of Northern Pride turkey processing cooperative in Thief River Falls, said more wolves have been trapped because of turkey depredation than anything else. In addition to loss of 150 to 200 turkeys killed in a single night by a wolf attack, he said, growers incur losses from bruising and injuries to surviving birds that don't show up until processing. He said he would like turkey growers from this area represented on the roundtable.

In response to a question by Mark Beedy of Thief River Falls if the compensation fund for wolf losses could be increased, Sen. LeRoy Stumpf of Thief River Falls said an increase is possible. He also said that the $400 maximum payment for a loss was not sufficient and that there will be an attempt in the legislature this year to increase the fund.

Compensation Inadequate

Bill Neuschwander of Grygla complained he had lost a registered Simmental cow to wolves in November and that it had a value of $1,500. The insurance company wouldn't pay for a loss from a wolf kill, and the $400 received from the state left him with a net $1,100 loss. He questioned the reward of $25,000 for information regarding the shooting of a wolf in Marshall county, saying the wolf had been valued far in excess of the value placed on his cow.

Dave Zavoral of Grygla asked why Minnesota had to have such a large number of wolves while Wisconsin and Michigan have a much smaller number. Don Carlos said that when the Endangered Species Act came into being, Minnesota was the only state with wolves.

Zavoral also was critical of any need for additional personnel to deal with the wolf question. "The DNR already has enough employees to put one in every township in Minnesota and have 3,000 left over," he said.

Participation Questioned

Troy Cameron of rural Thief River Falls questioned why anyone whose lifestyle was not being affected by wolves should be included in the roundtable. Don Carlos said that the goal is to have all interested parties involved early in the process in an effort to reach a consensus, rather than meet them in court or in the legislature at the end of the process.

Rep. Jim Tunheim of Kennedy urged local involvement in the process and going to the legislature with agreement on a plan. He said it is necessary to convince 35 Senators, 64 House members and the governor in order to have legislation enacted.

Public comment sheets were distributed at the meeting with the expectation that they would be completed and turned in at the meeting. Anyone taking a sheet home or who wants to make additional comments may turn in the written material to any DNR wildlife office to be forwarded to Don Carlos. John Williams said he will accept such materials at the Thief River Falls office at 123 Main Avenue North.

WOLVES IN MINNESOTA

"The Minnesota DNR is committed to ensuring the long-term survival of the wolf in Minnesota, and also to resolving conflicts between wolves and humans." —Minnesota DNR Position Statement

State Management Plan

When the wolf is delisted (removed) from listing under the Federal Endangered Species Act of 1973, Minnesota and other states with wolf populations will be responsible for wolf management. The biology and management of wolves have had extensive research and are well understood and relatively straightforward. However, developing a wolf management plan that assures the long-term survival of the wolf in Minnesota while addressing the effects of wolves on agriculture and other human interests is likely to be a more complex task.

Reasons for the controversy include:

- Lack of knowledge about wolf biology, numbers, distribution, and effects on human interests;
- Confusion of historical wolf persecution with modern wildlife management;
- General opposition to wolf control;
- General opposition to wolf protection;
- Diverse personal values and attitudes with respect to wolves.

The Minnesota Department of Natural Resources (DNR) wants public input in wolf management planning early in the process. DNR is holding public information meetings around the state to listen to ideas from the public and to provide information about the planning process and answer questions.

After the public meetings, DNR will assemble a wolf management roundtable which will guide DNR in addressing and resolving controversial aspects of wolf management. The roundtable will include representatives of agencies, environmental groups, agricultural groups, conservation organizations and wolf advocacy groups to ensure that all viewpoints are represented and heard.

DNR staff will be part of the roundtable process, as well as providing technical assistance on wolf biology, conservation, and management. The roundtable will meet regularly until September 1998. The Minnesota Bureau of Mediation Services, Office of Dispute Resolution will facilitate the meetings.

During and following the roundtable process, DNR will develop a draft wolf management plan, incorporating the recommendations of the roundtable. Once the draft plan is completed, DNR will hold additional public information meetings to present the plan to Minnesotans.

A final draft of Minnesota's wolf management plan will be finished in early 1999. However, the state plan will not be effective until the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service delists the wolf from the Federal Endangered Species Act. Some aspects of the plan may also require the approval of the Legislature and the Governor.

Cody Huschle of the Prowlers battled Aaron Jabs and Matt Vanderpan (42) of the Green Wave for a rebound during Friday's high school basketball game in Thief River Falls. Justin Bruhn of the Green Wave (right) looked on. East Grand Forks won the game 69-50.

EGF pulls away for 69-50 win

■ TRF boys watch upset bid slip away

It's becoming an all-too-familiar story line, according to Thief River Falls boys head high school basketball coach Bab Johnson. The Prowlers play well for a large portion of the game, but can't piece together the whole puzzle, and wind up losing. It happened again Friday when East Grand Forks broke open a close game in the fourth quarter and won going away, 69-50.

"It's the story of our season – not playing for a full 32 minutes," pointed out Johnson, whose team tumbled to 1-8. "When we execute our offense, we've been successful, and for three quarters, we were running our offense and we were playing pretty good defense."

Actually, the Prowlers didn't quite make it through three full quarters. The thing started to unravel on them in the waning moments of the third quarter when a 37-34 lead turned into a 40-37 deficit.

Jump-starting the East Grand Forks offense were back-to-back Thief River Falls turnovers in the final seconds. A steal and fast break lay-up by Aaron Jabs with 12.4 seconds to play tied it at 37-37, and, after another ball-handling mistake by the Prowlers, a three-point play by Travis Lueck off a base line drive that beat the buzzer pushed the Green Wave on top 40-37.

The scenario quickly repeated itself at the start of the fourth quarter when a steal and fast break basket by Jabs was followed by three-point play by Justin Bruhn on a lob pass underneath to complete an 8-0 game-turning run for the visitors.

"We're doing everything right for three-fourths of the basketball game, then in the last 20 seconds of the third quarter and the first minute of the fourth quarter, we look like we had never played a game," said Johnson, still shaking his head long after the affair was done.

The once-beaten Green Wave wound up out-scoring the Prowlers 29-13 over the final eight minutes.

Until then, Thief River Falls worked seriously on an upset. The Prowlers trailed 12-6 until Anthony Hendricks hit an open jumper, then turned a Cody Huschle block into a fast break lay-up and a three-point play in the final minute of the first quarter. A Mike Johnson basket from the side opened the second quarter, giving the Prowlers their first lead of the night, 13-12.

It stayed close the rest of the half, with a base line drive by Jeremy Swanson beating the horn and pulling the Prowlers within 24-22 at intermission.

The teams swapped leads six times and there were two ties in the third quarter before the East Grand Forks getaway unfolded.

Bruhn, a 6-5 junior, lead all scorers with 27 points. Lueck, a 6-4 senior, netted 15. Swanson, a 6-1 senior, had 16 points to lead the Prowlers, who did not have another double figure scorer, but did get a solid contribution in an extended playing time off the bench by Huschle, a 6-2 senior.

The two teams were an identical 10-for-24 from the field in the first half, but the Prowlers wound up with a 38 percent 21-for-46 shooting performance for the night, while the Green Wave went on to a 50 percent 28-for-56 showing. East Grand Forks was 13-for-23 at the free throw line, where Thief River Falls was 8-for-15. Rebounds were even at 24-apiece. The Prowlers topped the turnover figures 19-13.

It was the end of a six-game homestand for the Prowlers, who will be playing their next three games at Fergus Falls, Moorhead and Crookston.

Badger/Greenbush-Middle River completed its comeback from a first round 44-34 loss to Tri-County with a 59-52 consolation championship game victory over Clearbrook-Gonvick.

The Gators, who beat Fertile-Beltrami 63-52 in the consolation semifinals, trailed the Bears 19-13 and 33-29 at the first two quarter stops before going ahead 41-40 at the close of the third quarter.

Another balanced scoring performance by the Badger/Greenbush-Middle River offense featured five scorers in the 8-to-15-point range, including 5-10 senior Jeremy Vacura with 15, and 6-2 seniors Daryl Wockenfuss and Andy Schenkey with 12 and 10 points, respectively.

Jan Gerlofs, a 6-3 junior, sparked the Bears' strong start with a 13-point first quarter. He finished as the game's leading scorer, but netted only three more points the rest of the way.

The Gators iced it with 7-for-9 free throw shooting in the fourth quarter – part of an 11-for-17 game at the line for the winners. The Bears had a quiet 3-for-5 free throw showing.

Rams' rebounding nets win over TRF

A Roseau rebound advantage added up to a 59-49 girls high school basketball win over visiting Thief River Falls Saturday.

The Rams beat the Prowlers on the boards 36-21 as they turned an 11-8 first quarter deficit into a 24-22 halftime edge and a 41-34 third quarter lead.

"The rebounds really hurt," pointed out Thief River Falls coach Jeff Loe. "Our lack of size is really starting to show."

Three Rams hit double figures as Kristi Glassmann netted 16 points, Tanya Ulvin 14 and Sarah Lefor 10. The Prowlers countered with Nicole Kopari, who ran into early foul trouble but still wound up with 20 points, and Laura Follett, who collected 11.

Neither team shot well in coming off a holiday break, with the Prowlers going 20-for-53 (38 percent) and the Rams finishing 22-for-67 (33 percent) from the field. Thief River Falls also had trouble at the free throw line with an 8-for-16 night, while Roseau made 15 of 19 gift tosses. Turnovers were even at 14-apiece.

It was the Prowlers' first game since Dec. 18, and their sixth loss in nine starts overall.

Red Lake Falls overwhelmed Marshall County Central 77-23 Saturday in girls high school basketball.

The host Eagles turned a 12-6 first quarter lead into a 25-10 halftime spread and a 58-21 third quarter gap.

"We did some things all right, but they're such a good team," said Marshall County Central coach Alice Oahl, whose team was playing for the first time since Oec. 18.

Jodi Purath scored 22 points, Allie Bertilrud 14 and Chris Kleven 12 for the Eagles. The Nordics did not have a double figure scorer.

TRF comeback falls short, 7-6

Thief River Falls spotted Grafton a 6-1 head start before charging back in Wednesday's finale to the annual McDonald's Classic high school hockey series. The Prowlers caught the Spoilers at 6-6, but couldn't complete the rally, losing a 7-6 shootout at the Huck Olson Memorial Civic Center.

"Give them (Prowlers) credit for not quitting," said Thief River Falls coach Scott Bergland. "I'm sure you would have had to go back a long ways to find a Thief River Falls team that rallied from a 6-1 deficit to win a hockey game."

Most of the scoring was packed into the start of the game. A Kyle Anderson goal at 3:59 of the third period tied it, but after 12 goals had been scored in the first 19 minutes, the offensive onslaught came to a stop. There was just one more goal the rest of the way – the game-winner by Grafton's Laith Sando at 4:51 of the third period.

Goals started coming at the outset as the Prowlers' Jarod Reierson put the puck in the net just 31 seconds after the opening face-off. But Grafton tied it before the first minute had expired, and then took charge with a three-goal burst in a 1:37 span. It was 6-1 with just 9:57 elapsed.

"Their (Prowlers) heads just weren't in the game at the start," said Bergland. "It's not that they weren't skating hard, but they just weren't thinking. They played hard after that. If we would have played 45 minutes, we would have won, easily."

Reierson finished with a hat trick for the Prowlers, while Jeff Rislov and Eric Rouland joined Anderson as single-goal scorers. Rislov and Wade Chiodo picked up two assists each.

Ryan Larson and Sando scored two goals each for the Spoilers, with Jeff Hall, Brian Presteng and Garrett Larson scored one goal each. Hall also had three assists, and Adam Sando had two.

There were 18 penalties called in the game – 10 on the Spoilers and eight on the Prowlers.

Josh Holmes began the game in goal for the Prowlers, but gave way to regular starter Mike Dowers in the first period. The Spoilers also tried two goalies, with Daniel Presteng taking over for Matt Oppegard in the second period.

In the earlier McDonald's Classic New Year's Eve games, Mesabi East edged Crookston 4-3 and Red Lake Falls surprised East Grand Forks 5-3.

The three days of pre-determined match-ups in in three rinks (at East Grand Forks Monday, at Crookston Tuesday, at Thief River Falls Wednesday) left Thief River Falls, Red Lake Falls, Grafton, and East Grand Forks with 2-1 records, while Mesabi East wound up 1-2 and Crookston was 0-3.

Thief River Falls, 2-9 for the year, will resume play Thursday with a return trip to Crookston. The Prowlers' next home appearance will be Tuesday, Jan. 13, vs. Warroad.

Nicole Koperi of the Prowlers joined the 1,000-Point Club Monday in Thief River Falls' 60-40 girls high school basketball win over Marshall County Central. The game was stopped momentarily at the start of the fourth quarter when the 6-0 junior was presented with the game ball after reaching the milestone. While attention was given to her 26-point offensive performance, Koperi played defense, too, as she challenged the Nordics' Tera Davidson in this first half action.

Kopari joins TRF 1,000-Point Club

■ Six-foot junior has 26-point effort in 60-40 win over MCC

Nicole Kopari joined a select group Monday when a 26-point effort in Thief River Falls' 60-40 girls high school basketball win over Marshall County Central gained the 6-0 junior entrance in the Prowlers' 1,000 Point Club.

Kopari, 24 points shy at the start of the night, was well on her way to reaching the plateau with a 20-point first half. But the figure wasn't reached until she opened the fourth quarter with a drive on the inside against a pair of Marshall County Central defenders. A short jumper from the middle a few moments later completed her scoring for the night, giving her 1,002 career points with a season-and-a-half to go.

Kopari is the fourth Thief River Falls girl to surpass the 1,000 point barrier. That list includes Jodi Kruta, who graduated in 1992 with 1,771 points; Michelle Olson, who finished her career in 1985 with 1,062 points; and Kim Stenseth, who wound up with 1,059 points as a senior last year.

"Nicole is a good athlete," noted Thief River Falls coach Jeff Loe. "When she squares up with the basket, she has a good shot. One of her problems is that she is so unselfish that she passes the ball off when the shot is there for her. We like to see her shooting. We need her to be scoring like that if we're going to be successful."

The win boosted Thief River Falls to 4-6. The loss dropped Marshall County Central to 1-7. But the Nordies, who lost to the Prowlers 55-25 in the Northland Community and Technical College Invitational in mid-December and were coming off a 77-23 Saturday drubbing at the hands of Red Lake Falls, put together a pretty decent performance this time out, according to head coach Alice Dahl. "They're improving," she said. "I thought they played pretty well. It was our best performance all year."

Marshall County Central had a couple of early leads and trailed only 14-10 at the end of the first quarter. It was 14-12 when Mandi Blawat opened the second quarter with a pair of free throws. But an 8-0 Thief River Falls run put the Prowlers in control as Kopari and freshman Sara Jensen both hit a pair of close-in baskets for a 22-12 spread.

Down 29-18 at halftime, the Nordies managed to keep it a single-digit deficit through the middle of the third quarter before Amber Klinker and Laura Follett both connected twice during an 8-2 Thief River Falls surge that turned a 37-28 game into 45-30.

A jumper by the Nordies' Kristi Kilen closed out the third quarter, but Kopari's milestone basket began the fourth quarter, and the Nordies weren't able to close the gap down the stretch.

"It was helter-skelter at times, but we got the job done," said Loe, who admitted extra attention was given to Kopari's point quest. "We wanted her to get it tonight. It was nice to get it done."

Blawat, a 5-6 sophomore, and Miki Waterworth, a 5-10 senior, led the Nordies with 13 and 12 points, respectively.

Thief River Falls was 27-for-64 from the field (42 percent), but just 5-for-16 at the free throw line. Marshall County Central went 14-for-46 from the floor (30 percent) and 12-for-18 at the line. The Prowlers had a 34-21 rebound advantage, which included an 18-10 edge on the offensive boards. The Nordies topped the turnover charts 17-6.

Wolverines challenge Rams, but lose 57-54

Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke challenged a strong Roseau team before surrendering a 57-54 girls high school basketball decision Monday.

The Wolverines trailed 16-7 at the end of the first quarter, but stayed within 29-27 at halftime and played the Rams to a 43-43 third quarter tie.

Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke gained a four-point edge in the fourth quarter, but wound up paying the price for missing free throws and turning the ball over. The Wolverines struggled through a 9-for-20 night at the free throw line line in falling to 3-5 for the year.

"We definitely played harder than they did and we were more aggressive," reported Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke coach Mike Gast, "but the free throws and turnovers really hurt."

Kathryn Stanley had a 17-point, 10-rebound game for the Wolverines, while Dana Wiseth netted 13 points and Angie Gast contributed 10. Cathy Gotziaman led Roseau with 14 points, while Holly Slattery and Tanya Ulvin both picked up 10.

Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke shot 44 percent from the field (22-for-50). Roseau had a 50 percent 25-for-50 shooting performance from the floor and made 7 of 13 free throws. The Wolverines finished with a 33-27 rebound advantage.

Roseau JV is winner over TRF girls 71-38

Roseau broke things open in the second half Saturday en route to a 71-38 girls junior varsity high school basketball win over Thief River Falls.

The winners led at the quarter stops 22-6, 32-25 and 53-29.

Sara Jensen led Thief River Falls with 14 points.

Sports Briefs

F-M player has TRF ties

Fargo-Moorhead Ice Sharks defenseman Andy Reierson, son of former Thief River Falls residents Roger and Arlene Reierson and grandson of Milt and Eileen Reierson and Bernhard and Dorothy Wold of Thief River Falls, is one of the hottest college prospects in the United States Hockey League, according to Dave Kolpack of the Fargo Forum.

A Moorhead High School graduate in his first year of junior hockey, Reierson was tied for the USHL lead in scoring by a defenseman at the time of the recent article written by Kolpack with 20 points – 6 goals and 14 assists. He was also a plus-23 on the Ice Sharks' plus-minus charts, and was tied for the USHL lead among regulars for fewest penalty minutes: two.

"He (Reierson) skates so well that he doesn't have to hook people or he doesn't have to trip people from behind as he's trying to catch them," Ice Sharks coach Tarek Howard told Kolpack. "He sees the ice well, he has good hands, he skates well, and he's got a rocket for a shot."

Reierson has already lined up recruiting visits to the University of Alaska-Anchorage and the University of Minnesota-Duluth. He has also heard from Mankato State and Ohio State, and according to Kolpack, the interest in the 6-1, 175-pounder is continuing to grow.

TRF JV loses in O.T.

Marshall County Central outlasted Thief River Falls 62-52 Monday in a girls junior varsity high school basketball game that went into double-overtime.

It was close until the end. Marshall County Central led 12-10 at the end of the first quarter, fell behind 19-18 at halftime and trailed 31-28 through three quarters before gaining a 39-39 regulation time tie. It was still deadlocked at 48-48 after the first four-minute overtime, with the visitors then going on a 14-4 run in the second extra session for the win.

Kim Almquist scored 15 points and Keli Waterworth had 11 for Thief River Falls. Marshall County Central got 12-point games from Jill Anderson, Emily Kragness and Alisha Halvorson.

Officials investigate anonymous phone calls to local residents

Pennington County Sheriff's Deputy Ray Kuznia said residents who have been receiving telephone calls with no one on the other end should not be too concerned. Kuznia explained that a telemarketer is using a computer which dials at least five phone numbers at the same time. The first telephone answered is routed to an telemarketer and the other phone calls terminated. As a result, residents have been answering phones when no one is on the other end.

Kuznia said the Law Enforcement Center in Pennington County has received a number of complaints from local residents. He said his office is trying to determine where the calls are originating but it has proved a difficult and time consuming task.

It's an annoying situation, said Kuznia. In the meantime residents should not be too concerned. Kuznia was careful to say that not all anonymous phone calls are harmless. If residents feel there is something more to the anonymous phone calls they have been receiving, they should report the incident to law enforcement personnel.

Snowmobilers are advised of open water

Pennington County Sheriff's department is advising snowmobilers to stay off the ice. They haven't heard of any problems north of Thief River Falls, but open water exists east on the Red Lake River less than two miles from Thief River Falls.

Sheriff's Deputy Ray Kuznia, said a local resident watching the situation from his residence east of town has observed snowmobilers barely escape serious problems. Kuznia said the individual observed snowmobilers race around a corner to come face to face with open water and just barely make it to the bank on the edge of the ice. Kuznia said the sheriff hasn't lifted his ban on motorized traffic on the river, and officials do not want to have to rescue anyone from the river.

Charges pending for theft

Charges are pending against four minors and one adult following investigation into a rash of thefts from vehicles during the past two months.

Pennington County Sheriff's department reported Wednesday that a cooperative effort between police, the sheriff's departments of Marshall and Pennington counties has resulted in the recovery of numerous stolen items including television sets, VCRs, CD players, tape players, cellular phones, speakers, coins and other items. Two minors, and one adult from Thief River Falls, one minor from Holt, and one from Newfolden face charges as a result of the ongoing investigation.

Pennington County Sheriff Gerald Moe explained that on Monday night a Thief River Falls police officer observed a suspicious vehicle in the Kmart parking lot and notified other officers. At 2:30 a.m. a sheriff's deputy came across the vehicle north bound on Highway 59. He stopped the vehicle and at that time removed a police scanner from the vehicle, some coins, and a CD and tape player, which appear to be connected to other thefts. From there, Moe said, the case led to other thefts. He estimated that at least 10 cases in Pennington county will be cleared when the investigation is complete.

Marshall County Sheriff Dennis Brekke confirmed that they are working on a joint investigation with Pennington county. He said the investigation into thefts of stereos and televisions and other items is still ongoing.

Individuals who have had thefts from their vehicles in Pennington and Marshall counties and have not reported the thefts yet, are encouraged to do so.

Congressman fields farm questions at TRF meeting

Congressmen Collin Peterson responded to questions Monday during a meeting on farm issues in Thief River Falls.

Question of the day Monday at a meeting on farm problems called by Congressman Collin Peterson at Northland Community and Technical College was only half in jest.

Speaking for farmers caught in a squeeze between rising costs and declining income, Henry Panek of rural Thief River Falls asked, "How do we get on the Endangered Species List?"

The question followed several others regarding protection of the timber wolf under the federal Endangered Species Act and why the federal government—instead of the state—wasn't involved in depredation payments.

Room D-60 at NCTC was filled for the meeting with a number of late arrivals standing at the sides and back of the room. Congressman Peterson, State Sen. LeRoy Stumpf of Thief River Falls and State Rep. Jim Tunheim of Kennedy moved on after the meeting to a similar gathering at Roseau.

Sen. Stumpf Opens Meeting

Sen. Stumpf opened the meeting and brief comments were given by Rep. Tunheim before Rep. Peterson gave an outline of some of the items he anticipated happening in the 1998 session of Congress.

Peterson said he would continue to work hard for authorization of the research provision of the Farm Bill so that more funding would be available to assist with Federal Crop Insurance and work on solving the disastrous situation of scab in wheat and barley.

Funds should be available within the agriculture department budget, he said, because a change in the food stamp criteria under welfare reform resulted in the states being overpaid more than a billion dollars for food stamp administration costs. One of the problems, he said, is that the states—including Minnesota—have been able to usa the funds for other welfare costs and aren't willing to return them.

Crop Insurance Proposed

Pointing out that farm subsidies and supports are being phased out and will be non-existent by the year 2002, he said that perhaps the best farmers can hope for is a Federal Crop Insurance program that will help them in the event of successive crop disaster years such as have been experienced here. The present system, he said, is backwards because the more losses a farmer has, the harder it is for him to get insurance and the more it costs.

"The idea is that if you weren't able to get a crop several years in succession you shouldn't be in business," he said. "That is something we will certainly be working to do something about."

Doesn't Like CRP Plan

He also discussed the Conserva-

1997 Year-end review

This is the third and final installment in a series of stories reviewing the events from 1997 captured in stories and pictures on the front page of The Times and Northern Watch.

It was announced in the September 3 edition of The Times that Northwest Minnesota Multi-County HRA was requesting that the city pay $237,696 to cover current and projected future operating deficits for three housing projects in Thief River Falls. Also in that edition, Long's bridge was dedicated, more details of the NCTC audit were detailed, and students were heading back to class.

In the September 6 edition of the Northern Watch it was announced that opening day enrollment in School District 564 was down from a year earlier. With few exceptions, area school enrollments also reported declines.

Preliminary budget details showed the city of Thief River Falls faced a deficit of $1.7 million, according to a story in the September 10 edition of The Times. Also in that edition, construction on the new bridge in Hartz park was nearing completion; 10 individuals filed for two positions on the School Board; and the burning of leaves in the city became another hot topic.

The 16th signup for the Federal Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) was announced for October 14-November 11. Details of the event, were included in the September 13 edition of the Northern Watch. Also in the edition, Women of Today in Middle River were planning a Community Expo.

In the September 17 edition of The Times, a story reported that the city council was planning to ask the legislature to allow Sunday liquor without bringing the matter before citizens as it had in the past; even while the new clinic was under construction, a groundbreaking ceremony was held for an additional 5,000 square foot addition; and full-time enrollment at NCTC was up.

Diamonds, a restaurant and lounge in Grygla, had risen from the ashes of a fire in 1994, according to a story in the September 20 edition of the Northern Watch. Also in this edition, homecoming activities were underway at Northland; and a Northern American Outdoor magazine group was planning a major photo shoot in the area.

Arson fire destroyed the Dobner-Meehan block building at the corner of Second Street and Main Avenue in Thief River Falls, according to the September 24 edition of The Times. Also in this edition, Lincoln was gearing up for homecoming activities, and United Way of Thief River Falls was beginning its fund drive.

Following another in a number of delays, site preparation bids for the Multi-Events Cultural Center were approved by the state, according to a story in the September 27 edition of the Northern Watch. Also in this edition, three minor fires inside the Kmart store were reported; and a story related how a life-size papier-mache replica of Napoleon the ox, was being made for the museum in Warren. (Napoleon pulled Delmar Hagen and his cart during a historic 1958 trek down the Pembina Trail.)

October

Businesses forced to move because of the Dobner-Meehan fire were slow in finding places to relocate, according to an October 1 edition of The Times. Also in this edition, it was reported that an attempt to repeal the city's leaf burning law had failed, County commissioners had tabled a septic system ordinance proposal; and a group had formed to promote passage of an upcoming school levy referendum.

In the October 4 edition of the Northern Watch, an open house to present information and answer questions about the Northern Tallgrass Prairie Habitat Preservation Area was to take place at Northland; and Sound of Music tickets were going on sale.

Woody Mootz, a flood evacuee from East Grand Forks, called his 16-foot camper at the tourist park in Thief River Falls home for the summer. His struggle and expectations were included in a story in the October 8 edition of The Times.

Clark reelected to chair School District 564 board

Carl Clark will lead School District 564 as the chairman of its board of directors once again. Little changed in the leadership of the board at its organizational meeting Monday evening. Emerging as vice chairperson was Darla Twomey. Jean Larson was elected clerk. Cheryl Lee was elected treasurer.

The organizational meeting introduced two new members to the board of directors. It was the first meeting for newly elected board members Randy Twistol and Lyle Olson. Their new responsibilities, which both accepted, include participation on various committees. Twistol will serve on the finance committee, and Strategic Planning and Steering committee. Olson will serve on Planning, Evaluating and Reporting Committee, and the Technology Committee.

Salaries for the board will remain the same as they have for many years — $4,000 for chairperson, $3,450 for vice chairperson, $3,200 for clerk, $3,200 for treasurer, and $3,000 for directors. Meetings for the board of directors, unless changed by formal action, will be held at 7 p.m. for the January through May and September through December meetings, and 6 p.m. for the June through August meetings. Generally, the meetings fall on the first and third Mondays of every month and are always open to the public.

During the regular meeting of the board, they discussed an energy audit. A number of recommendations have been proposed by Johnson Controls. A committee, consisting of two members of the board, the superintendent, Jerry Prickett, and Harry Nelson, will review the recommendations and come back to the board with their recommendations. Generally, Superintendent Jerry Robicheau said, the buildings are in good condition. There are a number of things that need work and eventually would have been done anyway.

The profile for Franklin Middle School principal has been developed. The district has posted the position regionally and nationally. Robicheau said he is in the process of developing a process to screen and select candidates. He said the market is going to be tight and there will be few candidates, but the district is attractive to many.

Curt Neumann, chairman of the Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce board said it had been another busy year representing the Thief River Falls business and professional community. Saturday night he turned over leadership of the organization to Kent Fritze, who plans to continue the hard work and emphasize working together for Northwest Minnesota.

In addition to listing the highlights of the past year, and plans for the future, several individuals were recognized for their contributions, including Carol Ihle, who received the Excellence in Education award, Catherine Hagen, who received the Higher Education Award, Roger Tunberg, who received the Chairman's award, Chad Broadwell, who received the Outstanding Young Leader award, and Jean Larson, who received the Volunteer of the Year award.

The text of Neumann's speech to the chamber members at the 84th annual chamber banquet Saturday at the Best Western was as follows.

"The Chamber of Commerce had another busy year representing the Thief River Falls businesses and professional community. It is a challenge to carry on promoting the betterment of our businesses and our city. The success is attained only through the Chamber's hard working staff, the leadership of the board of directors, the committee chairs, the individual committee members, and the active involvement of the Chamber of Commerce members.

"The Chamber's promotion and involvement in the many special events held in Thief River Falls is an accomplishment that does much for the betterment of our businesses and our city. We also have much to be thankful for in the areas of employment, more available housing, new construction, and the success of our major employers and other businesses.

"But, as always, much work remains for the Chamber to be successful in carrying out the mandates of its mission. The last several years has seen rapidly transforming changes in our area's retail and agricultural economy. Due to the importance of these areas to our overall well-being, it is imperative that our Chamber and its membership place high priority in addressing their needs into the future.

All chairs were filled and persons arriving after this photo was taken stood along the walls at the sides and back of the room when Rep. Collin Peterson conducted a meeting on farm problems Monday afternoon at Northland Community and Technical College.

Congressman fields questions at meeting

tion Reserve Program which, he said, eliminated land in Minnesota which shouldn't be farmed and added acres in North Dakota and Montana which has always been grazed. He blamed undue influence by environmentalists in creating a bad CRP program

The congressman also said he wanted to provide a more level playing field for dairymen across the United States by revising the milk marketing orders. He said the orders encouraged dairymen to start production in non-dairy areas by establishing a fluid milk price differential. When the production exceeded needs for fluid milk, processing plants were built in those areas and competed with established dairy territory.

Having recently returned from a trip to New Zealand and Australia, he said that New Zealand dairymen are producing for the export market and have a cost of production of $4.80 per hundredweight. They have a warm climate, rotate pastures and feed their cows nothing but grass, and have a tin roof over a milking parlor. In Australia the cost of production is around $7.

$14 to $15 Milk
"Ain't Gonna Happen"

"I hope we can find a way to stabilize prices for milk at around $12 to $13," he said, "but if you're looking for $14 to $15 milk it ain't gonna happen as long as the Republicans are in charge."

He said it is especially hard for American dairymen to compete on the world market with producers who are subsidized in other countries and when protectionist tariffs are in place. "There is a 290 percent tariff on U.S. milk products going into Canada," he said, "none on products coming in from Canada."

Since Congress is expected to supposedly balance the budget for the first time in 30 years, its members are already looking for ways to spend more money, he said. His view is that the nation should pay off some of its debt, separate Social Security from the rest of the budget and get the country on its feet economically before even thinking about more spending or major tax cuts.

Opposes "Fast Track"

Congressman Peterson expressed his opposition to "fast track," a plan which would give to the President the authority of Congress to negotiate trade agreements and treaties with the Congress being able to only vote yes or no. "I'm not about to give the President my authority," he said.

Lori Olson of Thief River Falls asked about financial assistance and organizational and marketing help for rural areas seeking to market organic products or finding other uses for crops. Peterson said that a number of value-added cooperatives have successfully started.

He added that there are businesses interested in locating in northern Minnesota but there is no longer an available labor force here. People who would like to return to the area for employment are unable to find affordable housing.

"Environmentalists Run Show"

Regarding the question on wolf depredation payments, Peterson said that "environmentalists run the show" in Washington and that "Newt (Gingrich) turned the situation over to the Sierra Club." He said that he (Peterson) is one of only 50 rural Representatives out of 435 members in the House.

Asked by Don Barron of Thief River Falls about the Northern Tall Grass Prairie project, the congressman said he too was concerned about "bugs and birds" that might be discovered in that habitat and either be harmful to surrounding crops or be felt to require protection due to a perceived threatened or endangered status.

Europeans Went Hungry

Europeans now jealously guard their farm programs, he said, because they went hungry twice—during world wars when they didn't have their own food production. He noted that one problem for U.S. farmers is having subsidized European production dumped on the world market.

Rep. Peterson said he doesn't expect there will be any real changes in U.S. farm policy until there is a real widespread crop disaster across the United States. Farmers in much of the rest of the nation at the present time, he said, seem to be doing fairly well.

To state legislators, several in the audience urged action to compel the state Department of Natural Resources to pay its delinquent ditch taxes in Marshall and Beltrami counties. It was suggested that state lands be declared delinquent and put up for sale, just as tax delinquent private lands would be.

In a final comment on dairy prior to adjournment of the meeting, Congressman Peterson said that dairy marketing is a highly confusing and complex situation. "There are only about five people in the United States who say they fully understand what is going on," he said, "and all of them are lying."

"As my term comes to a close, I wish to extend my appreciation to the Chamber of Commerce membership as a whole for your active involvement in promoting Thief River Falls. You are the reason the Chamber can successfully attain its mission of establishing Thief River Falls as the regional center of Northwestern Minnesota."

Kent Fritze who takes over as the Chairman of the Chamber of Commerce, looks forward to the challenges. The text of his speech to the membership is as follows:

"Thank you for the privilege of serving as the 1998 Chairman of the Board for the Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce. It is indeed an honor to be counted as a chamber member and to help in the promotion of our great town of Thief River Falls.

"As we begin the new year, look around the town. It is a given fact that some businesses are going to thrive — regardless of size — and others will not. As a Chamber of Commerce, we need to continue to promote and help every business become a success. More successful businesses lead to more employment, more employment leads to more money in the community, and hopefully more money in the community leads to more sales and economic growth in Thief River Falls.

"In the past year, the Chamber of Commerce has worked hard in promoting Thief River Falls and based on responses from surveys, we have strived to improve communication, provide business seminars, and bring major events to Thief River Falls. We will continue to do so, but we need the membership's help. We need members who are willing to get involved and willing to present ideas and opinions for us to get a new perspective. Without you, the membership, there is no Chamber of Commerce. I encourage you to be an active member and invite those businesses who are not members to become members.

"'Working Together for Northwest Minnesota' means just that, working together. By doing so, we can ensure the success of the Chamber, ensure the success of our businesses, and ensure the success of Thief River Falls. Together, we can 'Build the Future — Today.'"

Roger Tunberg, Chad Broadwell, Carol Ihle, Jean Larson and Catherine Hagen received special recognition by the chamber of commerce at the banquet. Included in this edition of The Times, are stories featuring award recipients Roger Tunberg, and Chad Broadwell. Due to constraints on space, stories about the other award recipients will appear in the next edition of The Times.

Roger Tunberg receives the Chamber of Commerce Chairman's Award

He's a goal-setter, he's an achiever, he's a long-distance man. All these phrases describe Roger Tunberg, the 1998 recipient of the Chamber of Commerce Chairman's Award presented at the January 10th Annual Chamber Banquet.. Yet Roger Tunberg is much more. If you speak to him, he will humbly acknowledge only the basics. "I don't think I'm special," he said. "It's an obligation to be involved in your community. You just have to decide where you'll be involved and do it for the right reasons. Not everybody can be involved in everything. You choose your strong suit and get involved."

Roger was born in Clearbrook and came to Thief River Falls when he was one year old. His wife Ardy was from Rosewood and the two have lived in Thief River Falls almost all their lives. His father started Tunberg Motors in 1930. Then Roger's brother joined his father in the business. After the Korean War, Roger joined his brother and their father. He and his brother continued his father's tradition of service and were partners for 35 years.

During that time, he served on numerous committees and projects. "I guess I've been on all the committees there were -- from Lions to Masonic to Chamber to church," he said, "It's what you do in a small town to make it better. People have to give back to their community if they want to see it grow and become what they want it to be." Among the organizations on which he has served, he has been president of the Chamber and Lion's Club and the Thief River Falls Education Foundation. He was also Chairman of the Board of First Federal and started the Trinity Church Foundation and the Thief River Falls Education Foundation. His wife noted he has been involved in much more, but Roger merely said, "That's enough to put dowa. You take your turns on committees and such. You just give back to your community because it gives so much to you. That's the way it should be."

While he is reticent about commenting on his own involvement and leadership positions, he is extremely vocal about one of his greatest loves -- the Thief River Falls Education Foundation. "The things that have come about because of the Foundation have been just great and they never would have happened without it," noted Roger. "And that's why we started it. When we started, we didn't want to do what should be handled by the regular school budget. We wanted to encourage excellence in education by providing seed money for innovative programs that would benefit kids of all types and all ages." The Thief River Falls Education Foundation had its beginnings in a conversation Roger had with then-superintendent Bob Duncan. Superintendent Duncan then called together 8 people to discuss the idea and it was brought to fruition in 1990 when the Foundation was legally formed. Roger expressed great appreciation to the Thief River Falls Education Association for the initial donation of $10,000. Their backing of the project not only was necessary to get it off the ground, according to Roger, but also showed teacher support for the Foundation's objectives.

One of the things in the foundation that really excites him is the support it has had. "I can't believe the alumni !" he exclaimed. "There has been a lot of money contributed from outside the Thief River Falls area because people remember their school days fondly. And when I talk to people about some of the projects they've helped fund, they're amazed at our school system! But it doesn't surprise me. Look at all the people who've come out of our educational system and what they've done!"

Why does the Education Foundation remain so near and dear to his heart? Roger smiled and said, "I wanted to see all the kids in our area have a good education because they need it so badly in this world. And I think our system is good. Look at our teachers -- We have some of the finest teachers in the whole country that work here and they are doing some of the most innovative projects. And our new super -- I think he's quite a guy. He'll be able to help these teachers give each kid exactly what that kid needs."

What does he see in the future for the Thief River Falls Education Foundation? "I think it will become bigger and stronger," he mused, "and be a big supporter of new and creative programs in the school district. What I do worry about is school district funding. A person is so concerned about how the state gives money to districts and the schools don't know where they're at because of that. That has to be straightened out. I used to serve on the advertizing committee for Ford, so I know how Ford did it. The larger dealerships helped the smaller dealerships and it was for the good of everyone in the end. That's the way we've got to look at education. We're educating the whole state of Minnesota whether we are teaching kids in the metro area or in the country."

What does he see in the future for Thief River Falls? "Thief River Falls has a strong foundation for the whole northwestern portion of the state -- though maybe a little too close to Grand Forks," he said, "but Thief River Falls is a strong base. It has been and will be a good town, a strong town for us and for our children. And it will be because of the people living and working in it." He and Ardy were planning to return to their winter residence at the end of December because of commitments he had in January in Florida, but he has rearranged flights to be here. "It's such an honor," he said. "I don't assume to get anything and this came as a real surprise. I can't tell you how honored I am. Thief River Falls is a great town and I'm proud it's my hometown. To be honored by its people is something special."

Chad Broadwell Receives Chamber's Outstanding Young Leader Award

"If there was one thing that I learned recently at the Blandin Leadership program, it was You should listen for understanding and not necessarily for agreement. You can't always satisfy everyone completely, but often compromises or better educating the group can bring about better understanding." So states Chad Broadwell, the recipient of this year's Chamber of Commerce Outstanding Young Leader award. The award was presented at the 1998 Chamber of Commerce Annual Banquet held January 10.

Chad Broadwell was raised in Thief River Falls and returned to the community immediately following college. "The primary reason I came back to Thief River Falls was career related," noted Chad, "but I would have never had considered it had I not had so many positive experiences while growing up in Thief River Falls. Thief River Falls has a friendly, clean feeling to it, which is obvious when visitors come into our community. And once they meet some of the citizens, they see the best part of our community -- citizens who are friendly and genuinely caring."

His commitment to the community was evident from the time he first returned. He immediately became active in several organizations. In 1988, he became a Big Brother in the Big Brother/Big Sister program (subsequently renamed Little Brother/Little Sister program) and joined the Sno Drifters and Jaycees, in which he still remains a member and officer of the two latter organizations. Currently, he serves as treasurer for the Sno-Drifters and one of the six race directors for the Ironman 250 snowmobile race.

"The organizations I belong to are constantly working on getting younger people involved and helping them become our future leaders," noted Chad. "It is very common to have a strong group of leaders, which have all been the leader of the organization, and they struggle trying to find new people interested in taking on the leadership position. Training the next generation of leaders is a continuous process in all of our community's organizations and the organizations who don't consciously mentor future leaders will eventually have difficulty filling positions."

Besides Jaycees and Sno-Drifters, Chad currently serves on the Convention and Visitor's Bureau Board as treasurer, on the Thief River Falls Telecommunications Strategic Planning Task Force as secretary, in Lion's and in the Knights of Columbus. He has also been involved in a number of other organizations in the past including the Chairperson of the Thief River Falls United Way Board.

What made Chad get involved in the community? "A number of reasons," he said after a lengthy pause. "I really believe it's important to try to help the people who helped me while I was growing up in Thief River Falls. Now it's my turn to give back to the community." Chad noted an example when he assisted with the parade last summer. He heard individuals comment that they wished there were more floats in a community parade. These same people are rarely involved in community activities and feel it is up to someone else to design and build floats for "their" parade. "As a leader," he said, "we need to share this with more citizens and get everyone involved with making our community a better place to live and work."

Obviously Chad feels his commitment to the community deeply, but do other people in their twenties and thirties feel the same way? Chad noted that is a question with which the numerous groups in which he is involved struggle. How do you mentor people to become new leaders? Chad encourages all citizens to come forward and assist in making Thief River Falls a better place to live and work. "It's a wonderful opportunity to get to meet other interesting people. Nobody has a lot of spare time, but we can all adjust our priorities and make an effort to improve our community with only a couple of hours a month."

When people first get involved with an activity, he went on, it is common to feel uncomfortable leading an organization. Therefore, if they get involved, existing leaders must understand that some time and effort needs to be invested in their new members. This enables the new leaders a comfort level with their decisions for the organization in the future. Chad's definition of a leaders is "someone who, over time, has built trust and/or credibility, which enables others to follow comfortably."

Would he like to be remembered as a community leader? Chad shook his head. "I'd rather," he said, "be remembered as someone who properly balanced his time between his family, career and community."

In the November 12 edition of The Times, School District 564 reported beginning its search for an ag instructor; Jean Larson was named Hero by Academic Excellence Foundation; complaints about the smell coming from the river led to a much bigger issue and problems regarding State Ditch 83 (Thief River).

In the November 15 edition of the Northern Watch, Operation Round Up reported aiding 20 organizations, the new ZR 440 Arctic Cat snowmobile was unveiled; and four craft shows were scheduled in Thief River Falls.

Is the Thief River a river or a ditch, according to the November 19 edition of The Times. The MECC board was also planning to pursue funding to restore items cut from the project.

In the November 22 edition of the Northern Watch thin ice on the rivers was causing concern. Traffic across the river near the Thief River Falls dam was closed. After 58 years of business in Thief River Falls Bjorkman's Clothing was preparing to close its doors for the last time. The Red Lake Band was preparing to enter the cranberry business.

In the November 26 edition of The Times, School District 564 was beginning to add staff after the referendum passed in the last election. Jim Bensen, president of Bemidji State University, addressed the need for education in a world of change at a meeting at the Best Western in Thief River Falls.

Clearcutting of trees along State Ditch 83 was halted, according to a story in the November 29 edition of the Northern Watch, and, Lucy Aasland's quest to find information about her brother who died in a POW camp was paying off.

December

In the December 3 edition of The Times, Pennington County Commissioners had approved a Sewage and Wastewater Treatment Ordinance, and expressed an interest in a housing facility for low-risk prisoners.

The first of several articles on the plight of area dairying appeared in the December 6 edition of the Northern Watch. Ernest Swanson and his collection of cribbage boards, was also featured.

In the December 10 edition of The Times, more details about the Grad Rule about to be implemented in School District 564 were released; the number of businesses with employees and the number of such employees in Pennington county in 1995 declined; the Salvation Army was ringing in the holiday season; little interest was shown in tax hearings; and several holiday concerts were being planned.

Mrs Olson's Scandinavian Lefse was featured in the December 13 edition of the Northern Watch. Also included in this edition, was a story about snowmobile thefts and an accident that left an area man in a comma; and the effect of off-farm work on dairying.

The funeral for N. Quentin Jones, long-time educator and coach, was announced in the December 17 edition of The Times. Also included in this edition, the Pennington County Family Preservation Center opened its doors, and the city council heard plans for the dredging of the reservoir.

In the December 20 edition of the Northern Watch, a census of agriculture was underway; NCTC was included for $4 million in the governor's bonding proposal; Thief River Falls received a $50,000 arena grant, and the sale of dairy cows is "sort of like a funeral" to a local farmer.

Christmas came early to the MECC joint powers board, according to a news story in the December 24 edition of The Times. Bids on the project came in much lower than expected. Also in this edition, electric power deregulation was explained to seniors; and a wolf management meeting had been scheduled for January 5 at NCTC.

In the December 27 edition of the Northern Watch, Red Lake Electric would rebate $200,000 to customers; the Regional Arts council awarded $16,355 in grants; and a story looked at dairy research herds and a major problem in dairying — price.

In the December 31 and final edition of The Times for 1997, a story reported that the city council had thanked Mayor Reeve and certified a $1,184,800 1998 tax levy, and Allen Aaseby's talent as a designer and builder was recognized in a feature story.

Marcia Sylvester makes "Passage through India"

by Kathi Carlson
Times Reporter

"India assaults a person's whole being. Every sense is assailed the moment you step out of the plane. I saw sights unlike any I've ever seen, smelled odors I hope to never smell in combination again, tasted spices I would love to taste repeatedly, longed for the serenade of nature but instead heard cars, buses, trucks, horns and a cacophony of human voices. If that wasn't enough sensual stimulation, each day enveloped me with a blanket of heat and humidity."

These are the words and impressions of Pastor Marcia Sylvester who spent 15 days in November visiting India with a study group from Lutheran World Relief.

Marcia and her husband Gaylen are the pastors at Redeemer Lutheran Church in Thief River Falls and Black River Lutheran Church of rural St. Hilaire. The Sylvesters have a 15 year old son, John, who is a student at Lincoln High School. They have also opened their home to several foreign exchange students and currently have Roma from the Ukraine with them.

Marcia loves to travel and says Gaylen is just as happy to remain close to home. When Roma was dismayed by the announcement of her trip to India, John said, "Oh, it's all right. She does this all the time." Marcia has previously traveled to Central America, Mexico and the Middle East. She saw the information about the trip to India in an ad in a church publication.

Marcia describes Lutheran World Relief as "an arm of the Lutheran Church," both the Evangelical Lutheran Churches in America and Lutheran churches of the Missouri Synod. Rather than go into the various countries around the world with programs of its own, Lutheran World Relief (LWR) works with and supports agencies that already exist in countries around the world. Much of Marcia's trip was spent visiting the various agencies and projects supported by LWR.

The group met in Amsterdam for a one-day briefing before traveling together to India. The 14 people in the group were from Pennsylvania, Washington, California, Wisconsin, Illinois, Colorado and Minnesota. Two couples made the trip. Ages ranged from 28 to 77 years with three participants over the the age of 70. Marcia described her co-travelers as a "great group." Seasoned travelers, they did not drink the water or eat the food and did not encounter the problems that some less experienced study groups have faced.

During the briefing the group was told repeatedly, "When traveling in India, nothing is certain!" Marcia says that warning proved true over and over during the 15 days in India. Roads were washed out. Air traffic controllers were staging an 'agitation.' Trains were inexplicably two hours late. Traffic was jammed. Speakers didn't show up to make scheduled presentation. One could never be sure of what would happen next."

One-sixth of the world's population lives in India, and of the 950 million people, three-fourths live in rural villages. Geographically, India is only about one-third the size of the United States. The government is a democracy, and more than 1,000 languages and dialects are spoken. Eighty-two percent of the population is Hindu; eleven percent are Muslim; two percent are Christian.

While the caste system is unconstitutional, it still exists. The former "untouchable class" now call themselves "Dalits," meaning oppressed. Approximately 60 percent of the population are of this class.

The group traveled 2,500 miles in ten days, visiting three major cities: Dehli, Calcutta and Mumbai (formerly Bombay), several rural villages and close to a dozen LWR agencies and projects. During her 15-day trip, Marcia boarded an aircraft and traveled by air 11 times.

Marcia says "The beauty of India is in its people and the dress of the women." While the men are attired in western clothes in muted colors, the women wear brightly colored saris of beautiful fabrics that create brilliant splashes of color in the otherwise bleak landscape of India.

While the people of India live in poverty and squalor, they are very hospitable. The American group was ushered by singing and dancing children into each village where they would be greeted by as many as 3,000 villagers. Multiple garlands of brightly colored marigolds were placed around the necks of the visitors who, as is customary, give them back to the children. A woman from the village washed the visitors' hands in a brass vessel, and another woman dried them. The members of the group were gifted with food in each village — a real hardship when the Indians have so little themselves.

The highlight of every Lutheran World Relief (LWR) study tour through India is the visit to the village of Jamkhed to meet Drs. Rajanikant and Mabelle Arole and learn about their work in the Comprehensive Rural Health Project (CRHP).

Founded in 1970 and supported from the earliest years by LWR, the CRHP serves a region of India that was never reached by government health workers or private physicians.

The concept behind the CRHP is to select and train health care workers from the villages who will treat the sick and more importantly, teach the villagers preventive health care.

In each village two men and two women are chosen by their peers to represent their community on a committee which makes health care decisions for their village and ultimateley select their rural health care worker.

The woman chosen to be the rural health care worker for the village goes to Jamkhed where she learns about heath, sanitation and nutrition. When she returns to the village, she is monitored by experienced health care workers until she is comfortable in her role.

In addition to treating disease and illness, the village health care worker shares her knowledge with groups of residents. Often illiterate themselves, the health care workers use many pictures in their presentations because most of their audiences cannot read.

Most of the village health workers come from the lowest classes of Indian society, many known as "untouchables" and shunned from society. The communities were fragmented with Moslems, Hindus and the various castes living separately from each other. With the acceptance of the health care workers, the outcasts are now incorporated into their communities as full and respected members of society.

Over the years scores of women have acquired skill and knowledge in health and development which has helped improve the lives of a quarter of a million people living in 175 villages. Infant mortality has been drastically reduced as young mothers have been taught how to care for their children and keep them on the road to good health.

Through the project, villagers have organized and cooperated to build dams, dig irrigation wells and reforest the hillsides by planting more than 200,000 trees, and land that only 20 years ago was left eroded and barren by monsoon rains now produces bumper crops.

Daycare centers, preschools and schools have been established.

Every year two million Indian children die from dehydration — a complication of diarrhea. A simple rehydration formula of water, sugar, salt and the juice of a lime can prevent nearly every one of these deaths. The recipe for this simple formula is taught to children at the CRHP preschool through the words and actions of a melodic song. The recipe is taught to the youngsters because they often care for their younger siblings as their mothers work in the fields.

While the men of India plant and harvest the crops, the interim field work as well as the care of the home and children is left to women. In addition to these responsibilities, women are encouraged to have an "income generating project." They purchase components to assemble jewelry, toys and other objects which they in turn sell for a profit. Other women sew, paying for the treadle machines in installments. Once their machines are paid off, these women often borrow money to other women to help them get started.

Since 1994 Lutheran World Relief has supported the Comprehensive Rural Health Project's mobile orthopedic appliance unit. Made by Indians from readily accessible materials the limbs are flexible enough for the Indians to sit in their favorite cross-legged postures. The appliances are also affordable — between $14 and $28 — so that all who need them can get them. Each year about 600 people get the new limbs which enable them to walk, ride bicycles and even climb trees.

Marcia pointed out that in India it is believed that if something is free, it has no value. Therefore, all the programs visited require recipients to pay something for the services they receive. Payment is not always monetary. "For example," Marcia said, "at the daycare center parents might pay with a handful of rice at first. Eventually, they may be able to afford to pay with rupees (the monatery unit of India)."

While it sounds like much is happening to improve the lives of Indian villagers, the pace is actually slow in the developing communities and LWR advises donors not to expect quick results.

CRHP founders Drs. Rajanikant and Mabelle Arole have been joined by their daughter, Dr. Shobha Arole, who now serves as the director of the CRHP. She is also a surgeon and renowned authority on snake bite treatment.

Convinced that the principles learned in Jamkhed can be applied elsewhere, the Aroles are sharing their formula of empowerment, education and cooperation with people in Latin America and Africa.

When Dr. Mabelle Arole was asked to address the United Nations, she brought a health care worker from one of the villages with her to make the actual presentation.

The LWR study group also visited Mother Theresa's Home for the Destitute and Dying, her orphanage and the humble mission where her body lies in state in a plain marble vault adorned only with a simple floral wreath.

One of the few tourist attractions visited was the Taj Mahal. The white marble structure is the tomb of Indian ruler Shah Jahan and his wife and was built by about 20,000 workers between 1632 and 1653. Because the marble floors are deteriorating, visitors are required to wear shoe covers. With a photograph, however, Marcia showed how the covers are full of holes — completely defeating their purpose.

With the exception of her purchases from the village women, Marcia did very little shopping. The trip was not a vacation but a learning experience as the group lived among and learned about the people of India.

She returned to the United States with rolls of film that have been developed into scores of photographs and slides. She also has countless more stories and memories to share.

Marcia was "assaulted" by the onset of the busy holiday season when she stepped off the plane at home. Her first reaction was, "Oh, I'm not ready for this!" She reorganized herself quickly, however, and resumed her duties with husband Gaylen at Redeemer and Black River Lutheran churches. Next year, the entire Sylvester family will travel to China and Hong Kong to attend the wedding feast of a former exchange student.

Pastor Marcia Sylvester poses with two toddler orphans at the Missionaries of Charity orphanage in Calcutta, India. Marcia accompanied a study group with Lutheran World Relief in November. The group of 14 people from across the United States visited three major cities, numerous small villages and nearly a dozen projects supported by Lutheran World Relief.

The Taj Mahal was one of the few tourist attractions visited by Pastor Marcia Sylvester during her "Passage to India," with a Lutheran World Relief study group, in November. Most of the groups time was spent living amongst the Indian people and visiting the projects supported by LWR.

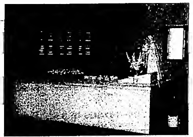
A Comprehensive Rural Health Project health care worker shows and explains the contents of her health care kit. Health care workers from each village are selected by a committee of their peers. They are trained to treat illnesses and disease and also teach preventative health care practices.



This is the simple marble vault that houses the body of Mother Theresa which lies in state at the Mother House of Missionaries of Charity in Calcutta. A sign outside the door of the humble building always said where Mother Theresa was in or out. The sign now reads "Mother Theresa is In" all of the time.

Through the Comprehensive Rural Health Project Indian women are encouraged to have "income generating projects." This woman was able to pay for her sewing machine and help pay for a home for her family. Once they are profitable themselves, many of the workers lend money to others so that they to can buy a machine or materials necessary to get started with an income generating project of their own.

The quilt on this hospital bed in Jamkhed, India was made for Lutheran World Relief and could have been made by busy church quilters in Thief River Falls. A young women holds her prematurely born infant. Under the hospital's care the infant survived and thrived and was able to go home the day after this photograph was taken.

Zion Leisure Fellowship to sponsor blood drive Jan. 21 & 22

Zion Lutheran Leisure Fellowship will sponsor a blood drive from 1 to 7 p.m. on Wednesday, January 21 and from 7 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Thursday, January 22.

Every three seconds, someone needs blood. Every minute, patients use more than 36 units of blood or blood products, and every day, approximately 44,000 units of blood are used throughout the country. For almost 60 years Americans have been donating blood for patients who need transfusions.

The demand for blood is greater today than ever as the nation's supply needs constant replenishing. An estimated 8 million people donate blood in the United States each year. However, many more donors are needed as accident victims, people undergoing surgery and patients receiving treatment for leukemia, cancer or other diseases all utilize blood, and more than 23 million units of blood are transfused each year.

Despite the growing need for donors, less than five percent of healthy Americans eligible to give blood actually donate. Giving blood saves lives, and while scientists are working to develop alternatives, there are no artificial substitutes.

In declaring January 1998 to be National Volunteer Blood Donor Month, President Bill Clinton stated, " For millions of people across the country, the generosity of a volunteer blood donor means the difference between life and death. Donating blood is safe and quick — taking only an hour out of the day. Through this simple precess, donors can bestow on someone in need the precious gift of life."

United Blood Services joins the American Association of Blood Banks in saluting past and present blood donors, and in soliciting new donors. Gladys Hallstrom is the coordinator for the Zion Lutheran Leisure Fellowship blood drive and encourages blood donations from healthy first-time and repeat donors. For an appointment to donote blood, call Gladys at 964-5539.

Jam session January 18 at Heritage Center

Music lovers — musicians and spectators — are invited to attend a jam session at the Heritage Community Center on Sunday, January 18 at 1 p.m.

A Social Security representative will be at the Heritage Community Center on Tuesday, January 20 from 9:30 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Singing and dancing children escorted members of the Lutheran World Relief study group into the villages where scores of villagers welcomed them. The travelers were presented with multiple garlands of marigolds. Village women washed the visitors hands in a brass vessel and others dried them. As is the custom, the floral garlands were given back to the children.

Question of the Month

- Why don't you have more Internet computers? This and the lack of parking are the two items we have heard the most about from the public in the past six months. After quite some time in planning and saving, the library was able to install a computerized workstation in the library this summer that is dedicated to Internet access. It is rarely idle. The most common uses of it are people looking up stocks, doing genealogy research and looking for information for research papers. We have found out that one station is definitely not enough. The library has additional Internet workstations in our long range plan and the local library board has already begun discussions on alternatives for this. It still boils down to funding and making our funding stretch as far as possible for all people who utilize the library -- the Internet users, the book lovers, the information seekers and so on. We realize it is a necessity even though there might be other places that have Internet access for the public. The Extension office also has a public workstation for the Internet, but that is open to the public when the Extension office is open (8 a.m.-4:30 p.m.). The library is, however, open later in the daytime hours and has evening hours and weekend hours. The handicapped accessibility of the library also makes it a good place for such a workstation for the public. In addition, students who come in to use it often are able to find more on the library shelves for their topics. Our staff is trained on the basics of Internet access to help the public get started on their searches. Unfortunately our staff is streamlined so we don't have enough people to help the public on the Internet as much as some people would like. The addition of Internet workstations also affects staffing needs. The need for Internet workstations is an issue on which the library will continue to work and we appreciate all the interest that has been shown in our Internet workstation to this point. If you have not looked into our Internet workstation yet, we invite you to come to the library and investigate it. Also please remember to read the Internet policy posted next to the workstation.

SPEAKING OF...

Sherry LaCoursiere

...Isn't It Too True?

Isn't it funny how somethings things drop into our laps at the very best time? It just so happens that my birthday is coming along (again!) this week and, since I am reaching such a venerable old age, I always feel I should write something about it. I usually try to write something funny, perhaps hoping to alleviate the pain of the ever-increasing pace of the passing of my youth.

But this year, something utterly appropriate for my birthday column dropped right into my lap as I was reading my e-mail last weekend. The author is unknown, but whoever it is must surely be about the same age as I am, because it certainly applies to me (and maybe you, too). Thank you, thank you, unknown author, for stating it so well.

Old Woman

A very weird thing has happened. A strange old lady has moved into my house. I have no idea who she is, where she came from, or how she got in. I certainly didn't invite her. All I know is that one day she wasn't there, and the next day she was.

She's very clever. She manages to keep out of sight, for the most part, but whenever I pass a mirror, I catch a glimpse of her there. And when I look directly into a mirror to check my appearance, suddenly she's hogging the whole thing, completely obliterating my gorgeous face and body. It's very disconcerting. I've tried screaming at her to leave, but she just screams back, grimacing horribly. She's really rather frightening.

I think she steals money from me regularly. I go to the ATM and withdraw a hundred dollars, and, a few days later, it's gone. I certainly don't go through it that fast, so I can only conclude that the old lady pilfers it. You'd think she'd spend some of it on wrinkle cream. God knows, she needs it.

And the money isn't the only thing she's taking. Food seems to disappear at an alarming rate, especially the good stuff. Ice cream, cookies, candy - I just can't keep them in the house. She really has a sweet tooth. She should watch it - she's really putting on the pounds. I think she realizes that, and, to make herself feel better, I know she is tampering with my scale so I'll think that I'm gaining weight too. For an old lady, she's really quite childish. She also gets into my closets when I'm not home and alters all my clothes. They're getting tighter every day.

Another thing, I wish she'd stop messing with my files and the papers on my desk. I can't find a thing any more. This is particularly hard to deal with because I'm extremely neat and organized, but she manages to jumble everything up so nothing is where it's supposed to be. Furthermore, when I program my VCR to tape something important, she fiddles with it after I leave the room so it records the wrong channel or shuts off completely.

She finds innumerable, imaginative ways to irritate me. She gets to my newspapers, magazines and mail before me and blurs all the print. And she's done something sinister with the volume controls on my TV, radio and telephone. Now all I hear are mumbles and whispers. She's also made my stairs steeper, my vacuum cleaner heavier, all the knobs and faucets harder to turn, and my bed higher and a real challenge to climb into and out of.

Furthermore, she gets to my groceries as soon as I shelve them and applies super glue to the tops of every jar and bottle so they're just about impossible to open. Is this any way to repay my hospitality? I don't even get any respite at night. More than once her snoring has awakened me. I don't know why she can't do something about that - it's very unattractive.

As if all this isn't bad enough, she is no longer confining her malevolence to the house. She's now found a way to sneak into my car with me and follow me wherever I go. I see her reflection in store windows as I pass, and she's taken all the fun out of clothes shopping because her penchant for monopolizing mirrors has extended to dressing rooms. When I try something on, she dons an identical outfit – which looks ridiculous on her - and then stands directly in front of me so I can't see how great it looks on me.

She's walking on very thin ice. If she keeps this up, I swear I'll put her in a home. On second thought, I shouldn't be too hasty. First I think I'll check with the IRS and see if I can claim her as a dependent.

Feel free to email me with comments and ideas.

Nursery Rhymes

For hundreds of years nursery rhymes have been thought of as the first "learning games" for young children. The reason is this: that in addition to their poetic value, nursery rhymes are an ideal way to introduce very young children to new ideas and concepts.

Nursery rhymes are perfectly suited to the very young child. They are short, simple and usually deal with the concrete world rather than the abstract. They can also be silly or "nonsense" rhymes which seem to appeal to the older preschooler's sense of imagination.

As you read nursery rhymes to your child, you are giving him or her a solid start in learning to read. Reading experts agree unanimously that children's ability to read and their ability to handle the written language depends upon their prior experience with oral language. Nursery rhymes help provide that experience.

Begin reading nursery rhymes to your child as soon as he or she is old enough to listen. Hold and cuddle your child as you would when reading any book. Your child may not understand what the rhymes are about at first, but he or she will listen and enjoy the experience because you are doing the reading and making it an enjoyable experience.

You can continue to read nursery rhymes as long as your child enjoys them, probably into the early elementary years. Be sure to catch that stage, around four years of age, when he or she develops a fascination with words. Nonsense words and rhyming can turn into a very delightful game. It is during this stage that language development takes a dramatic leap forward.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

Talk about nursery rhymes as you read them. Make up silly words that rhyme: "There was a bork who lived by a zork."

ON THE OTHER HAND

Jessica Krankkala
Lincoln High School

The year seems to be slipping by very swiftly. We have already mastered four holidays and one half of the school year.

Christmas has always been my favorite holiday of the year. It is the celebration of Jesus' birth and an extremely family oriented time. I enjoy all the pride and time people put into the holiday, such as decorating Christmas trees, hanging Christmas lights outside homes, and the warmth and joy of reuniting with friends. The Christmas holiday season is a time for family and celebration.

Our celebration does not end at Christmas. We have a whole new year to look forward to and more times to celebrate. The New Year celebration has just past. New Years is significantly entertaining and exciting. This is the time of year to memorialize what we have accomplished and what the future holds for us.

We have all heard television, the radio, co-workers, school, or acquaintances discuss their desires and New Year's resolutions for the upcoming year. I have never understood the importance of a New Year's resolution. All they are, are a person's basic wants and needs for the future. The majority of the time, these "dreams" seem to be unreachable or unjustifiable and end unaccomplished.

Some very common resolutions are everyday situations such as losing weight, gaining wealth or extraordinary health, or even winning first place in a competition. These everyday resolutions can be accomplished to a certain extent, but most end up failing. For example, my friend Dan said his New Year's resolution was not to be late for any class the rest of the year. He came to class Monday, fulfilling an extremely strong, positive attitude, explaining the great news. He had accomplished his resolution and was very triumphant, but little did he know, his resolution only lasted for a day. The next day, Dan showed up for class two minutes beyond the bell ringing in almost all of his classes. His resolution had been slaughtered, just like my resolution of losing weight. Only, mine lasted for six days.

One other classmate of mine said her New Year's resolution was to come back to school from Christmas break an out-going individual. She sensed a day later that she could not make herself be a different person. Changes must be made from within.

"Resolutions are made to be broken." No matter how hard we try, we, most of the time fail.

"Every day should be lived as a brand new resolution. We should all set incentives and expectations for each day. Taking each day at a time and having standards for ourselves can be more beneficial. I feel that this can be more rewarding than a "once a year resolution."

The holiday season is now over. We have the whole year to look forward to and to make new resolutions. Let's try to accomplish our goals daily, not just once a year.

Helen McKercher, 84

St. Hilaire - Helen McKercher, 84, died Tuesday, January 6, 1998 at New Mexico.

Helen Goins was born on February 17, 1913 at International Falls, the daughter of Roscoe and Svea Goins. The youngest of four sisters and one brother, she vividly remembered a wonderful childhood that included the first cars of her father, riding motorcycle with her brother, skating with her siblings and her childhood dog, Buster.

She attended school in International Falls and later Bible school at Minnehaha Academy in Minneapolis. She earned money for school by washing blankets for the lumberjack camp and noted that her father had to buy her mother a new washing machine when the work was done.

At Bible school, Helen met Emil Allerson, and the couple was married in 1936. Emil was a seminarian, and after they completed their studies, the couple served churches in the Colby, KS area until 1939 when they accepted a call to serve the Thomastown and Compton churches near Wadena. In 1944 they chose to serve the Big Falls and Margie churches near International Falls and in 1946 accepted a call to serve the Covenant Church in St. Hilaire. After Emil's death in 1949 Helen continued to lead the church for six months and then opened Helen's Cafe in St. Hilaire.

Helen met Irving McKercher, a long-time St. Hilaire area farmer, and they married in 1951. The couple farmed until Irving's death in 1976. Helen then lived in St. Hilaire and Thief River Falls but continued to spend her days on the farm. For the past year she has resided with her granddaughter in Espanola, NM.

Helen requested that no funeral service be held and that the money instead be given to the fight against muscular dystrophy as she prayed for a cure and miracle for her granddaughter.

She will be remembered at the Presbyterian Church in Red Lake Falls where Kathy Vatthauer will sing some of her favorite songs. Terry Skildum will remember her in prayers and song at Calvary Lutheran Church in St. Hilaire, and her long-time friend Helen Dahlstrom will remember her at the Covenant Church in Thief River Falls.

Because she touched people of many cultures and religions she is also being honored by them. The Koran will be read in its entirety in Teheran, Iran where Helen is being honored by the family of Toufigh Fazlollahi. Candles in her remembrance will be lit in Odesso in the Ukraine, and the Penitentes of Espanola are gathering to say the rosary in her honor.

A private service of song and scripture will be held by her immediate family at the Chimayo Presbyterian Church at Chimayo, NM. Wrapped in a shroud, Helen's body will be cremated and her ashes returned to Minnesota as she wished. Master craftsman and long-time friend Bob Pritchett is making an urn for her ashes.

Left to celebrate her life are her daughter, Alyce Pollick of St. Hilaire; granddaughter, Kristen Pollick of Espanola, NM; nieces and nephews including Ron McKercher of St. Hilaire and Don McKercher of Bemidji; and special friends, Agnes Olson of Thief River Falls and Louella Cease of Bagley.

ON MY MIND

Kim Chadwick-Quade

Clean as you go

There comes a time in the life of a house that thorough cleaning is required. That means that superficial dusting, vacuuming and throwing odds and ends into the nearest closet in preparation for a relative's visit will not suffice. Surface cleaning is just not acceptable.

I'm not sure how the transition from surface cleaning to "tear-the-house-apart" cleaning evolves. But it's something like a lid for the ketchup bottle rolls under the refrigerator and when reaching under to retrieve it your hand catches on a number of highly suspicious items. In fact, it feels as if some creature is building a small, but comfortable nest.

The refrigerator must be moved and cleaned under. Not only is the ketchup cover retrieved, but also a number of children's toys that mysteriously disappeared and a fine collection of dust bunnies.

The rationale of the human being here is: If the refrigerator collected these nice specimens, I bet there are equally charming things under the stove. And so it goes, the cleaning bug stretches to the cupboards where food that was purchased more than a year ago for a special recipe is finally discarded. Plastic glasses, once thought of as souvenirs, meet the garbage can. Microwave-warped whipped topping bowls are also tossed. The cheese grater with the broken handle is forsaken in the hopes of getting a new one.

The cleaning fury spreads to all areas of the house. In the laundry room, a year's supply of empty laundry detergent bottles are recycled. The lonely socks with no partners are disposed of, the hope of finding a match long gone. A layer of lint is scrubbed from all surfaces.

In the bedroom closet, the rule used to be: If it hasn't been worn in the last 10 years - toss it. New rule: If it hasn't been worn in the last YEAR, say "hello" to the rummage sale box. That includes the clothes you're sure you'll be able to wear again after the New Year's resolutions come true. The shoe collection is also scrutinized, most often by the husband who says: "Are you sure you wear all of those shoes?" No rule here; shoes are exempt. Just hide them where he won't find them, like under the bed.

In the living room, a year's worth of 10 various magazines can no longer be stocked under the coffee table. Donate or recycle or use one of the precious garbage bags. A quick look under the couch exposes an entire storehouse of pens, paper clips and misplaced toys. (You can always hope for money.) You feel better knowing that they've been safe and sound during the last year.

The bathroom yields more garbage bags for the curb. Organizing the drawers, closet and medicine chest reveals bottles of dated suntan lotion, oodles of medicinal samples for headaches and indigestion, worn out razors, threadbare towels and lots of hair. (What always amazes me is that it's my hair and I still gag when I have to clean it up.)

A child's room is a prime spot for cleaning. Toys designed for toddlers just don't work for a 7-year-old. There's a treasure-trove of toys missing this and that – and those toys that serve no real purpose except making a mess. These all go out with Friday's trash collection.

The basement and garage are also a haven for trash. Anyone who loves to throw things away will be content here. These locations harbor all the items you didn't know what to do with during the last few years. "Just throw it in the garage (or basement)" is a common phrase at our house.

But there comes a time in the life of house that things must become clean and organized. The house looks oh-so-good when it's finished and you wonder why it can't look this good all the time. I know why: It's way too much work.

Q&A SOCIAL SECURITY

Provided by the Social Security District Office in Grand Forks, ND

Q: I am a legal work authorized alien residing in the United States and my family is here with me. How do I get a Social Security Number (SSN) for my children for tax purposes?

A: In short, you do not. While it is correct that all dependents including those born in 1997 will require an IRS tax ID number, which is usually the Social Security Number, the Social Security Administration can no longer issue a SSN merely for tax identification purposes. To obtain a SSN a legal alien would need to have their own work authorization. Those individuals needing an alternate tax ID number for themselves or family members should contact the IRS and ask for the IRS form W-7.

Q: What is a representative payee? My mother recently entered a nursing home and someone there asked me if I was her payee.

A: Representative payee is the Social Security designation for a person receiving SSA checks on behalf of someone else. For example, when a minor child is eligible for Social Security we would send their checks in care of the legal guardian or someone responsible for the child's care. That person is the representative payee. Adults who are unable to direct the use of their checks also have payees appointed for them by the agency. A payee is responsible for making proper use of the person's SSA check and must file a report when requested detailing how the clients benefits were used. A key factor in assessing the need for a payee revolves around the persons mental ability to direct the use of their check. Living in a care facility does not mean that someone such as your mother needs a payee. Living in one's own home does not rule out the possibility of having a payee. It is a very individual assessment based on medical opinion and other items. When needed, a preferred payee would be a legal guardian and then various family members with preference given to those with whom the person lives. Social Security does not recognize power of attorney statements.

Sleepless Sun
by Eeva Young

My eyes opened to the deep darkness of the linen closet. I had to sleep there because my young body couldn't adjust to the midnight sun. It was summer in Kuhmoinen, Finland, and during the night-time the sky gets dim, but the cool face of darkness never shows itself until winter. The hazy sun lolls lazily about ten degrees off the horizon during the night and creates a misty unreal sensation that feels like something's not quite right. The morning sun never turns the sky a flaming orange, but simply rises and turns into a more distinct bright circle.

I opened the laundry door and sunlight met my face. I took off, not bothering to change out of my night-clothes, and ran into a pair of dirty, blue thongs. I slapped to the front porch and shut the door. Flying down the five concrete steps, I burst into the morning. The sweet, brisk air made my throat tingle, and I swallowed large, greedy gulps.

"Today will be the day. I KNOW today will be the day!" I informed the gray tabby cat wrestling with the dewy grass. I scuffled onto gravel and reached my destination. I unwired the door and was met by a familiar flock of brown and white feathered friends.

"How're you ladies doing this morning? I bet you laid lots of eggs as a going away present for me, didn't you?" Their cynical black eyes winked at me as they chuckled and rasped their morning greeting. My stealing fingers searched straw until the answer was clear. I would not be tasting fresh-from-the-farm eggs this summer. As I let myself out of the coop, I consoled myself with the half-hearted thought that they couldn't possibly taste that much different from store bought eggs.

thin synthetic airplane pillow, I heard a metallic rattle behind me and guessed that the stewardess was coming. I grinned inwardly as I pictured her with dark hair molded into a high bun and her makeup clownishly done.

"Excuse me, what would you like to drink?" she cooed and blinked her doe eyes at me. I couldn't help but notice the two silly spots of color standing out in her pale face, and I desperately suppressed a giggle.

"Sprite, please." I turned my face up to her. Ice sloshed in the plastic Northwest Airlines cup, and a few fizzling droplets escaped as she handed it to me.

"There you go," she said through a rubbery, red smile. I took a small sip of the pop and looked out the window. Swirls of dream-like mist danced in odd shapes as we whooshed by. I thought about the country I was leaving and how my mother had grown up there. She has told me that some of the best times of her life were spent on the farm. She believes Finland is the most wonderful place and is sure to remind Marju and me of that whenever she can.

Her dream is to "hook up" my sister and me with a man from Finland. She teases me about the boy who works in the village store by the farm. She tells me he's going to be a pilot, which is perfect because he could give our family a discount on tickets. I laughed into my Sprite. Mom is truly 100% Finnish—from her love of steamy, boiling saunas to her passion and dedication to her country....

The double-decker plane descended, and though I had been to Finland several times before, I felt nervous anticipation. I looked at the scenery below me. Tall, dark pines seemed to form an ocean that flowed over the whole countryside. The swells of the wavy hills covered Finland in a deep green water. I was glad that for the first two weeks Mom would stay with me before leaving back to the U.S. I couldn't believe that for the next three months I was going to be a foreign exchange student in Helsinki. Since I was only 13, I would stay with relatives and go to school with my cousins.

My mom's cousin, Eila, greeted us at the airport with enthusiastic warm bear hugs. She shot rapid-fire Finnish phrases and informed us that we were just in time for the Presidential election. Mom went wild with excitement. Eila told us about the candidates, and I thought Mom would fall over with a heart attack. For the first time in Finnish history there was a possibility of having a female President.

That night we watched the hot

One candidate, Elizabet Rehn, was a perky 40-ish woman with short, curled under blonde hair and an easy smile. At the other end of the battlefield was Martti Ahtisaari, a short, extremely obese, ugly man in his fifties. Mom and I laughed until tears dribbled down our cheeks, and we clutched at our tummies with agony as we joked about Ahtisaari. We dubbed him "Weasel."

The next morning I woke up and went shopping. Soon I was surrounded by avid Rehn supporters. They armed me with buttons and flyers to help with her campaign. I gave one to Mom, and she immediately put it on. I think she might have even worn it to bed.

In only one short week it was election day, and I went with my proud mom to vote for Rehn. That night the TV was our life-support. At first it wasn't eventful because the votes were practically even. After an hour, Martti clawed his way into the lead. Mom sat rigidly in her chair. I wasn't nervous; Elizabet was sure to win. I munched on chips and read an Archie comic in Finnish. Another hour passed. I lost my confidence, and mother's mouth became a pinched, tight line. It came down to the final moment and Martti Ahtisaari was announced Finland's new President. Mom shut off the TV and went to finish packing for her trip back to the U.S.

The announcement for the start of the in-flight movie crackled loudly over the intercom. It was "City Slickers." It didn't interest me, so I picked up one of the magazines in the seat pocket in front of me. I skimmed the contents, but soon became bored. When I glanced up at the screen, cattle and calves were moving down a trail....

Marju and I were so excited. One of the cows was expecting and was due any time. We made our Uncle Tapsa promise he'd get up when the time came for it to be born. That night we went to bed with our heads filled with dreams of our soon-to-be pet. Tapsa gently shook us awake from our happy visions at about 4 a.m.

"Tytot lehmon vauva on tulossa." We leapt awake. The baby calf was arriving!

We stepped into Santa Claus sized boots and wormed into large brown coveralls to protect our flowered nightgowns. We clomped to the barn and were met by a swelling brown cow shifting uneasily from side to side. Every few minutes she reminded us of her situation by letting out nervous low moans. We positioned ourselves about ten feet away from the cow. Her eyes were slightly rolled, and we could make out the thin, red blood vessels in the white expanse of her eyes.

I reached for Marju's hand. Tapsa made a bucket of warm soapy water and prepped the cow for birthing. Sirpa, our aunt, made another bucket of water for her to drink. The uncomfortable cow moaned hot gusts of air from her sweating nostrils. A red, mucus string made its way to the cement. Finally a nub made its appearance. Degree by degree it slowly shaped into a wet miniature head. The eyes were shut, and the fur was matted in liquid and blood.

Tapsa tugged on the tiny form. I felt Marju's hand shaking. An echoing groan came from the mother as the full calf came into view. Then it lay motionless and shiny on a clean pile of straw. I heard loud, sloppy slurping and saw that the new momma was more interested in water than she was in her baby. Sirpa came with another bucket of refreshing water.

"Tapsa, is it a boy or a girl?" I asked warily, not sure if I wanted to know. It had to be a girl, because Tapsa is a dairy farmer, and if it was a boy it would be fattened and killed. I didn't want my pet to become ground beef. He looked distractedly up and muttered that it was a girl. I turned to Marju excitedly. "It's a girl! What should we name her?"

"Princess," she said firmly.

"No ...that's too sissy," I retorted with big sister bossiness.

"How 'bout Tiny, because she's so small?" she ventured.

"Ohh, that's cute. I think it fits her perfectly," I murmured and looked with sheer adoration at my perfect calf.

"I wonder if we can pet her yet?"

"She's kind of slimy, maybe we should wait. I think Tapsa's cleaning her up or something."

Tapsa was pawing at the clear mucus covering Tiny's muzzle. Suddenly he covered her mouth and breathed forcefully into her nostril. Sirpa pressed on Tiny's wet chest. Tapsa blew again. Marju and I watched while Tapsa and Sirpa stared at the calf, waiting for something.

"Is anything wrong, Tapsa?" Marju tugged on his brown sleeve. He kneeled and leaned back on his haunches and wiped his forehead.

"She's dead...." he said with careful tenderness.

"Why?" Marju looked perplexed. "She was just born."

"It sometimes happens that calves drown in the mucus around their nose while being born. This one took too long being born, and it couldn't breathe."

I turned and ran out of the barn. I thought of all the fun we could have had feeding and playing with Tiny, and I felt sick to my stomach. As I ran into the yard, I noticed the sky. It was a clear, cloudless dawn and a gorgeous golden hue stained the horizon. It was a picture of heaven. The Paaskynen (the Finnish Lark) made a light twittering from a tree. The air tasted crisp, but I wished it were bitter. And I was angry at the sky, too. At least it could have been raining.

Later that morning, while Tapsa was eating breakfast, I went out to the yard. I gathered all of my favorites, Keilo (Lily of the Valley), Horsma (a flower with white sprigs) and Paivankakkara (daisies) for Tiny. I bravely went into the barn and laid my tribute on Tiny's stiffening body.

I swirled my fork around in the plastic airplane food. I'd lay odds that when I get back home we'll get a call from Tapsa, and he'll be laughing and watching the morning sun, while eating his breakfast of fresh, scrambled eggs.

Relaxing my head against the Separation of Church and State

"Separation of church and state." Here is a term that is used quite frequently in our society today, almost to the point of abuse. Okay, pop quiz: Where in the U.S. Constitution or in the Declaration of Independence is this phrase located? Look hard! Well, no matter how hard you look, you will never find this phrase in the Constitution or the Declaration of Independence. Why? It was never in there to begin with!

This phrase has its origin in a letter written by Thomas Jefferson in 1802 to a group of Baptists in Danbury, Connecticut, who were concerned that the federal government had intentions of establishing or favoring a national religion. In the letter he was explaining that the purpose of the First Amendment was to keep government out of people's religious liberties (which were God-given anyway), thus building "a wall of separation" between church and state. Incidentally, Thomas Jefferson had no influence in the writing of the First Amendment.

The First Amendment states: "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof..." I don't think our forefathers could have made themselves any more clear than they did here. This amendment says nothing about religion being kept out of government, only that the federal government cannot establish any religion, and just as importantly, the federal government cannot restrict someone's religious exercise.

Wasn't religion and freedom to worship God one of the main reasons our ancestors came to this country? When establishing their colonial governments, they made them with the specific design to protect religious freedom. Constitutional attorney John W. Whitehead states, "The First Amendment provides freedom for debate between the two candidates

religion, not freedom from religion."

Now we are paying the price for our ignorance and apathy toward this matter. The U.S. Supreme Court has banned the posting of the Ten Commandments in schoolrooms. It is also "unconstitutional" for any student to pray over his lunch, or for a war memorial to be made in the shape of a cross, or for a class to ask in an assembly whose birthday is celebrated at Christmas. The list goes on and on.

It seems interesting that after this decision in 1962, America has been directly affected in a number of alarming ways. Since 1962, the average SAT scores have dropped by over 80 points. Abortions (which had been on the decrease) now average 1.7 million annually, violent crime has now increased to unprecedented levels. More than 50 percent of marriages end in divorce. We have gone from being the greatest creditor nation in the world to being the greatest debtor nation in the world. National productivity has decreased 80 percent. One million high school students drop out of school each year. Prior to 1962 most high school students who started high school completed it. Also, prior to 1962, only 4 percent of high school students had tried drugs, as compared to 80 percent in 1990.

Shouldn't these startling statistics alone be enough to tell us that religion should not be taken out of American society, including her government. Consider George Washington's attitude toward the modern interpretation of "separation of church and state" in this quote from his Farewell Address: Of all the dispositions and habits which lead to political prosperity, religion and morality are indispensable supports. In vain would that man claim the tribute of patriotism who should labor to subvert these great pillars of human happiness...

We would like to thank everyone for the many acts of kindness we received during this trying time. Perhaps you stopped by to visit, telephoned or sent a letter to Betty during her illness. Perhaps you brought over food, sent a lovely card, or sat quietly in a chair, Perhaps you sent flowers or a funeral spray, If so we saw it there. Perhaps you spoke the kindest words, As any friend could say, Perhaps you were not there at all, Just thought of us that day, Whatever you did to comfort Betty or console our hearts, We thank you so much whatever the part.

1998 Small Grains Institute is moving from Crookston

Because of the impending sale of the Red River Valley Shows building in Crookston, the 1998 Small Grains Institute is being moved to the South Forks Pavilion at 1726 South Washington Street in Grand Forks, ND.

The Institute had been held at the Crookston site for the past seven years, according to Tracy Sayler of the Minnesota Wheat Council office in Red Lake Falls. Dates for the 1998 event will be March 4 and 5.

"The SGI board of directors is excited about further growth now that the show will be in Grand Forks," Sayler said. "The South Forks Pavilion will mean more comfortable surroundings for all participants, and we look forward to even greater numbers of crop producers from throughout the region."

The Institute is a farm show with an educational program and exhibits that focus on northern-grown crops, particularly small grains. Its board of directors includes crop producers, agribusiness and extension leaders from Minnesota and North Dakota.

Topics of the 1998 show include crops to consider in a small grain rotation, crop pests to scout in 1998, applying fungicides more effectively, putting the 1998 marketing plan in place, El Nino and tips to avoid fusarium head blight (scab). The keynote address will be on the topic of "The Executive Farmer of the 21st Century."

Workshops for 4-H judging are set in NW area

Workshops to provide information to persons interested in judging 4-H project entries at county fairs in northwest Minnesota have been scheduled in Greenbush, Thief River Falls and Baudette.

"If you enjoy young people and you enjoy the fair, come and learn about the judging process," states Van Swanson, Pennington county extension educator. "We are looking for potential judges for our county fairs. Come and see if 4-H judging is for you. Participants will discover the philosophy behind 4-H judging, understand the ribbon placing system and be given the opportunity to practice judging."

Schedule for the workshops—all at 7 p.m.—is Thursday, January 15, at the Greenbush school library, Thursday, January 22, at the Pennington county courthouse meeting room; and Tuesday, February 3, in Baudette at a site to be determined and announced later.

Facilitating the training are extension educators in the Northern Lites cluster. Each workshop will last approximately an hour and a half and there is no cost for the training.

To register, call the appropriate county extension office so that registrants can be notified of cancellation in case of inclement weather. The numbers are: Roseau, 463-1052 or 1-800-450-1052; Pennington, 683-7030 or 1-800-681-2116; Lake of the Woods, 634-1511 or 1-800-493-1511.

Magazine selects ZR 600 Snowmobile of the Year

Arctic Cat's Model ZR 600 EFI has been selected as "Snowmobile of the Year" by SnowGoer magazine editors in the March 1998 issue.

"...the choice was loud, clear and unanimous," the article stated, noting that for a snowmobile to be considered for the recognition it had to "mark a point in history upon which the industry can look back and see a major change in direction."

Commenting on the mix of technology and styling, SnowGoer said the ZR 600 EFI is "...a great example of the type of torque-filled, twin-cylinder trail rocket that is sweeping the industry." It also commented on the sled's awesome motor, exclusive batteryless EFI system, new clutching and lightweight aluminum AWS V front, which it termed "the best handling front suspension ever developed."

Also making the magazine's Top 10 list were the ZL 500 and Jag 340.

"The bottom line is this," the magazine editors wrote. "This season, beyond any doubt, is the Year Of The Cat, and this Cat (ZR 600) is the pick of the litter."

The effort was organized by Digi-Key sales representative Ruth Wilkinson. "It was fun," she said. "Our group donated the teddy bears in lieu of giving each other secret Santa Christmas presents. We decorated our area with the collected teddy bears to help promote the drive, which encouraged other Digi-Key employees to contribute as well."

Receiving the bears were the Minnesota State Patrol, Pennington County Sheriff's Department, Goodridge First Responder, Grygla First Responder, Middle River First Responder, Newfolden First Responder, Oklee Ambulance, Plummer Fire & Rescue Squad, Red Lake Falls Ambulance, St. Hilaire First Responder and Tri-County Ambulance.

"We've handed out one teddy bear per trooper," said Captain Dick Wittenberg of the Minnesota State Patrol, District 3200. "We all like the program and are amazed at the affect the teddy bears have on children. As the children cling to the teddy bears, they are calmed down and able to take their minds off what is happening around them. We have not received any new teddy bears in two years and we're thankful to replenish our stock."

Pioneers lose close games

■ NCTC women open MCCC schedule

Northland's 1997-98 Minnesota Community College Conference Northern Division women's basketball debut resulted in a pair of close weekend setbacks on the road for the Pioneers, who fell to Mesabi 56-54 Friday night in Virginia and lost to Vermilion 59-54 Saturday afternoon in Ely.

"We didn't play very well Friday," admitted Northland coach Rick Nikunen. "We were real slow-footed. We played better the next day. We always play better on Saturday on these weekend trips when we get our legs."

The Pioneers, who are 4-5 overall, will be at home for a pair of Northern Division games this weekend as they meet Hibbing Friday at 6 p.m. and play Rainy River Saturday at 1 p.m.

Mesabi..............................56
Northland..........................54

It was another close encounter of the basketball kind when Northland and Mesabi hooked up. The Pioneers won 60-59 when the two met in the finals of the Northland Invitational back on Dec. 20, but the Norsemen won the division-counting rematch 56-54 Friday.

Mesabi led 31-20 at halftime. Northland still trailed by six with 58 seconds to got, but tied it 54-54 on a basket by Jamekka Lucas with 11 seconds left.

That left Mesabi enough time, however, to get the ball down the court and into the hands of Michelle Madison, who hit a 15-foot jumper with four seconds to play for the tie.

Tammy Nerby scored 14 points, Jenny Johnson 11 and Lucas 10 for the Pioneers. Carrie Cossalter collected 17 points and Madison had 16 for the Norsemen.

Northland was 22-for-52 from the field (42 percent) and 9-for-14 at the free throw line. Mesabi went 25-for-75 from the floor (33 percent) and 5-for-11 at the line. The winners had a 46-39 rebound advantage, with 21 of them coming on the offensive boards. The Pioneers topped the turnover figures 21-17, with 17 of those occurring in the first half.

Vermilion..........................59
Northland..........................54

Vermilion erased a 27-21 halftime deficit and held off Northland at the end to claim a 59-54 Saturday matinee win.

The Pioneers managed to chop the difference to a single point with 2 1/2 minutes to play, and had the ball with a chance to take the lead. But a turnover, followed by a 3-point basket by the Ironmen all but sealed Northland's fate.

Carrie Vobian scored 17 points and 6-4 center Latrice Taylor had 12 for Vermilion. Northland countered with a 17-point game by Naomi Wilebski and 11 from Darlene Nelson.

The Pioneers shot 38 percent from the field (20/53) and made 13 of 20 free throw attempts. The Ironmen shot 35 percent from the floor (24/68) and went 5-for-8 at the line. Vermilion finished with a 42-41 rebound edge, and Northland had more turnovers, 20-19.

Philip Hermanson of Thief River Falls tipped Tony Page of Fertile-Beltrami on his head while maintaining control of his opponent during Thursday's high school wrestling duel. Hermanson won the 140-pound match 9-4, but the Falcons beat the Prowlers 54-20.

Gators fall in three overtimes

Three overtimes were needed Friday before Tri-County could lay claim to a 73-66 boys high school basketball win over host Badger/Greenbush-Middle River.

"It was a good basketball game," said Badger/Greenbush-Middle River coach Eldon Sparby. But it was a game the Gators could have easily put away in regulation time, he admitted.

Badger/Greenbush-Middle River had a five-point lead and was at the free throw line with one minute left in the fourth quarter. However, a 1-for-6 showing at the line over the final 60 seconds cost the Gators dearly.

With five seconds left and his team down 46-45, the Wildcats' Travis Hjelle made one of two free throws to force overtime.

A 3-point basket by the Gators' Jeremy Vacura created a 57-57 first-overtime tie, producing another four-minute period.

It was still deadlocked 59-59 as Badger/Greenbush-Middle River worked the last minute off the clock for a final shot. But a turnover took that opportunity away, and Tri-County wound up missing a potential game-winning shot.

In the third overtime, the Gators' fate was all-but-sealed when, on three consecutive possessions, they worked the ball inside, only to miss three lay-ups. Tri-County then pulled away, thanks to four free throws and a 3-pointer by Seth Olson in the last minute-and-a-half.

"We blew it," acknowledged Sparby. "We should have won it in regulation time and we had a great opportunity to win it in the second overtime."

Tryg Spilde of Tri-County led all scorers with 29 points, while Olson hit a half-dozen 3-point baskets en route to a 27-point night.

"Spilde and Olson played outstanding basketball games," noted Sparby.

Badger/Greenbush-Middle River was led by Adam Holmes with 16 points, Shane Nelson 15 and Daryl Wockenfuss 10.

The Gators were 24-for-56 from the field (43 percent) and 12-for-22 at the free throw line. The Wildcats went 25-for-71 from the field (34 percent) and 17-for-27 at the line. Badger/Greenbush-Middle River had a 41-36 rebound advantage, but also had more turnovers, 21-13.

"We turned the ball over a few too many times," noted Sparby, whose team fell to 5-3.

Bemidji girls win 57-54...

Final quarter edge lifts Jacks by TRF

Bemidji gained a fourth quarter edge and held it down the stretch Saturday as the Lumberjacks beat host Thief River Falls 57-54 in girls high school basketball.

It was close all the way. The Prowlers had a 13-8 first quarter lead; the Lumberjacks pulled ahead 23-22 at halftime; and it was a 42-42 tie through three quarters.

"In the first and third quarters, our shooting was okay, but in the second and fourth quarters our percentages went down," explained Thief River Falls coach Jeff Loe.

Bemidji's size advantage was a factor, according to Loe. "Their size intimidated us defensively," he said. "They made it hard to get inside."

Nicole Kopari of the Prowlers led all scorers with 20 points. Teammate Taya Hunt netted 11. The Lumberjacks' balanced attack featured Kendra Goetz and Tracey Depew with 12 points each, and Amy Enerson with 11.

Thief River Falls was 16-for-58 from the field (31 percent) and a productive 21-for-29 at the free throw line. Bemidji went 22-for-59 from the floor (36 percent) and 13-for-28 at the line. The Lumberjacks finished with a 30-21 rebound edge, and the Prowlers topped the turnover charts, 14-11.

The loss left the Prowlers 4-7.

Nelson scores 30, Wolverines defeat Cougars by 64-30

Jenny Nelson converted Kittson County North mistakes into points Friday as Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke beat Kittson County North 64-30 in a girls high school basketball game played at Goodridge.

Kittson County North turnovers and Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke steals set up numerous fast break lay-ups for Nelson, a 5-4 senior guard who finished with 30 points. She was the game's only double figure scorer.

"Jenny had a nice game," said Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke coach Mike Gast. "We played well. We came out a little slow, but we picked it up and did a pretty good job."

The Wolverines turned a 12-7 first quarter lead into a 36-14 halftime spread and opened up a 54-16 third quarter gap.

Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke was 31-for-65 from the field (48 percent) and 2-for-6 at the free throw line. Kittson County North put up just 33 shots, making 11 of them (33 percent). The Cougars were 6-for-11 at the line. The winners had a 37-26 rebound advantage.

MCC boys pull away for win

Marshall County Central secured a Friday night boys high school basketball win over Red Lake Falls with a fourth quarter breakaway that turned a four-point lead into a 69-46 victory at Newfolden.

The Nordics had narrow quarter leads of 18-15, 34-28 and 46-42 before out-scoring the Eagles 23-4 over the final eight minutes.

"It was close until the fourth quarter," confirmed Marshall County Central coach Ron Ueland. "Then they (Eagles) quit hitting their shots."

Did the Marshall County Central defense have anything to do with the Red Lake Falls final period offensive shutdown that failed to produce a single field goal? "You would like to think so," offered Ueland, "but in situations like that, it's normally a combination of things."

Jon Donarski scored 20 points and Matt Nelson had 17 for the Nordics, who improved to 8-3. "We're playing pretty solid basketball," acknowledged Ueland. "We're playing steady, keeping the turnovers down and playing solid defense."

Marshall County Central was 28-for-59 from the field (47 percent) and made 10 of 12 free throw attempts. Red Lake Falls was 15-for-48 from the floor (31 percent) and 12-for-16 at the line. The Nordics had a 30-25 rebound edge. The Eagles topped the turnover charts 17-10, with nine of those giveaways coming in the fourth quarter.

Huskies beat Red Lake County Central 63-53...

Goodridge free throws add up

Goodridge scored 21 points at the free throw line Friday en route to a 63-53 boys high school basketball win over Red Lake County Central at Plummer.

Twenty-five of the Huskies' 37 free throws came in the fourth quarter – many of them down the stretch when the Mustangs found themselves in a must-foul situation.

The two teams played to a 10-10 first quarter tie. The Mustangs, behind Mark Lorenson, went into halftime with a 28-25 lead, but the Huskies took over in the third quarter, 47-40.

"We switched presses in the second half," explained Goodridge coach Eric Mickelson. "It got us a couple of turnovers right away, and fired our kids up. It got us on a roll."

Ben Hanson, who was 10-for-12 at the free throw line, scored a game-high 20 points to lead the Huskies' offense. Jared Eidelbes and Jim Scheef finished right behind Hanson in the scoring column with 17 and 16 points, respectively.

Nick Waldal kept Red Lake County Central close with an 18 point game, while Lorenson finished with 11 – all coming in the second quarter.

"It was a good outing for us," said Mickelson, whose team improved to 5-4. Red Lake County Central fell to 3-7.

Because of all the free throws, Goodridge had just 32 field goal attempts. But the Huskies made the most of their opportunities, hitting 20 of them (63 percent). Red Lake County Central was 22-for-55 from the field (40 percent) and 7-for-14 at the free throw line. Red Lake County Central had a 33-32 rebound edge. Goodridge topped the turnover charts 18-17.

Bemidji JV girls down Thief River Falls 41-31

Bemidji started with a 16-4 first quarter lead Saturday and went on to beat Thief River Falls 41-31 in girls junior varsity high school basketball.

The winners were up 20-12 at halftime and had a 32-20 third quarter advantage.

Kim Almquist scored 9 points to lead the Thief River Falls offense.

Grygla-Gatzke streak extended

A close Friday decision and a Saturday blow-out were both added to the losing streak hanging over the heads of the Grygla-Gatzke boys high school basketball team.

Lake of the Woods pulled out a 55-54 come-from-behind victory at Grygla, and host Red Lake Falls won easily, 69-48, as Grygla-Gatzke fell to 2-7 after beginning the year 2-0.

Lake of the Woods..............55
Grygla-Gatzke.....................54

It was a major rally by Lake of the Woods that produced the 55-54 win over Grygla-Gatzke.

The two teams played to a 10-10 first quarter tie. The Bears had a 28-26 halftime edge, but it was tied again, 42-42, at the end of the third quarter.

Grygla-Gatzke opened up a 50-40 lead with three minutes to play, but couldn't put the Bears away.

With 17 seconds left, a steal and a fast break basket by Alex Anderson put the Eagles ahead 54-52. However, the Bears pulled it out when, after a scramble following another near-miss Grygla-Gatzke steal attempt, Rian Berg threw up an off-balance 3-pointer that found the net with one second on the clock.

"Sometimes there is no justice," offered Grygla-Gatzke coach Vern Johnson. "Sure, we messed up by blowing the 10-point lead, but it seems like we just can't catch a break when we need one."

Anderson and Berg shared game-high scoring honors with 24 points each. Jeddah Holte added 12 points to the Eagles' offense.

Neither team shot well, with the Eagles turning in a 32 percent 19-for-60 showing and the Bears finishing with a 29 percent 20-for-69 performance. Grygla-Gatzke was 13-for-23 at the free throw line, where Lake of the Woods went 10-for-16. The Eagles out-rebounded the Bears 37-28, but also had more turnovers, 16-11.

Chris Swendra hit six 3-point baskets in a 20-point game that carried Red Lake Falls to a 69-48 win over Grygla-Gatzke.

The winners led only 14-10 at the end of the first quarter, but they opened up a 35-23 halftime spread and had a 54-36 third quarter cushion.

"We came out and did all right in the first quarter, but they took over and dominated us after that," noted Grygla-Gatzke coach Vern Johnson.

Danny Gagner joined Swendra in double figures for Red Lake Falls with 12 points. Philip Brateng scored 20 points and Alex Anderson had 11 for the visitors.

Grygla-Gatzke was 15-for-44 from the field (34 percent) and 17-for-19 at the free throw line. Red Lake Falls went 28-for-60 from the floor (47 percent) and was a quiet 4-for-6 at the line. B/G-MR press is key in 64-29 win against Cougars

A turnover-producing first half press staked Badger/Greenbush-Middle River to an early lead Monday and the Gators went on to beat visiting Kittson County North 64-29 in girls high school basketball.

The winners had quarter leads of 14-6, 34-10 and 49-18.

Badger/Greenbush-Middle River guards Tiffany Hagen, Tina Sikorski and Merri Reese caused all kinds of problems for the Cougars with their efforts in front of the press before Gators coach Tom Neibauer had his team fall back into a second half zone.

"We had an awful lot of steals in the first half," noted Neibauer. "Our guards work really hard on defense. They did a nice job."

It was the second win over the Cougars this winter for the Gators, who claimed a 67-37 first round decision at the Northland Community and Technical College Invitational a month earlier. Badger/Greenbush-Middle River is 9-2 for the year.

Hagen scored 19 points and Kara Super had 13 for the winners. Kittson County North did not have a double figure scorer.

The Gators were 26-for-60 from the field (43 percent) and 10-for-13 at the free throw line, where the Cougars were 2-for-5.

Wolverines beat MCC second time

First-year Marshall County Central girls head high school basketball coach Alice Dahl said her 1-9 team has improved this year. The scoreboard backed her up Monday. Even though the host Nordics lost a 61-49 game to Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke, the 12-point difference was considerably closer than the 35-point, 74-39 drubbing they suffered at the hands of the Wolverines in the 1997-98 season opener.

"They played with a lot of desire and intensity," said Dahl of her team. "They're improving."

Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke guard Jenny Nelson, who had a 30-point game in a 64-30 win over Kittson County North Friday, followed that with a 28-point performance against Marshall County Central. Kathryn Stanley joined her in double figures with 10 points.

"Jenny shot well from the outside," noted Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke coach Mike Gast. "They weren't all lay-ups."

Miki Waterworth led Marshall County Central with 18 points, while Kristi Kilen had a 14-point, 11-rebound game. Tiffany Bring netted 11 points and Mandi Blawat pulled down 12 rebounds.

The Wolverines, who evened their record at 5-5, led at the quarter stops 17-10, 37-20 and 49-35.

"We can play better, but we played hard," said Gast. "They (Nordics) have really improved."

The Wolverines were 27-for-66 from the field (41 percent) and 7-for-16 at the free throw line. The Nordics went 16-for-49 from the floor (33 percent) and had a 17-for-27 free throw night. The winners finished with a 37-29 rebound advantage.

Four elk harvested in Minnesota in '97

Minnesota's 1997 elk season ended quietly Dec. 14 as the second of two alternate hunts came to a close, and antlerless permits issued to two hunting parties from the Twin Cites area went unfilled. All told, only three of six available permits were officially filled during the 1997 elk season, but four elk were actually harvested.

Two of those were taken during the regular season, which included three separate hunts between Sept. 13 and Oct. 26. A mature 6x6 bull elk was taken Sept. 14 by Lucas Schmidt of Rice on the second day of the bulls-only season. A yearling cow was taken Oct. 4, the eighth day of the second season, by Al Dorseth of Fergus Falls and Scott Fritz of Little Falls. Two antlerless permits went unfilled during the third regular season Oct. 18-26.

During the first alternate season, Nov. 22-30, an early morning hunt didn't go as planned for a pair of hunters from East Bethel, who inadvertendy shot two elk – a mature cow and a spike bull. Around 7:30 a.m. on the day before Thanksgiving, the hunters had located the herd and one of the two took aim at a mature cow, as their permit allowed. The first shot did not down the animal, however, and it took off running. Rest of the herd followed as more shots were fired to bring the cow down. The pair then approached their elk, only to discover a spike bull had also been shot and killed.

The men called the Department of Natural Resources wildlife office at Thief Lake to report the incident. The party was allowed to keep the cow, but the spike bull was confiscated and the hunter who admitted ding the shooting was issued a misdemeanor citation for having an over-limit of big game.

The man pled not guilty at an initial court appearance in Marshall County. Fines and court costs could run as high as $600, and the Marshall County attorney said he intended to seek restitution of $1,000 for the extra elk. If convicted, the hunter could also lose his Minnesota hunting privileges for three years.

During the same alternate season, a second pair of hunters from Forest Lake and Andover were also afield trying to fill a permit for a spike bull. They continued to hunt without success through the end of the season Nov. 30, and their permit remained officially unfilled. Paul Telander, DNR wildlife manager at Thief Lake, then offered the pair the illegal spike bull, which had been preserved in a commercial meat locker. They accepted what, eventually, turned out, to be the last elk taken during the 1997 season.

Minnesota's elk management plan calls for maintaining a herd of 20 to 30 adult animals. The pre-calving population last spring was somewhere between 30 and 34. By fall, the total herd population was estimated to be near 40 animals. Exact counts are difficult to get, even with aerial surveys, because the entire herd is rarely seen together in close proximity. Usually, the elk are sighted in smaller groups spread out over a large area – sometimes several miles apart.

DNR wildlife managers will continue to monitor the herd this winter, and into spring calving season, before deciding whether or not to have a 1998 elk hunting season. That decision will be announced next spring, and, if there is a hunt, applications will be taken through July 17. Exact number and type of permits issued will be based on the size and make-up of the herd as determined this winter and next spring

Thief River Falls Sports Boosters 12-noon Thursday luncheon meeting at the Elks will feature Lincoln High School head basketball coaches Jeff Loe (girls) and Bob Johnson (boys) as guest speakers.

The public is welcome.

DNR hunter education instructor training will be offered at Bemidji

A comprehensive training workshop for new hunter education instructors is being offered by the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources at several sites across the state. The course will certify instructors for the Advanced Hunter Education and Bowhunter Education programs.

The workshops for prospective hunter education instructors are designed to help fulfill the growing demand for hunter education. Minnesota requires firearms safety certification or a previous hunting license for hunters born after Dec. 31, 1979. An increasing number of other states require hunter education or bowhunter education certification for non-resident hunters.

Workshops will deal with topics such as how adults learn; the importance of incorporating fun and involvement in classes; how to instruct peers to gain their respect; how to facilitate seminars using group discussions, brainstorming techniques; and the use of videos and resource professionals in teaching.

In this area, a workshop will be offered Jan. 31-Feb. 1 at Bemidji State University.

A $35 registration fee includes meals and lodging, plus all materials and certification costs.

To register, call toll free in Minnesota at 1-888-MINNDNR.

Northland is swept in division openers

It was a rough start to the 1997-98 Minnesota Community College Conference Northern Division schedule for the Northland men's basketball team. The Pioneers went on the road to begin league play and came home 0-2 following one-sided losses to Mesabi 105-58 Friday night in Virginia and to Vermilion 115-66 Saturday afternoon at Ely.

"Friday was by far our worst game of the year," reported Northland coach Ted Krize. "There was no intensity, no enthusiasm. It was a really disappointing loss."

It was a bit better in the next-day matinee against Vermilion. "The score might not indicate it, but we played better Saturday," noted Krize. "It was a disappointing weekend dropping two games like that, but we're looking for improvement, and I think we saw some Saturday."

Northland, 1-7 overall, will head to Devils Lake tonight (Wednesday) for a game against UND-Lake Region before returning to MCCC play with a weekend series at home – vs. Hibbing Friday at 8 p.m. and against Rainy River Saturday at 3 p.m.

Charges pending in thefts

Six individuals face charges of theft after law enforcement officials broke up a theft ring.

Charges are pending against a 16-year-old male from Newfolden, two 17-year-old males from Thief River Falls, one 17-year-old male from Holt, and one 17-year-old male from Viking. Police are still investigating charges against an 18-year-old male in connection with the theft ring case.

To date, 10 cases involving thefts from motor vehicles have been solved. Those cases include a theft from a motor vehicle on September 1, October 7, and December 18. The charges also stem from thefts from semi trucks on December 30, and on or about December 28. Items taken included cellular phones, CD players and stereos, CB radios, VCRs, TVs, speakers, amplifiers and coins.

The breakthrough in the cases came on December 30 when a sheriff's deputy made a traffic stop in North township at 2:23 a.m. At that time stolen property was recovered from the vehicle. At the driver's residence more stolen merchandise was recovered. Those thefts led to recovery of stolen merchandise at other residences and eventually led to a residence in Marshall county. Charges are also pending in Marshall county where Marshall County authorities are investigating a number of thefts.

Burglary. On January 7 Pennington County Sheriff's department received a report of a burglary and theft at Aaseby trailer court. Taken were three rifles, two handguns, clothing items, games and CDs. Following investigation, a 14-year-old, a 15-year-old, and two 16-year-old males were taken into custody and transported to the Red River Valley Juvenile Center in Crookston for holding. All of the firearms were recovered. The sheriff's department expects to bring charges of felony theft and burglary in juvenile proceedings against all four youth.

Thefts. A 15 year-old male from Thief River Falls faces charges in juvenile proceedings following an investigation into the theft of a cell phone from the Cellular One booth at SuperValu.

On January 6 at 12:58 p.m. police received a report that a computer had been stolen from the Adult Learning Center. The theft loss was estimated at between $700 and $800.

On January 2 police executed a search warrant at a local residence. As a result, a charge of felony receiving stolen property is pending against Aaron John Culkins, 21, Thief River Falls. Two stolen VCRs were recovered.

On January 10 police received a report from Stearns County authorities that a stolen vehicle had been recovered near Paynesville. The vehicle had originally been stolen from Roseau County. The vehicle was found near Thief River Falls by the Minnesota State Patrol and it was towed to a local business. The business was unaware that it was a stolen vehicle and turned it over to a woman who had the keys for the vehicle. The woman was not the owner. Later that same day the vehicle was found near Paynesville and towed to a business where it is being held for the owner.

Vandalism. On December 9 police received a report that someone had broken into a vehicle and had taken stereo equipment. The theft and damage loss was estimated at $835. Upon investigation, two 17-year-old males were charged with theft and criminal damage to property. One male was from Plummer and the other from Brooks.

Drugs. Kenneth Eugene Nord, 22, Grafton, ND, has been taken into custody. Nord was arrested in connection with a drug bust roundup on October 29. According to the criminal complaint, Nord made sales of marijuana in July. On Monday, he was charged with three felony counts of controlled substance crime in the fifth degree. Investigation of the case was conducted by the Paul Bunyan Task Force. Pennington County Sheriff's department has also charged Nord with criminal sexual conduct in the third degree. That charge stems from sexual contact with a 16-year-old female. Bond for Nord was set at $8,000.

Counterfeit. On January 7 at 9:27 a.m. Northern State Bank informed local police that it had received a counterfeit $20 bill which had been turned in with a bank deposit from a local convenience store. Police contacted the Secret Service which confirmed that the $20 bill was counterfeit. The incident remains under investigation.

Accidents. On January 4 at 2:16 p.m. the sheriff's department received a report of an accident on County road 17, one-quarter mile south of County road 8. Richard Jon Gorde, St. Hilaire, was driving a pickup south and turning east. He was also pulling a small utility trailer without operable lights. A Blazer driven by Clair Carl Larson, Thief River Falls, was also driving south and attempted to go around the Gorde vehicle, but the vehicles collided. The sheriff's department estimated damages at $1,500 to the Gorde vehicle, and $2,000 to the Larson vehicle.

On January 6 at 12:02 p.m. police received a report of an accident at Third and Maple. Harold Glen Rindahl, Trail, was driving a van northwest on First Street, when a Jeep driven by Sherrie Lynne Thompson, Thief River Falls, was traveling north on Maple and slid into the intersection. Police estimate damages at $2,000 to the Rindahl vehicle, and $2,500 to the Thompson vehicle.

On January 7 at 8:15 p.m. police received a report of a snowmobile accident in section 30 of Norden township west of Thief River Falls. Shaun Charles Thompson, 26, Thief River Falls, was driving a 1996 Arctic Cougar 550 over a county road and collided with a culvert that goes under Highway 1. There was a post to mark the culvert but the reflector was missing. The sheriff's department estimated damage to the snowmobile at about $5,000. Thompson complained of bumps and bruises.

On January 11 at 5:05 p.m. the law enforcement center received a report of a snowmobile accident in a ditch by Barzen Avenue. Harold Kenneth Dokken, 24, Thief River Falls, driving a 1995 583 FZ Ski-Doo, had just left a friend's house, hit a clump of dirt and lost control. The snowmobile rolled over and onto his foot. His foot was broken in the accident. Damage to the snowmobile was estimated at $1,500.

On January 9 at 4:51 p.m. police received a report of an accident at Eighth and Dewey. Helen Irene Beito, Thief River Falls, was driving a car south on Dewey and had stopped at a stop sign and was preparing to turn, when her car was struck from behind by a car driven by Jamie Renae Bjerklie of Goodridge. Roads were slippery and snow packed. Police estimated damages at $200 to the Beito vehicle and none to the Bjerklie vehicle. A 12-year-old passenger in the Beito vehicle hit his head. Helen Beito complained of neck pain.

Shooting. On January 11 at 12:22 p.m. the sheriff's department received a report of an accidental shooting. A .22 calibre rifle discharged when the 16-year-old male attempted to dislodge the firearm from some branches. The bullet struck his biceps and lodged near his triceps. The Thief River Falls boy was taken to Northwest Medical Center and then transferred to Altru Hospital in Grand Forks, ND. The accident happened in section 34 of Silverton township. The youth and a companion were fox hunting.

Public nuisance. On January 12 at 11:50 p.m. police received a loud noise complaint. Michael Keith Sikkila, Thief River Falls, age 35, was cited for public nuisance.

These reports include names of individuals charged, arrested or cited with various crimes and offenses by police, the sheriff's department or other law enforcement officials. Depending upon the circumstances of a case, charges can be, and sometimes are, changed or dropped by law enforcement officials or attorneys even before the case reaches court. Readers should also realize that under the American system of jurisprudence, individuals charged with crimes are innocent until proven guilty of those crimes in a court of law.

Kelly Egenes in student teaching program at BSU

Kelly Egenes

Kelly Egenes of Thief River Falls is participating in the 1997-98 student teaching internship program at Bemidji State University.

Egenes, a senior English education major, is teaching English in grades 7-12 at Goodridge High school. When asked to describe the program, Egenes said, "It has given me the chance to go into the job market with a full year of actual classroom experience under my belt. It's a great opportunity."

There are two clinical experience options for an education major at BSU: the traditional 10-week student teaching assignment as well as a year-long teaching internship. As year-long interns, the students receive intensive practice in an actual classroom setting while returning to campus on designated days to complete courses needed for a bachelor's degree.

They are assigned to specific school districts across northern Minnesota, training with different classes to gain broad-based experience at all levels of elementary or secondary education. In the fall their actual teaching practice is limited, but by spring quarter they are working as full-time educators.

During the year, students can also obtain pre-k, kindergarten, and middle school endorsements as well as other possible licenses to prepare them for placement after graduation.

In order to be accepted into the internship program, students must meet requirements for entry into the professional education program and must plan ahead for their junior and senior years. Introductory education courses have to be completed prior to the start of the internship and the class schedules are structured to enable the participants to graduate with the rest of their class in the spring of their fourth year.

Pet owners reminded to care for pets

Pet owners are being encouraged to make sure their pets have adequate shelter, food and water during the cold winter months.

Police Investigator Tim Miller reminds residents that, by law, a shelter is three sides and a roof. He also reminds residents who keep their pets outside, that ice is not adequate. They must provide water for their pets.

Recently, a local man was sentenced to serve two days in jail for cruelty to animals after leaving a dog outside without shelter for two days.

Suicide never a result of one single factor

Red Lake County Sheriff's department has recorded five suicides in one year and one month. Three of the suicides occurred in the last three months. Red Lake County is certainly not the only county where suicides or attempted suicides have taken place. The frequency of those events in this small northwest Minnesota county, and other counties however, has certainly attracted attention.

Nearly 95 percent of people who died by suicide were suffering from a psychiatric illness, according to JAMA, a medical journal. SAVE, Suicide Awareness Voices of Education, notes that suicide is never the result of a single factor or event, but rather results from a complex interaction of many factors and usually involves a history of psychosocial problems.

A key aspect and problem is identifying symptoms and individuals who need assistance. The following information was prepared by SAVE as an educational tool.

Symptoms of Major Depression: Not all people with depression will have all these symptoms or have them to the same degree. If a person has four or more of these symptoms, if nothing can make them go away, and if they last more than two weeks, a doctor or psychiatrist should be consulted:

- Persistent sad or "empty" mood;
- Feeling hopeless, helpless, worthless, pessimistic and/or guilty;
- Substance abuse;
- Fatigue or loss of interest in ordinary activities, including sex;
- Disturbances in eating and sleeping patterns;
- Irritability, increased crying, anxiety and panic attacks;
- Difficulty concentrating, remembering or making decisions;
- Thoughts of death or suicide plans or attempts;
- Persistent physical symptoms or pains that do not respond to treatment.

Danger signs of suicide:

- Talking about suicide;
- Statements about hopelessness, helplessness, or worthlessness;
- Preoccupation with death;
- Suddenly happier, calmer;
- Loss of interest in things one cares about;
- Visiting or calling people one cares about;
- Making arrangements, such as setting one's affairs in order;
- Giving things away.

The following frequently asked questions about suicide have been prepared by Suicide Awareness Voices of Education (SAVE):

Why do people kill themselves? Most of the time people who kill themselves are very sick with depression or one of the other types of depressive illnesses which occur when the chemicals in a person's brain get out of balance or become disrupted in some way. Healthy people do not kill themselves. A person who has a depressive illness does not think like a typical person who is feeling good. Their disease prevents them from being able to look forward to anything. They can only think about NOW and have lost the ability to imagine into the future. Many times they don't realize they are suffering from a treatable illness or they feel they can't be helped. Seeking help does not even enter their mind. They cannot think of the people around them, family or friends, because of their illness. They are consumed with emotional and many times physical pain that becomes unbearable. They don't see any way out. They feel hopeless and helpless. They don't want to die but it's the only way they feel their pain will end. It is a non-rational choice. Getting depression is involuntary. No one asks for it, just like people don't ask to get cancer or diabetes. But we do know that depression is a treatable illness and that people can feel good again.

Do people who attempt suicide do it to prove something? To show people how bad they feel and to get sympathy? They don't do it to prove something, but it is certainly a cry for help which should never be ignored. This is a warning to people that something is terribly wrong. Many times people cannot express how horrible or desperate they're feeling. They simply can't put their pain into words. There is no way to describe it. A suicide attempt must always be taken seriously. People who have attempted suicide in the past are at risk for trying it again and possibly completing it if they don't get help.

Can a suicidal person mask their depression with happiness? Many people suffering from depression hide their feelings by appearing to be happy. Can a person who is contemplating suicide feign happiness? Yes, they can. Usually a suicidal person will give clues as to how desperate he/she is feeling. The clues may be subtle and that's why knowing what to watch for is critical. A person may hint that he/she is thinking about suicide. For example, they may say: "Everyone would be better off without me" or, "It doesn't matter, I won't be around much longer anyway." We need to key into phrases like these instead of dismissing them as just talk. It is estimated that 80 percent of people who died of suicide mentioned it to a friend or relative before dying. Other danger signs are having a preoccupation with death, losing interest in things one cares about, giving things away, having many accidents recently or engaging in risk-taking behavior like speeding or reckless driving, or general carelessness. Some people even joke about completing suicide. This behavior should always be taken seriously.

Is it more likely for a person to commit suicide if he/she has been exposed to it in their family or has had a close friend die of suicide? We know that suicide tends to run in families, but it is believed that this is due to the fact that depression and other brain diseases have a genetic component. And that if they are left untreated they can result in suicide. Talking about suicide or being aware of a suicide that happened in your family or to a close friend does not put you at risk for trying it, IF you are healthy. The only people who are at risk are those who are vulnerable in the first place — vulnerable because of a disease called depression or one of the other depressive illnesses. The risk increases if the illness is not treated. Depression plus alcohol or drug use can be lethal. Many times people will try to alleviate the symptoms of their illness by drinking or using drugs. Alcohol and/or drugs will make the disease worse. There is an increased risk for suicide because alcohol and/or drugs decrease judgment and increase impulsiveness.

Why don't people talk about depression and suicide? The main reason people don't talk about it is because of the stigma. People who suffer from depression are afraid that others will think they are crazy. This is not true, but society still hasn't accepted depressive illnesses like they've accepted other diseases. Alcoholism is a good example — no one ever wanted to talk openly about that, and now look at how society views it. It's a disease that most people feel pretty comfortable discussing with others if it's in their family. They talk of the affect it has had on their lives and discuss various treatment plans. And everyone is educated on the dangers of alcohol and on alcohol prevention. As for suicide, it's a topic that has a long history of being a taboo or something that should just be forgotten, kind of swept under the rug. And that's why people keep dying. Suicide is so misunderstood by most people that the myths are perpetuated.

Will talking things out cure depression? The studies that have been done on talk therapy vs. using anti-depressant medication have shown that in mild depressions talking to a counselor may ease some of the symptoms. But it has been proven that in severe depressions talking things out will not cure the illness. It's like trying to talk a person out of having a heart attack. It just won't work. Most of the time, the person also needs medication. Studies have shown that a combination of psychotherapy (talk therapy) and anti-depressant medication is the most effective way of treating most people who suffer from depression.

Why do people attempt suicide when they appear to have been feeling so much better? Sometimes people who are severely depressed and contemplating suicide don't have enough energy to carry it out. But, as the depression begins to lift, they may regain some of their energy but still have feelings of hopelessness. There is also another theory that people just kind of give into the anguished feelings (the disease) because they just can't fight it anymore. This in turn releases some of their anxiety which makes them appear calmer. Even if they do die of suicide that doesn't mean they chose it. If they knew they could have the life back that they had before their illness, they would choose life.

If a person's mind is made up can they still be stopped? Yes. People who are contemplating suicide go back and forth thinking about life and death. They don't want to die, they just want the pain to stop. Once they know they can be helped, that there are treatments available for their illness, it gives them hope. We should never give up on someone just because we think they've made their minds up.

Isn't mild depression the same as the blues? Depression is different from the blues. The blues are normal feelings that eventually pass, like when a good friend moves away or the disappointment that a person feels if something didn't turn out as expected. Eventually the person will feel like their old self again. But the feelings and symptoms associated with depression linger and no matter how hard a person tries to talk themselves into feeling better, it just won't work. It's like trying to talk someone out of having a heart attack. People can't snap themselves out of depression. It's not a character flaw or a personal weakness and it does

Happy New Year!

Bob and Joan Singer, Amy Singer and Danny Berg visited at the Wendt and Cathy Singer home on Christmas Eve. On Friday afternoon Paula and Jeremy May and Ryan Singer of Onamia visited with Cathy and Wendt.

Mrs. Anthony Ness from Emboras visited with Ellie Handy on Sunday afternoon. Ellie together with Mr. and Mrs. Marty Levine, Amber Peoples and Maja Turenne spent Christmas Eve and Christmas Day with Ed and Lyn Turenne at their cabin at Clearwater Lake and all attended a Candlelight Service at the Good Shepherd Church in Clearbrook.

People say "Christmas has come and gone", but has it really gone? Many things remind us of Christmas until the "98" Christmas comes. Many of the gifts we have received may be used every day reminding us of that caring sharing friendly person. Many of the greeting cards bring good and happy news and we read them over again many times. A neighbor runs over with a taste of her fruit cake or some samples of homemade fudge with a sparkle in her eye and a friendly smile. We can't forget the kindness of strangers and we know the world is a better place because of them. There are friends who have had sadness during the year and we are reminded to try to help them with their burden of sorrow so it may seem lighter. There are others in the hospital and maybe a friendly visit or a card may lighten their day and hasten recovery. How lucky we are to live in Gully where there are so many caring people. If some are having a hard time we can remind them there is help from the "One" responsible for all Christmases.

The descendants of Annie and Hans Hanson and their families met at the Gully Community Center at Gully for a noon dinner on Christmas Eve day. After reviewing the Christmas Story while Sanna Gustafson read it and singing of Christmas Carols there was time for some relaxed visiting before going with our separate families to open gifts. Arnold and Sanna went to Thief River Falls for a supper at the Les and Carol Torgerson home with Mauri and Bob and Amanda and Joey Evans, Sanna and Tony Gustafson and Luke Torgerson. This was the first we had seen Sanna Torgerson Gustafson after graduation from UND at Grand Forks. She graduated with a bachelor of Science Occupational Therapy, School of Medicine and Health Science. She was a three star graduate with highest honors. Summa Cum Laude. Sanna and her husband Tony will be moving to Roseau where they will be employed.

Petra Eck and Yvonne Kleinn of Gonvick and Jean Nelson Johnson of Eveleth have visited with June Carlson during the holidays. Jean was Knute Nelson's wife.

Marcelyn Lindstrom, wife of Morris Lindstrom has been so busy getting ready for Christmas that she didn't have time to build up any news items for today but will have them after the holiday. She does a lot of baking and gift wrapping at this time of the year and Morris is being as secretive as most husbands are these last few days before gift opening time.

Elsie Lefrooth who fell on the basement stairs last week is feeling better. Marcelyn Lindstrom and Marlys Lefrooth were up and helped her on Monday.

When we have been shopping Roy has been sort of hinting it I wasn't going to find out what he wants for Christmas but for once I got something and hid it. I also got him a bird house to replace this old weather beaten house that Jenny Wren must be getting tired of trying to look presentable to her neighbors. So we wish you all a very Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year from our house to your house.

This will be the last weather report of Northwest Minnesota in the Strandquist news for 1997 and it is with pleasure that we can say that the only snow is what piled up a month ago. On Christmas Eve the water was puddling along the street curbs and driving to Roseau the roads were dry and fields were bare. The forecast calls for more weeks with above normal temperatures. You can imagine our surprise when we came to go home from Elsie's on Christmas Day to find the car covered with snow. Elsie and I had been "aggravating" Roy and Walter so engrossed in the game that we hadn't bothered to look out and see it coming down. It was a good half inch but the sun has been hard on it today.

Elsie Lefrooth who slipped on the basement stairs a couple of week ago is still just idling around in the house but one of these days she'll shift it into high so she can show how spry she can be at 80 plus.

I was checking the January newsletter from the Bethesda Lutheran Church and it saddened me to think this beloved pastor and his family are leaving this area. They have brought so much joy and consolation to many that were in need of it. This past year from this tiny area, eleven funerals have been held in this church. Their renditions of music have been awe inspiring and we will surely miss them.

Paul and Shirley Anderson enjoyed four days in Orlando, Florida visiting Busch Gardens in Tampa, Sea World and Disney World. Jenny, Kristopher and Kenrick surprised Mom and Dad with the trip in honor of their 25th wedding anniversary.

Gayhard and Irene Nelson had a very nice Christmas Eve supper at Dean Nelson's home in rural Lake Bronson. They also had Christmas Day dinner there and all had an enjoyable time.

Judy and Lois Kleinvachter and Lowell Lefrooth visited Alan and Joan Gehrls at their cabin Sunday afternoon.

Eddie and Marcy Nelson drove to Minneapolis to be with their son Kevin while he went through surgery on December 17 at the Methodist Hospital in St. Louis Park. Kevin will be there for 2 or 3 weeks recuperating. He's getting along well at this time.

Terry Lefrooth, Kelli and Sara of Inver Grove Heights, visited Elsie Lefrooth on Friday, December 19.

Those who were at Eddie and Marcy Nelson's home on Christmas Eve and had dinner with them on Christmas Day were Shawn and Jenny Gorsuch and baby Austin of Salol, Karen Hendrickson, Ernie and Pat Woinarowicz, Nick, Lance and Tron, of Middle River, Jim and Alfred Nelson of Newfolden, Nels and Eva Nelson of Newfolden, Deane Nelson, Chad and Christine and baby Rylie Ann Nelson of Thief River Falls. Austin Davis Gorsuch, a boy born on Nov. 17 to Shawn and Jenny Gorsuch and Rylie Ann Nelson a girl born Dec. 4 to Chad and Christine Nelson are the first two great-grandchildren of Eddie and Marcy Nelson. Congratulations.

On Monday the 22, Jeff and Margaret Donaldson hosted a "Sleep over party" for Alaura and Sara. Their guests were Amanda and Jessica Lefrooth, and Kristine Pettis. After supper they all walked around the neighborhood singing carols which was enjoyed by neighbors and friends. It was such a beautiful night they drove around town to see all the Christmas lights.

On Monday evening Clara Nelson, Alice Thompson, Mary and Donna Renstrom and Elsie Lefrooth were supper guests of Vance and Adrienne Lefrooth.

Christmas Day supper guests at Jeff and Margaret Donaldson's home were Alaura and Sara Donaldson, Vance and Adrienne Lefrooth, Mike, Lisa, Elliott and Allison Lefrooth, Henry, Vanette, Stephania, Zachary, Noelle and Krystine Pettis, Lowell, Loyal, Shelly, Taylor and Emily Lefrooth, Vance Jr., Kelly, Amanda and Jessica Lefrooth, Lois Kleinvachter, Clara Nelson, and Ida Bruce.

Sunday evening Paul and Shirley were part of the Northern Lites Homemakers who met at Ron and Avis Sele's home for their Christmas supper.

Gayhard and Irene Nelson received a phone call on Christmas Day from their daughter Carol DuPre from Spartanburg, South Carolina to wish them a Merry Christmas and say it was warm there.

While in the Cities Eddie and Marcy Nelson were treated to an early Christmas dinner by their son Hugh, who entertained them at a lovely restaurant. They were joined by their grandson Jamie and his friend who live in the Cities.

On Christmas Day after church, Jeff, Margaret, Alaura and Sara Donaldson stopped in to wish Grandpa Harold Donaldson and Jerry a Merry Christmas.

Judy and Lois Kleinvachter visited at the June Kasprowicz home on Thursday evening to have birthday cake with Amanda Lefrooth.

Pearl Thompson and Betsy Thompson visited Elsie Lefrooth on Tuesday. Isaac stayed at home for a few more days.

Irene Nelson visited Bart Kasprowiczs, Randy Nelsons and Brian Nelsons and Myron Nelsons on Christmas morning. That's what all grandmom's wish they could do. Elsie Lefrooth was a supper guest at the home of Donny and Marlys Lefrooth. Melanie Lefrooth of Willmar, is spending a few days there and was also home for supper.

Lowell Lefrooth, June Kasprowicz, Bud and Marie Steffen of Argyle, Claudia Berggren, Amanda and Jessica Lefrooth all visited Elsie Lefrooth on Christmas Day.

Suicide never the result of a single factor

n't have anything to do with willpower. It is an illness.

Why does depressive illness frequently lead to suicidal thoughts? There is a direct link between depressive illnesses and suicide. Depressive illnesses can distort a person's thinking so they don't think clearly or rationally. They may not know they have a treatable illness or they may think that they can't be helped. Their illness can cause thoughts of hopelessness and helplessness which may then led to suicidal thoughts. They just can't see any other way out. That's why it is so important to educate people on the symptoms of depression and other depressive illnesses and on the warning signs of suicide, so that people suffering from these disorders can get the help they need. People must understand that depression and other related illnesses are treatable and that they can feel good again.

Subsidies Can't Save Baseball From Itself

State Representative Kevin Knight of Bloomington has penned an opinion piece regarding the Minnesota Twins and major league baseball that displays unusual legislative perception. Here is what he has to say:

The matter of saving the Twins has received much attention in our state over the last year but it is dwarfed by a much larger problem—saving baseball itself.

As a lifelong baseball fan I did not relish my duty as a state legislator to oppose public subsidies for the Minnesota Twins.

However, I soon realized that even if my principles allowed me to support such a subsidy it wouldn't be enough to save baseball for Minnesota and, in the long run, would only contribute to the spiraling decline of this once proud sport.

By anyone's standards, Major League Baseball is mired in a desperate economic situation that is destroying the game itself.

Salaries this year (1997) increased by 19 percent over last—even though attendance still trails pre-strike levels by 10 percent. Just 22 years ago the average baseball salary was $35,000 per year compared to $1.37 million today.

Combined losses of Major League Baseball teams last year reached $185 million, including about $30 million for the World Series Champion Florida Marlins who are dismantling their team by dumping their high-salaried "mercenary" roster.

The league is also being increasingly divided into the haves and have-nots as teams like the Yankees carry $65 million payrolls compared to the Oakland Athletics, who can afford only $13 million for players' salaries.

Baseball is clearly destroying itself economically from the inside out, but perversely it has been looking outward in a futile search for solutions.

Its answer to declining economic fortunes has not been to repair the economies of the sport, but instead to raid public coffers, a tactic that can only delay the sport's inevitable economic correction.

Interim commissioner and Brewers owner Bud Selig helped write the playbook on taxpayer bailouts when he secured taxpayer subsidies for the most of his new $400 million stadium which is currently $76 million over budget.

Public financing was also the answer in other cities like Chicago, Baltimore, Cleveland, Arlington, Denver and Phoenix.

However, just as everyone knew it someday would, the public subsidy gravy train for professional baseball is now grinding to a halt.

San Francisco residents refused to subsidize a new ballpark for the Giants, and it is now being built privately.

Earlier this month, Pittsburgh area residents defeated a sales tax to subsidize new stadiums for the Pirates and Steelers. And the citizens sent the same message to the legislature which defeated public subsidies in this state.

Baseball is a proud game with a proud heritage and loyal following. Sadly though, in recent years it chose to trade on that pride and loyalty for subsidies to feed its appetite for more money.

Now it has expended too much of the goodwill.

Dwindling support for the game is translating into dwindling patience from taxpayers. Now the bill for baseball's economic malaise is coming due. Unfortunately, it may be that innocent fans of the game will have to share in that cost.

Personally, I am, hopeful that Major League Baseball will realize that subsidies cannot solve their problems in the long run and will take corrective action.

I believe that eventually the emphasis will be put back on the game itself—on community pride, loyalty and the love of the game.

When that happens, we will truly have baseball back. But that is something that can only come from within Major League Baseball itself —the Minnesota legislature could never do it for them.

So, You Need More To Worry About?

We're into the second week of the year and already some people have run out of things to worry about. Here are a couple of topics from the news late last week that should fill that void:

(1) Astronomers reported new evidence that an immense black hole, weighing as much as 2,600,000 suns (that ain't tons, it's suns), exists at the hub of the Milky Way, gobbling up elderly stars at a rate of about one every 100,000 years. We don't know how science goes about weighing a hole or determining space measurement, but this hole has been determined a probability only 26,000 light years away from Earth.

According to the theory of relativity, black holes are created by collapsing stars or star clusters and continue feeding on their neighbors until the end of time—sort of like the organizational strategy of the Minnesota Twins.

(2) If that doesn't crank up your worry volume, consider the projection that if an asteroid three miles in diameter splashed into the Atlantic Ocean it would produce a tidal wave 300 feet high racing across the ocean at the speed of a jet plane and wiping out most of the upper East Coast.

Astrophysicist Jack Hills at the Los Alamos National Laboratory says there is a two to three percent chance that an asteroid big enough to cause coastal flooding could slam into either the Atlantic or Pacific Ocean during a 100-year lifetime. By coastal flooding, he means such scope as the entire states of Delaware, Maryland and Virginia, Long Island and Manhattan in New York, the city of Miami. Millions of people would perish, billions of dollars of damage would be done to property.

What is there to worry about? If FEMA offices in Washington would escape the flood and if there would be enough money left after helping Grand Forks to build a dike along the East Coast large enough to withstand a second tidal wave in the next 100-year lifetime.

LETTERS

To The Editor:

Permit me to use this medium to inform our public and give my report about one phase of the Heritage Community Center. Since I retired from School District 564 in 1981, I have been privileged to give of my time to help our community finance and complete this facility, which now is accepted as a fine addition to our community. Although its main aim is to serve seniors, it has become a center for the entire community.

The moving force of this entire effort has been the volunteers. I am eternally thankful to Thief River Falls people for the many offerings of time and money.

This letter is directed to the Bingo people—those who are so faithful to work and the many who come to play. Bingo is played every Tuesday from 1 p.m. until about 3 p.m. We play 10 games, break for lunch, and play 10 more games.

This past year an average of 82 players enjoyed this relaxing afternoon. Thank you all very much for your patronage. And an even bigger thank you to all of our table workers, floor workers and Bingo callers. You made it possible to bank $9,663.66. Thanks to your volunteer hours, the Heritage Center gave back to the community the following:

$3,120 to Heritage Center programs; $400 to the Kidney Foundation; $250 to Meals on Wheels; $700 to the Salvation Army; $400 to the American Cancer Society; $400 to Little Brother/Little Sister; $200 to the Friendship Club; $200 to the Thief River Falls area food shelf; $200 to Ada Seniors; and $200 to East Grand Forks.

Sincerely,
Harry Oen
Thief River Falls

ECHOES FROM THE PAST

HISTORICAL REVIEW OF THE TIMES AND ST. HILAIRE SPECTATOR

FROM THE NEW CITY

THE NEWS, JOHN W. EASTMAN, PUBLISHER – JANUARY 13, 1898
THIEF RIVER FALLS, RED LAKE COUNTY, MINNESOTA

Election Aftermath Is Interesting
A Grave Offense
One Alderman Said To Be Guilty of Bribery

"Aldermen Burkee and Bergh are of the opinion that the NEWS grievously wronged them last week. An item appeared to the effect that City Clerk Bocke knew of a candidate in the recent city election who purchased three kegs of beer. This they claim was an insinuation that they purchased the beer. The NEWS is very sorry that anyone should misconstrue such plainly spoken English and in all fairness to the two aldermen we will state that Mr. Backe said that one of the candidates (he did not state which one) purchased this beer, and in view of the fact that there were several candidates for the office, it could in no way reflect upon their characters except in a general way. If the Impression has gone abroad that the beer was purchased by Messrs. Burkee and Bergh, we wish to correct it. We do not know who purchased the beer.

"The discussion of this, however, has brought to light a most revolting charge, one which will be deplored by every friend of good government and every citizen of Thief River Falls who has the good name and future prospects of the city at heart. It is nothing less than a direct charge of bribery. P.O. Bergh, one of the candidates for alderman at the recent city election, it is said upon very reliable authority, purchased one vote, a money consideration being paid for the same. A representative of the NEWS had been informed regarding the matter by a reliable person and called upon Mr. Bergh, placing the instances relative to the case before him and asking his what he had to say regarding the charge."

"I can't deny all the charges that have been made against me; it would be useless,' said the First Ward Alderman.

"But, Mr. Bergh,' said the News man, 'this is a very serious charge, one which is punishable by a term in the penitentiary. Surely you cannot afford to ignore a charge of this character?'

"Well,' answered Mr. Bergh in a lame, halting manner, 'it is, well, this is a great town for false reports.'

"The people of this city, with few exceptions, care but little who occupy seats in the council. They do demand, however, and very properly too, that no one shall become a member of the council who has gained his seat by such questionable methods. It is opening up too broad an avenue and would ultimately mean the city's ruin. Mr. Bergh owes it to himself, to the people who honestly voted for him and lastly to the city at large, to deny these charges in a public manner in such a way that there will be no question as to his innocence, otherwise he should resign his position in the council."

"To his credit be it said, Mr. Bergh has been a businessman in this city for a few years, during which time he has had the confidence of all. The NEWS, in common with every citizen of Thief River Falls, sincerely hopes that he can deny these charges."

Surprised Them

"The wives of the Odd Fellows sprung a complete surprise on members of the order last Thursday evening while the lodge was still in session. They made considerable noise but were compelled to make the best of it outside in the hall until the lodge closed. They were a welcomed assembly as each one came with a nice large four story cake and other edibles. Dancing and card playing were indulged in and a royal good time was had by all those present. It being a complete surprise, of course, some of the boys went home to 'tog up' a little and returned to partake of the lunch."

Included were three burglaries, six cases of grand larceny, four arson cases, eight statutory offenses, eight cases of assault, seven drunks and 16 victims of mental illness who were committed to the state hospital at Fergus Falls. Scattered cases in a dozen other classifications made up the total.

The water turbines [as compared with the three Diesel units] in the local plant produced a record total of 3,325,800 kilowatts in 1947 setting an all-time high mark due to the high stage of water in Red Lake river throughout most of the past year."

Assistant wildlife manager favors prairie preservation

NATIVE PRAIRIE:
HABITAT PEOPLE CAN'T AFFORD TO LIVE WITHOUT
by Jodie L. Provost

What is native prairie? It's not just a piece of land. It is soil, plants, animals, water, wind, sun and humans living together and depending on one another. The kinds of plants and animals living on it have been there for thousands of years and become adapted to the harsh prairie environment. The plants actually demand the prairie's extremes of hot, cold, wet and dry for survival, as well as fire and grazing. Native prairie plants and wildlife once covered the entire Great Plains.

What is not native prairie? Examples include roadsides of brome grass, hayfields of alfalfa and timothy, and land enrolled in the Conservation Reserve Program (CRP). These lands have had the soil disturbed and they are vegetated with plants which did not originate on the prairie at that particular site. Open, grassy land is not necessarily native prairie.

In western Minnesota and eastern North Dakota, tallgrass prairie once dominated the landscape. Tallgrass prairie, which includes native grasses such as big bluestem and Indian grass, originally stretched from Manitoba to Texas along the western Great Plains with portions extending as far eastward as Indiana. Today, only five percent of tallgrass prairie remains in its original range. Slightly less than one percent of native prairie remains in Minnesota.

It is important, if not critical, that we preserve the few remaining native prairie parcels that we have left. Why? Their preservation will benefit people now and in the future in several ways:

(1) Native plants can provide material useful in agriculture, medicine and industry. If we lose these plants, we'll never have the opportunity to use them to create new, improved, crops adapted to our soils, climate and growing season length. In our heavily agricultural-based economy this should be given much consideration.

As the world population grows, so will the demand for more productive crops. The agricultural benefits these remaining prairie parcels could bring would greatly outweigh the loss of any cropland needed to buffer and protect them.

Crossbreeding with native annual sunflowers has already increased the yield of some commercial sunflowers by 15 to 20 percent. Parcels scattered throughout the former tallgrass prairie range need to be protected, because each contains plants specifically adapted to their environment at that specific site. Each parcel provides its own unique materials and opportunities.

(2) The same goes for the native reptiles, amphibians, insects, birds and mammals that use our remaining prairie. If we lose these animals, our opportunities to use them, for purposes we may not yet know, disappear. We must think of the future, not just today.

(3) Native prairie provides seed sources to enhance and reconstruct disturbed lands back to healthy prairie. These seeds could be important in creating buffer zones around remnant native prairie and corridors to connect them. They can and have provided seed for gardening, landscaping, school nature areas, road right-of-ways and land enrolled in CRP and the Reinvest in Minnesota (RIM) program.

(4) Prairie remnants improve the quality of air, soil and water, strengthening and stabilizing our environment. Plants remove carbon dioxide from the air, prevent soil erosion and filter sediment and pollution from water. Wet prairies and other wetlands associated with prairies store water, decreasing flooding and recharging groundwater.

(5) Native prairie provides badly needed habitat for wildlife dependent upon grasslands. Grassland birds have had the most steep, consistent and geographically widespread decline of any group of North American birds. Fifty-five grassland species in the United States are threatened or endangered.

Prairie remnants serve as outdoor laboratories for everyone from elementary school to college, providing places to research the plants and animals and their interrelationships.

(7) Native prairie provides living museums of our natural heritage and are sources of beauty, recreation and inspiration. They are places to hunt, fish, gather seeds or wildflowers, be an artist, bird watch, hike, ride horseback, pick berries and imagine what the landscape was like when your great-great-great grandparents first arrived on the prairie.

(8) Finally, some native prairie parcels are of historic and cultural significance. They contain artifacts from Native American settlements or early pioneers, giving us a glimpse into the life of past prairie inhabitants.

How To Help Protect Native Prairie On Your Land

How can your help protect remnant native prairie on your land? Thankfully, some state and federal programs currently exist or may exist soon for interested, willing landowners. They include:

(1) Native Prairie Tax Exemption Program. Under this program, approved native prairie lands can be exempted from property taxes. Landowners may continue to hay the land. To be eligible, the prairie must be at least five acres in size in most counties. For information, contact your county assessor's office or local DNR wildlife manager.

(2) Reinvest in Minnesota (RIM) Prairie Bank Program. This state program currently has no funding, however, you can apply and get your name on the list in preparation for future funding. Twenty-year or perpetual easements are acquired. The criteria are the same as for the Native Prairie Tax Exemption Program. For more information, contact the DNR State Prairie Biologist at Fergus Falls (218-739-7576).

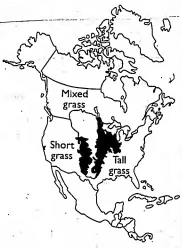
(3) RIM Hillside Pasture Program. This program's purpose is to prevent steep slopes from eroding in pastures. It may apply to native prairie among riparian areas in northwestern Minnesota. For more information, contact your local Soil and Water Conservation District (SWCD).

(4) Permanent Wetland Preserve Program. This program's purpose is to protect wetlands through perpetual easements. Wet prairies, since they are wetlands, can be protected under it. Up to four acres of upland, for each eligible acre of wetland, can be included. For more information, contact your local SWCD.

(5) Grassland Easement Program. This federal program coordinated by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service serves to benefit waterfowl by protecting nesting habitat through easements. If your prairie is near wetlands used by waterfowl, you may be eligible for this program. For more information, contact your nearest U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (USFWS) office.

(6) Waterfowl Production Area Fee Title Program. This federal program protects habitat for waterfowl during migration and the nesting season by purchasing land from interested landowners. If your native prairie is near wetlands used by waterfowl, you may be eligible for this program. For more information, contact your nearest USFWS office.

Historic Prairie Boundaries



Prairie ecosystem of North America was actually made up of three sub-types. The Tall Grass Prairie originally was the most widespread, containing plants such as big bluestem, Indian grass, tall blazing star and leadplant that were common and spectacular residents. Mixed Grass Prairie contained needle and thread grass, side oats grama, aromatic aster and Missouri golden rod. Short Grass Prairie was originally the least common sub-type and contained buffalo grass, blue grama, matchbrush and plains prickly pear.

Ken Beauchane nominated for service award

Kenneth R. Beauchane of Thief River Falls has been nominated for the Tau State Outstanding Service Award by the Alpha Phi chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma Society in Thief River Falls.

"This award recognizes an individual or couple representative of the many volunteers who devote time, energy and caring attention to the children and youth of Minnesota without thought of recompense," states Joyce Kopan, co-chair of the personal growth and growth services committee of Alpha Phi chapter.

"Kenny Beauchane has been recommended by the committee for his dedication and commitment to children, education and the community," adds Lois Bergland, the other committee co-chair.

Kenneth's wife, Patricia, is a music teacher at Challenger elementary school. His mother, Mrs. Elmer Radke, lives in Crookston and his brothers Richard and Ronald live in Red Lake Falls.

Beauchane worked for School District 564 as a custodian from 1969 until 1994, when he retired. During his 25 years of work in the school district he took an active interest in helping many young students in a number of ways.

Since his retirement he has spent many hours as a volunteer in the schools as well as elsewhere in the community, including service to the Little Brother/Little Sister program both as a Big Brother and a member of the advisory board. He also chaired the Falls Day Activity Center board from 1990 to 1995.

Kenny was born at Crookston in 1941 and spent most of his younger years in Crookston, Grand Rapids and Red Lake Falls. He graduated from the Northwest School of Agriculture at Crookston in 1959, worked at grain and dairy farms in the Red River Valley for two years and served in the U.S. Army from 1961 to 1964, including 31 months in France.

Following military service he was assistant manager of a lumber yard in Red Lake Falls, then moved to Edmore, ND, to manage the lumber yard there. He came to Thief River Falls to work for School District 564 in 1969.

Arts Council to present musical March 27-29

Thief River Falls Community Arts Council plans to stage a musical production entitled The Song of Mark on March 27, 28 and 29 at 7:30 p.m. at St. Bernard's Catholic Church.

The show will be under the direction of Rob Burkel with Jim Solsten serving as music director.

Based on the Biblical Gospel of Mark, The Song of Mark is the latest musical written by Marty Haugen. This musically-rich theatrical event will coincide with the lenten season and is intended to be a community project.

"Although this production will be held in the Catholic church," Burkel said, "I want people to know that it is a community production and that all are invited to audition for performance parts and attend the performances."

Auditions will take place Wednesday, January 28 and Thursday, January 29, at 7:30 p.m. at St. Bernard's church. Those auditioning are asked to bring a prepared musical selection to sing. An accompanist will be provided.

The cast consists of 11 major roles, an adult chorus and a youth chorus comprised of children ages nine through 14. Persons who would like to audition but are unable to do so during the scheduled times, or who have additional questions, may call Burkel at 681-4466.

Mark Borsheim takes over as new Mayor of T. R. Falls

Increases proposed in waste water rates

Proud parents, and friends were in attendance as Mark Borsheim became the youngest individual to occupy the office of mayor in Thief River Falls Tuesday night during the annual meeting of the council. Borsheim, Ken Schmaltz, alderman at large, Don Barron, fourth ward alderman, and Dave Carlson, second ward alderman were sworn in by Ninth District Judge Dennis Murphy.

At the conclusion of the meeting Borsheim said he looks forward to working with everyone. He added that he knows they will not always be in agreement, but asked everyone to keep in mind that they should work together for the benefit of the community.

Borsheim was congratulated by many individuals, not only on becoming mayor, but on the birth of his son.

Several annual items were also taken care of during this meeting. Jean Heinrichs was named acting mayor to preside in the absence of the mayor; The Times was designated as the official newspaper. Official depositories for the city were identified; John T. Anderson and Arlo Rude were appointed to the board of Northern Municipal Power Agency; and Police Chief Ken Froschheiser was appointed as process server.

The city's committee structure and appointments were not approved Tuesday night. One of the issues holding up the process is an opinion from the Minnesota Attorney General's office. The Attorney General's office was asked for an opinion regarding Mark Borsheim's duties as mayor and conflicts of interest as a city employee. The opinion is expected any day. Once that issue is settled, appointments to various committees can be approved or changed.

Wastewater rate increase

Residents of Thief River Falls could see two consecutive rate increases for wastewater, which would significantly increase wastewater rates in the community. Director of Utilities Arlo Rude, explained that the utilities committee and utilities staff were examining the budget at recent meetings and the need to raise wastewater rates. The department is using about $130,000 of reserves in 1997 for repairs to sewer lifts and modifications to the structures at the wastewater ponds in preparation of the dike modifications at the ponds.

Ninth District Judge Dennis Murphy administers the oath of office to Mark Borsheim, who was elected Mayor of Thief River Falls in the last election. The oath of office was administered at the first city council meeting of the year last Tuesday.

Top racers to complete in Ironman 250 this weekend

Top snowmobile racers from throughout the nation will be competing for over $60,000 in cash and contingencies in the Commercial Sewing Ironman 250 in Thief River Falls this weekend.

Snowmobile racers will compete in sno-cross ovals and cross-country racing. Racing fans will also see celebrities compete for the Make-A-Wish Foundation in a Celebrity race on Sunday, and youngsters compete in the Minnesota Championship Kitty Cat Races and Junior Novice Races.

One major change has been announced. Typically the finish of the cross country and all of the sno-cross oval events have been held across from Chief Red Robe Park. This year all of the racing will either finish or be held at the Pennington County Fairgrounds.

Racers will begin Saturday morning with about 90 miles of cross-country racing. They will compete in sno-cross ovals that day and repeat their efforts on Sunday. Staging of cross-country heats will take place at the fairgrounds, but the cross-country race will start southwest of Digi-Key near the Toroq building. They will finish near the fairgrounds.

Sno-cross oval racing with high flying, fast paced action will all take place at the fairgrounds Saturday and Sunday.

There are no other scheduled events this weekend, so race organizers are expecting a big turnout of drivers. In fact, the number of riders could be double what they had last year.

Spectators will have better parking and a better view of the action than ever before because they will be able to see all the sno-cross oval action from the grandstands. Organizers don't expect to have any of the buildings at the fairgrounds open, but they will have concessions and their large warming tent set up. Admission for two days of snowmobile racing action is just $10, or $6 to see the racing on Sunday.

Individuals interested in meeting some of snowmobile racing's top riders can do so on Friday at "Meet the Drivers", which will be held at Northern Motors in Thief River Falls from 5 to 8 p.m.

Make-A-Wish Auction part of '98 Ironman

Making wishes come true for children diagnosed with life-threatening illness is the goal of Make-A-Wish Foundation. Because its goals are so widely respected by snowmobilers, Make-A-Wish Foundation has accepted an invitation to participate in the Ironman 250 in Thief River Falls January 24 and 25.

Adding his prestige as a former heavy-weight professional boxer, Scott LeDoux will once again emcee the Make-A-Wish Foundation auction which will be held from 6 to 9 p.m. Saturday at the Best Western in Thief River Falls. The auction will consist of both a silent and live auction.

Auctioned items have been donated by both local businesses and the Make-A-Wish Foundation. Items will include snowmobile accessories, clothing and autographed sports items donated by professional athletes. Last year, over $12,000 was raised at the event. The public is encouraged to attend and support this worthy cause.

Plummer native carves niche in portrait work

Barb (Walter) Pinc wins prize with Tiger Jack portrait

Barb (Walter) Pinc

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

In a pastel portrait from a photograph she took several years ago, Barb Pinc of Hastings captured the soul of St Paul legend Tiger Jack Rosenbloom

The likeness was good enough to win a merit award at the 85th Annual Juried Art Exhibit at the Minnesota State Fair in August of 1996 and top prize in portraits in the Artists of Minnesota competition in Coon Rapids last April At the latter event, it also tied for first place in the People's Choice award voted by visitors to the art show.

Barb is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herb Walter of Plummer, a 1969 graduate of Pershing high school in Plummer, 1971 graduate of what was then Northland Community College in Thief River Falls and a 1975 graduate of the University of Minnesota with a bachelor of science degree in art education and physical education

Barb taught art for three years in the Goodhue public schools, then took a position as art teacher in the Hastings middle school. A year later, in 1981, budget cuts eliminated her full-time position and she opened her own Studio 61, a name borrowed in part from a nearby highway.

She now averages between 50 and 60 private students who came for one-hour to three-hour sessions once a week. The number has been as high as 90 at one time. Barb also continues her teaching certification and is a substitute teacher in the Hastings schools

The subject of Barb's prize-winning art is a 90-year-old St. Paul resident who has run Tiger Jack's on Dale and Highway 94 since 1949 The business is an 8x10-foot stove-heated shoeshine shack Jack and his wife had nine children, seven of whom completed college without loans or grants from the government.

One of Pinc's neighbors commissioned a painting of Tiger Jack, and Barb went to see him in the summer of 1995 With his cooperation she took a number of photos, one of which was at his suggestion and is the image of the portrait. It shows Tiger Jack standing by his tiny stove, removing the cover from something being heated in a battered pie plate

Pinc did the 16x20 portrait in pastel—a substance in stick form something like chalk She has recently finished a second, showing Jack standing in the doorway of his shack and waving to passersby A print will likely be made of this original—the commissioned work for Barb's customer—within the next six months to a year.

A third portrait is also planned, with Jack sitting in his shack, reading his Bible Barb hasn't started on that one yet

Since Tiger Jack had requested that she give away some of the money from sale of the prints, Barb made an offer prior to Christmas to donate half of the $125 print cost to the Children's Health Care cancer fund—the largest children's health care organization in the Upper Midwest with 284 staffed beds at its hospitals in Minneapolis and St. Paul

Although she enjoys her art work, including portraiture of people and animals from photographs on a commission basis and entering her work in various competitions, she says her main emphasis is on teaching She is particularly proud when her students win contests which they enter.

She has entered colored slides of her portraits to a judging panel for the Washington Pastel Society and is waiting to see if any are selected for competition She has also been hired in the past by a manufacturer of pastel art board to demonstrate for the International Pastel Society meeting in Kansas City.

Pinc has also earned other awards LifeWorks Services honored her for her ongoing efforts to help a developmentally disabled student by presenting her with the Community Award. She also received the Community Integration Award from the Minnesota Association for Persons with Severe Handicaps.

While she has the goal of most artists—to become better recognized and sell more of her work—she still believes she is living her dream by doing portraiture and teaching on a professional basis

Tiger Jack Rosenbloom of St. Paul was the subject of a pastel portrait by former Plummer resident Barb (Walter) Pinc which has placed high in several art competitions. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herb Walter, Barb now lives in Hastings where she has her own art studio and teaches private lessons as well as substitute teaching in the public schools.

Moonlight ski outing Feb. 7 at Old Mill Park

A candlelight/moonlight ski outing will be offered from 7 to 10 p.m. Saturday, February 7, on the trails at the Old Mill State Park west of Newfolden, The mile-long trail will be lighted by candles and possibly by the moon

Hot cider will be provided and participants are asked to bring a treat to share. Great Minnesota Ski Passes are required for all people 16 to 65 years of age and may be purchased at the park. Daily passes are $1 with one-year and three-year passes also available. The event will be canceled if dangerously low temperatures or wind chills occur.

Approximately 140 sets of skis, boots and poles in a variety of sizes are available to rent at the park office for $7 per set. Call or write to the park to reserve a set.

The picnic shelter will serve as a warming house for the winter months. Snowmobilers may ride down to the shelter and warm up this winter. They are reminded not to ride on the cross-country ski trails because it destroys the track.

Vehicle permits are required to enter the park. They are valid for the remainder of 1995 and permit entry to 64 Minnesota state parks.

For more information, write to park manager Mary Broten at Old Mill State Park, Route 1, Box 43, Argyle, MN 56713 or call 218-437-8174.

Valley teachers given supplies to replace losses

School teachers from the Red River Valley will have three days late this month to pick up free materials from a semi-load of children's learning supplies shipped to East Grand Forks by TREND Enterprises Inc., of New Brighton.

More than $300,000 in materials were shipped January 14 and will be distributed Monday, January 26; Wednesday, January 28, and Thursday, January 29. Distribution will take place at a warehouse located off Business Highway 2 at Second Avenue Northeast—two blocks south of Valley Elementary School.

"The losses have been so great for these communities," states Kay Fredericks, president of TREND. "We recognize teachers may not be able to replace supplemental learning materials at a time, when so many other things, such as classrooms, furniture and books must be replaced as well."

Materials to be distributed include colorful classroom decorations, bulletin board sets, motivational posters and learning charts, awards and certificates, flash cards and stickers

Last summer the company's employees contributed cleaning supplies and other essential items toward flood relief efforts in the valley.

Sen. Stumpf would return budget surplus to taxpayer

"As I travel throughout northwest Minnesota, the two most-asked questions about the state's $1.3 billion budget surplus are 'Where did it come from?' and 'What are we going to do with it?'" states Sen. LeRoy Stumpf of Thief River Falls.

The latest financial projection made by state economists and their consultants indicates that the state's general fund will amass a new surplus of $1.328 billion by the end of the current biennium in mid-1999.

Low (2.8%) unemployment rates throughout the state, coupled with less demand for welfare programs, has resulted in this surplus provided by state taxpayers. With most people working, there is much less demand for the state's welfare, health care and other social programs, so state spending is substantially lower than expected. The savings add $256 million to the surplus, Sen. Stumpf said.

"With so many citizens working and Minnesota's businesses doing well, income tax collections are also higher than expected," he said. "Additionally, federal changes lowering the capital gains tax rate have induced people to take profits from their capital gains. Increased capital sales have added a good deal of extra tax revenue to the state's budget.

"However, it is expected that these revenues are only temporary," the senator cautions. "All told, the state has $729 million more revenue than was projected a year ago last November. The next question to be answered is, 'What will we do with this money?'

"Some policymakers believe we should spend it all on program. Others want to see across-the-board tax cuts I would recommend a more moderate course, and most of the surplus should be returned to taxpayers. It is not fiscally responsible to commit ourselves to long-term spending or broad tax cuts when we know that these revenues aren't sustainable," Sen. Stumpf said.

Citizens would suffer if taxes had to be raised during more difficult economic times, he noted.

"I think the smart thing to do is to take small steps toward lowering taxes, make a few one-time expenditures that don't obligate the state on long-term spending, and return the bulk of the surplus to taxpayers," he said.

The 1997 legislature took action to return $500 million to taxpayers as citizens will receive 20 percent of their 1997 property taxes back as a refund when they file their 1997 state income taxes. Property tax increases were also held to a minimum by last year's legislative actions.

"I would like to see property taxes lowered for apartment buildings to encourage private builders to construct more housing for our citizens," Sen. Stumpf said. "Presently the lack of reasonably-priced housing is a barrier to business expansion in several northwestern Minnesota communities. The jobs are available, but many workers are having trouble finding an affordable place to live near the jobs because housing is so scarce.

"If investors can count on their property not being taxed at such a high rate, it should encourage more apartment construction. It would also be wise for the state to use some of the surplus for one-time projects like building maintenance. In leaner years in the past, the state allowed too many capital investments to fall behind on maintenance and improvements. It's just common sense to fix small problems now to save money on large repairs later."

Sen. Stumpf warned, however, that economic forecasting is only a bit more accurate than weather forecasting.

"Today's economic forecast has brought us sunshine," he said, "but with too many tax cuts or too much new spending, our citizens could get soaked with higher taxes when it does rain."

Johnston herd leads DHIA in November

Dairy herd of Todd and Jay Johnston of Angus led the Red Lake-Pennington Dairy Herd Improvement Association in November with an average per cow of 67 pounds of milk, 2.5 pounds of butterfat and 2.1 pounds of protein. Eighty-seven percent of the 62-cow herd was in milk in November.

Wayne Vettleson's herd, which is milked three times a day, was tied for second place. The 145-cow herd, 86 percent of which was in milk, averaged 62 pounds of milk, 2.1 pounds of butterfat and 1.9 pounds of protein.

Richard Dummer's herd (which has since been sold) was tied for second place with 78 percent of the 81-cow herd in milk and averaging 62 pounds of milk, 2.1 pounds of butterfat and 1.9 pounds of protein.

Other herds in the top 15 included the following with number of cows in the herd, percentage in milk and pounds of milk, butterfat and protein per cow listed respectively:

Beyer Farms, 72, 96%, 60, 2.4 and 1.9; Northwest Agricultural Experiment Station (small cow herd), 58, 83%, 60, 2.3 and 1.9; Walter Bros. Farm, 208, 86%k, 57, 1.9 and 1.8; Excel Dairy, 866, 90%, 55, 2.1 and 1.7; Wayne Nelson, 41, 90%, 55, 1.9 and 1.8; and Tom and Diane Kolstoe, 46, 87%, 53, 2.1 and 1.7;

Also Tom Willett, 56, 84%, 52, 1.9 and 1.7; Kevin and Beth Roppe, 36, 89%, 52, 1.8 and 1.6; Northwest Agricultural Experiment Station (large cow herd), 57, 77%, 51, 2.0 and 1.8; Greg Zak, 78, 85%, 51, 1.8 and 1.6; Bob Schindler, 65, 77%, 49, 1.8 and 1.6; and Arnie and Barb Schmitz, 33, 94%, 49, 1.8 and 1.5.

Production averages are affected by the number of dry cows in the herd since total production is averaged over all cows to give the producer a record of the herd's earning power for the month. Even though cows in production may be good producers, a large percentage of dry cows will result in a substantially reduced average.

Randy and Margaret Rasmussen of Thief River Falls are supervisors for the Red Lake-Pennington DHIA and provided information for the monthly report.

A Sydney flu virus has been noted in state

At least one confirmed case of A Sydney influenza had been reported in Minnesota as of January 15, according to the Minnesota Department of Health (MDH).

While the new "Australian" flu strain isn't unusually dangerous or virulent for most people, health officials are concerned that this year's influenza vaccine may offer less than ideal protection against A Sydney The elderly and people with immune system problems are at highest risk.

MDH officials say it's too early to determine if the appearance of A Sydney in the state will result in an unusually high number of influenza cases this year However, nursing homes and health care providers are being alerted about the new flu strain so they can be on the lookout for possible cases and take steps to protect nursing home residents and other vulnerable individuals if an outbreak does occur

Although the flu season began slowly in Minnesota, there has been a marked increase in the number of reported cases since the first of the year. MDH monitors influenza by tracking possible outbreaks in schools and nursing homes So far this year, the department has received reports of flu outbreaks from 47 schools and nine nursing homes in the state Symptoms of A Sydney influenza, which tend to appear suddenly, do not differ from those of other influenza strains They can include a sore throat, coughing, fever, headache, muscle aches and fatigue.

People who become severely ill with influenza-like symptoms should see a physician. People with type A influenza may experience less severe disease if they receive anti-viral medication within 48 hours after their symptoms first appear.

Ione Scott is St. Hilaire's first female mayor

by Kathl Carlson
The Times Reporter

In November St. Hilaire elected a new mayor who is genuinely concerned about the city, an advocate of small town life and a woman — St Hilaire's first-ever female mayor.

The race was close. Of the 79 votes cast in St. Hilaire Ione received 35 — 44 percent — of the votes with a write-in candidate receiving 34 votes and another opponent ten Regardless of how she got there, Ione is thrilled and in her words, "very honored."

A member of the St Hilaire community for more than 20 years, Ione is single and the mother of 28-year-old Tracy and Nathan, 21. Tracy resides in Las Vegas, and Nathan lives in Grand Forks. Ione lives in a manufactured home on Water Avenue. She has worked at Northwest Grain for 19 years as a secretary and bookkeeper.

Elevators and politics are in her blood. As she was growing up she lived in several small communities in Northwest Minnesota where her dad managed grain elevators. Her dad, the late Herb Schultz, was also a city clerk at one time, and if Ione could have had one wish it would have been for her dad to see her as mayor of St. Hilaire. As it is, her mother is proud and excited.

Except for a few years in Thief River Falls, "I've always lived in small towns," Ione said. And she loves everything about it and feels fortunate to have been able to raise her children in a small community.

Ione's political experience includes two years on the city council. The previous city government was made up of two men, two women and a male mayor

When asked why she ran for mayor, Ione said, "I thought it was time for a woman." She would not have run against the former mayor, however, and hesitated until the last day to file her candidacy. "I'm glad I did it," she added.

Dennis Mills and Deb Holmgren were also elected to join Dixie Huglo on the council, and Paula Fanfulik was appointed to fill the last two years of Ione's four-year term. The governing body of St Hilaire now includes three women, one man and a female mayor. Connie Folkedahl is city clerk.

Ione chuckled as she said that they have teased Councilman Dennis Mills about his "harem," but she didn't laugh when she spoke of how the 25-year council veteran has encouraged her and given her very sound and welcome advice.

Ione has been advised to always look beyond special interests. Exploring the big picture, she will be able to make the best decision for all the people — the taxpayers — of the community.

When asked what the greatest challenge is for the City of St. Hilaire, Ione's one word reply, "money," came without hesitation.

St. Hilaire is currently faced with two major financial burdens. The first and largest is the replacement of the leaking lagoons and bringing the sewer system up to Minnesota Pollution Control Agency standards, a time consuming and very costly project.

Secondly, the old school buiding needs to be torn down. The paperwork has been completed to destroy the building in a "controlled burn," a training exercise for area fire departments. The city is currently trying to obtain a grant for clean-up after the burn, another costly undertaking.

Revenues in the community are derived from real estate taxes, water and sewer payments, and the municipal liquor store, an establishment Mayor Scott is happy to say is "very profitable."

While many municipal liquor establishments are a detriment to small town economies, Ione attributes St. Hilaire Liquor Store's success to its management, proximity to Thief River Falls and atmosphere. Ione described the "nice, clean, well-run" business as a "working person's bar." "Remember the theme song from 'Cheers'?" she asked. "I like to go to a place 'where everyone knows your name'." And she's called "Madam Mayor" these days.

From her two year stint on the council Ione is already well-aware that one cannot make all of the people happy all of the time.

Last spring the city enforced a junk vehicle ordinance, serving notices and then ticketing the offending vehicles that were not removed from the property by the deadline date. While many expressed their appreciation at the council's attempt to make the town more attractive, others were angry. Undaunted by their anger, however, Ione stated, "We'll do it again!" and stressed that the council would "do things legally."

Ione would like to see her town "spruced up" and doesn't agree with the attitude of some who say, "It's only St. Hilaire." While the manufactured homes that are currently in town are grandfathered in, new manufactured homes that moved in will have to meet code.

The new mayor stated that St. Hilaire would welcome any type of new business and that she would particularly like to see a restaurant come into town. Ione, however, recognizes that the city does not have much to offer in the way of buildings.

When asked if the position paid enough to purchase the aspirin to treat the headaches that the job would bring, Ione laughed and said that she would use the money to pay her water and sewer bill and have "a little" left over.

With a population of approximately 300 people, being mayor presents some special challenges and Ione knows it. The person upset by a council decision may be the next-door neighbor.

One of the first people to make a presentation at Ione's first council meeting as mayor had two items to discuss. The first was something that everyone agreed on, and the second was not. The mood in the room was like a drastic temperature fluctuation as the warm atmosphere cooled considerably and then heated up again as tempers where about to flare. As it turns out, the presenter was and still is a personal friend of the new mayor.

It is clear that everyone has to have the ability to separate the business of the city from personal relationships. For that reason, Ione prefers not to discuss city business on social occasions but rather in meetings at city hall.

That is not to say Mayor Ione Scott is not accessible because she is, She is eager to hear about ways to make St. Hilaire a better place to live — for all the people.

Large city or small town, being the mayor is a big job for any man or woman. But if Ione Scott's enthusiasm, concern and dedication make a difference, the City of St. Hilaire and its citizens will be the real winners in the mayoral race of 1997.

St. Hilaire Mayor Ione Scott discusses city business with Councilman Dennis Mills at city hall. Other council members are Dixie Huglo, Deb Holmgren and Paula Fanfulik. While the male-female ratio may have Mills outnumbered, the new mayor looks to this 25-year council veteran for encouragement and advice. Ione fervently expresses her appreciation for the support Mills has offers and enthusiastically looks forward to being the town's first female mayor.

Ione Scott (right) was sworn in as the new mayor of St. Hilaire by City Clerk Connie Folkedahl at St. Hilaire's city council meeting on Tuesday, January 13. A resident of the community for more than 20 years, Ione is St. Hilaire's first-ever female mayor. Previous to being elected to the mayoral position, Ione served two years on the city council.

Students taking these courses will be able to obtain an Associate Degree that is transferable to four-year colleges, Howe said. Plans are to offer the classes at times convenient to students during weekends and evenings.

The survey forms are to be returned to Northland as soon as possible. Persons in the communities mentioned who have not received a copy of the survey may contact their community education department or call Northland at 1-800-959-6282.

ON THE OTHER HAND

Jennicea Callagher
Lincoln High School

Happy Winter!! Let me first introduce myself. My name is Jennicea Gallagher, and I am the newest member of the Lincoln High School Literary Arts class. When told I was supposed to write a small article for the Times as a part of the class, I must admit I was a little nervous. Anyone in the town of Thief River Falls could read what I had to say, and as any writer I had that blank question in my mind: what on earth would I write about? But taking into consideration that I never have had trouble finding something to talk about in the past, I knew a topic would pop into my head, and so it did one morning as I tried to get out of bed.

With the holiday season over, and all Sno-Fest festivities complete, the one thing that I look forward to most is spring. January, February and March seem to take twice as long as any other months of the year. I attribute the slow pace mainly to the weather. Now I know that the weather is probably one of the most generic things one could talk about, but it is a big part of our everyday life, especially this time of the year.

It seems to me that with every day I see a minus sign in front of the temperature it is harder and harder to peel the warm covers off my body, get out of bed, and face the cold world. Now, don't get me wrong, I don't hate the cold. In fact I think that winter should be cooler than any other time of the year, but to have to walk around with five layers of clothing on just to stay remotely warm is crazy.

I often laugh when my grandparents, who travel to Arizona every winter, call. They enjoy telling us that "The temp got all the way down to 65 yesterday, and we had to break out the long pants and sweatshirts." I just smile and think to myself, I wear long pants and a sweatshirt to bed let alone the hat, boots, gloves, scarf, coat, long johns and extra pair of socks I need just to go outside.

But the thing that amuses me the most is how the movies portray "winter." Picture this: a layer of newly fallen snow is resting beautifully on a smoky log cabin imbedded in a forest of flocked evergreens. A tall man with a flannel shirt and suspenders is coming out the front door with an ax. He whistles "Winter Wonderland" as he walks to the neat pile of wood. Inside, the jolly man's little wife is busy baking apple pie as the rosy cheeked children sit in front of the cobblestone fireplace playing with the dog.

Yeah, right! Where were those Hollywood directors last year when half of northern Minnesota and North Dakota were out of electricity for a couple of days? The movie for that would have been completely different: the 60 mile-an-hour wind blows the door open as a tall man who had not shaved in a week comes clumsily out of the ice-capped log cabin. His deep winter coat is zipped from his waist to his chin. To whistle would have caused his chapped lips to bleed. He flings the heavy ax over his shoulder and sighs. Would he be able to find the wood pile? Inside his wife is busy melting snow over an open fire so the kids can brush their teeth, and so she can make macaroni and cheese. Now, that's more like it.

But, all in all, I feel that we have been blessed this winter. We haven't had any major snow storms, the weather over Christmas was absolutely gorgeous, and the forecast looks good. Even though it might get cold from time to time, we as a community are able to adapt and make the best of it. From blizzards to floods, we always make it. So the next time you have trouble getting out of bed because of the cold, just smile and think to yourself, spring is only four months away.

Thrill of flying through the air was provided by the ski jump built by several Thief River Falls area young men in 1939. The winter of 1939-40 had very little snow, so it was scraped from the river and hauled up the jump in bushel baskets to allow the run to be used. Harry Oen is shown during one of his tournament jumps.

ON MY MIND

Kim Chadwick-Quade

Why Mom?

I have a new name. It's not just "mom" anymore, it's "whymom."

My seven-year-old son's curiosity is 100 times larger his body. Each day I'm faced with an enormous number of questions, most of which I'm not equipped or qualified to answer. I do, however, make great attempts to satisfy each and every question, even though quite often I find myself searching for the right answer. "Yes," I say to my son. "I wonder why that is, too." When I'm stumped, it's tempting to use one of my typical parent responses: Just because. I don't know. That's a good question. Go ask your dad.

I feel as if I should be a set of walking encyclopedias instead of a mother. Wouldn't it be great if parents came in several models with different built-in features like dictionaries, thesauruses, science references or spell check? Then I could trade myself in for a newer model.

Or maybe we could be awarded a set of encyclopedias upon discharge from the hospital after delivering a child. Why not? It's similar to the politician who wants to send a classical music tape home with every newborn's family.

Many days, as the questions roll off my son's tongue, I feel as if I'm a contestant in a trivia game show or playing an endless game of 20 questions. I have a strong feeling I won't be bringing home the $10,000 prize or a new car.

One day while riding in the car he heard the professional baseball scores being announced and he asked me how many guys played baseball. A trick question, I thought to myself. He's trying to stump me. Does he mean how many men play baseball all together in the whole wide world or does he mean how many on a team? Upon clarification I discovered the real question was: How many guys are on the playing field at one time?

Using all of my fingers and my great memory (while trying to keep the car on the road between the little white lines) I determined (after about five long minutes) that nine people play baseball on the field at one time. "Why mom? Are you sure?" he asked. "Of course I'm sure," I responded, after silently checking my math and naming off every position I could think of. I did say that if he didn't believe me his dad would back me up. Just ask him. What I really wanted to say to my son was: Ask me something easier next time. Sports is not my strong category.

It's the usual scenario that one question answered is followed by another "whymom" and another "whymom." Oftentimes, my son will ask me a question, to which I respond with the best of my knowledge. He then asks my husband the same question. I wonder how he decides who's right?

The questions range from the weather, to the time, to how things work, to what we're doing and who said what. In addition to whymom, it's what, when, how and wheremom. And to think that when he was two years old I was worried that he would never learn to talk.

The talk, though, is not limited to real inquiry. The "whymom" also comes in another form.

I say: "It's time for bed." The child says: "Whymom?"

I say: "Get your coat on." The child asks: "Whymom?"

I say: "Please pick up your toys." The seven-year-old says: "Whymom?"

For these "whymoms" there really isn't a sufficient answer except for "because."

But say something like, "Let's go eat ice cream." "Ice cream, let's go," he says. "Where are we going? Why are we taking the white car? Why is mom driving? Whymom?"

PRAIRIE RAMBLING

Gretchen Beito

Young Harry Oen figured that he could have a year to relax since he could not begin college that fall. Harry's Dad wanted him to wait a year before he went to St. Paul to the University to study agriculture education. Harry had graduated from Lincoln High School in the class of 1939 at age 16 and his dad said he was too young to go so far away.

There was plenty of work on the farm that fall. The Oen farm was located in Rocksbury Township on the gravel road called Pennington Avenue two and a half miles south of town on the east side of Red Lake River. The family had many beef cattle and eight dairy cows, so there were chores twice a day, the harvesting of small grain, putting up corn in silage, fences and machinery to repair. But every chance he got, Harry worked with his brother Ray on their dream.

Harry and Ray planned to build and use the biggest ski jump ever seen around Thief River Falls. They had experience in building jumps--they had already built two smaller ones. They had two more ski jumping enthusiasts, Chester and Lester Anderson, to help them. The Andersons were their neighbors who lived across the river. The four young men were all between 16 and 20 years old. They enlisted the help of Oens' hired man, Gus Gunderson, who also liked to ski jump.

They wanted a 50 foot high scaffold so they needed to get some tall pine poles. Ray had his drivers license and he drove the car down to Clearbrook to buy the pine tree trunks. The fellows tied the pine poles on a rubber-tired farm wagon that they had extended, and then pulled the poles home behind the car.

Ray was the building engineer. They had parts of the old ski scaffolds that they recycled and they spliced together the poles. For part of the platform, they scavenged the big doors that had survived the disastrous fire at their Grandfather Rasmus' Oen Mercantile Store.

They erected the jump a fourth of a mile north of the barn. It was designed to give a skier a speed jump outward and upward from the takeoff platform with 50 to 55 feet in the air before landing on a steep section of the river bank and then skiing down onto the river. The thrill was in flying through space as well as skiing fast. What a grand run it would be!

The five builders finished their work in pretty good weather, and then waited for snow.

They waited. And waited. It turned out that the winter of 1939-1940 was an open winter. Finally, a little bit of snow came. The fellows scraped the river with a road blade on a tractor, hauled it on a sleigh up the 30 foot river bank to the jump, and then carried the snow up the ladder of the jump in bushel baskets. They had to. Building the jump had been rewarding, but they wanted to JUMP. And after their two barns worth of chores were done each day, they jumped. Whenever they could gather enough snow together, they were out there.

When there was no snow, they played hockey on the river with the Andersons. When the river ice was not safe, they flooded a rink between the barns or behind the machine shed.

The Oens arranged ski jump tournaments with others in the area, especially a group from Terrebonne who had a jump by the flour mill and another group from Red Lake Falls whose jump was behind the county courthouse. The miller was the brother of Karl Kankel of the Red Lake Falls ski jumpers.

In March it was Harry and Ray's turn to host the tournament, and a ski jump group from North Dakota was also invited to compete with the three teams. But there was very little snow. The fellows hauled what snow they could scrape up on the river up onto the jump in the bushel baskets.

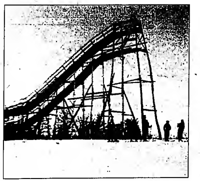
There was so little snow that the athletes and spectators could drive their cars right off the road now called Airport Road, drive across Oens' meadow, and park in the field.

Snow did not fall all that winter of 1939-1940, but the young men were willing to wait for the next year to get some real snow.

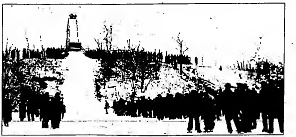
In the fall of 1940 Harry traveled to the St. Paul campus and, with the aim of coming back to farm with Ray, decided to study animal husbandry and plant husbandry. He thought a lot about coming home for Christmas vacation and enjoying the ski jump.

But it was not to be. On November 11, 1940 the greatest blizzard of the century began to rage, a screaming three-day blizzard. Finally, drifts of snow were piled up.

But the blizzard winds had knocked down the ski jump, which was never built up again.



Pine poles hauled on an extended farm wagon behind a car to Thief River Falls from Clearbrook formed the tallest part of the framework for the ski jump built by Ray and Harry Oen, Lester and Chester Anderson and Gus Gunderson in 1939.



Ski jumping tournament held on the Oen farm south of Thief River Falls along the Red Lake River in March of 1940 attracted a good crowd. Snow cover was light and spectators could drive directly from what is now known as the airport road across a meadow and park near the jump. Teams were from Thief River Falls, Terrebonne, Red Lake Falls and North Dakota.

SPEAKING OF...

Sherry LaCoursiere

...But Don't Criticize Her Near Me

I have a love-hate relationship with Martha Stewart, and I envy her no end. I love to watch her shows on television because some of her ideas are really good and I love to putz around with things the way she does. However, I usually end up hating the shows because when I try to do things like she does, I am inadequate and clumsy. Why can't I do those things as easily as she does? But do I ever envy her! If only I could have made the kind of money she has from all the putzing around I have done throughout the years!

I don't like to hear people making fun of her, though. I think they might be a bit envious like I am. I think it would be great to make a living just having a good time and doing things I enjoy and I wish I had the business sense to make it work like she has.

My kids are sick and tired of hearing, "This is the way Martha Stewart does it," and the son still living with me absolutely put his foot down when I mentioned Martha has her own chickens and bees. "Not while I'm in this house," he said. Oh well. I think there is a law against having chickens and bees in town anyway.

Here are some symptoms of the Martha Stewart disease that is going around. How many of them do you have? I have marked the ones I have tried - changing them somewhat to suit the occasion, of course:

- You have an obsession with hanging swags of brightly colored fabric from curtain rods. (Yup!)
- Your house is decorated with plaster gremlins and angels. (Well, a few.)
- Every shoebox and empty tin can in the house has been decoupaged with flowers cut from old wrapping paper. (Not every one!)
- You float candles in the punch bowl at parties. (Only special parties.)
- You have glass jars filled with dried rose petals everywhere. (No, I use baskets.)
- There are pots and pots of herbs on your windowsill and each herb is painstakingly labeled, along with a hand drawn picture of the herb. (I can't grow anything - I have a black thumb - or I would.)
- You've made a doormat with a sunflower design on it out of old bottle caps. (No.)
- You polish every lettuce leaf with a clean white cloth until each one shines like a newly waxed car before you put it in the bowl. (No.)
- You save snow balls from last winter in your fridge in case you need them to create an ice sculpture centerpiece. (No - just a little bag of snow.)
- You have tie-dyed all of your T-shirts with dyes made from vegetables grown in your garden. (Nope, can't grow those either.)
- You've made wind chimes out of old coconut shells. (How about old plant pots!)
- Every chunk of cheese on your cheese tray comes with a toothpick and a little flag upon which is clearly labeled the cheese's country of origin. (Not every hunk.)
- You hoard cookie cutters in all sizes, shapes and colors in a kitchen drawer and nobody is allowed to touch them. (It's okay to touch them, if you're careful.)
- All of the grass in your front yard is braided. (Have trouble growing that, too.)
- You make your own Jello from calves' hooves rather than buy the powdered stuff. (Maybe from Knox Gelatin.)
- Each and every flower in the back yard is wrapped in raffia and sports a shiny red bow. (No flowers.)
- You macramé yourself a computer cozy cover from hemp and recycled plastic. (I would, but I don't have the pattern.)
- You sleep outside the house in a tent so that you don't spoil your perfectly made bed. (No grass, no bed outdoors.)
- You smear your walls with yogurt so that over time a natural-looking greenish mold will grow, giving your home the fashionably-distressed look of an ancient Greek temple. (Not yogurt - just spatters of gold paint - looks distressed immediately.)
- You serve entrees in real birds' nests you found in your back yard. (I don't have any bird nests in my back yard either.)

So, yes, I guess I have a few symptoms of Martha Stewart disease. Now if I could just get someone to pay me for sponge painting my dining room wall with a facial cleanser sponge and flinging speckles of gold paint on it (it really looks nice), or painting numerous pine cones (that I collected from trees in the neighborhood) with gold paint (by hand), or using those pine cones to decorate wreaths with which I decorated bedroom and bathroom doors in my house for Christmas...

ACTIVITIES

Snow Pictures

Mix equal amounts of salt and flour. Pour the mixture into a container with a shaker top (a parmesan cheese shaker works well). Give your child a piece of dark-colored construction paper. Let your child paint on the paper with water. Place the wet paper in a plastic dishpan or cookie sheet and sprinkle it with the salt and flour mixture. Help your child shake the excess salt and flour from his or her painting. Spread the resulting snow picture out to dry.

PARENTING TIPS

Reading Stories To Preschoolers

To have a really successful experience when reading to a young child, forget about reading the words and read the child instead. Watch to see what interests your child, what does she understand or not understand. The first time through the book may consist almost entirely of conversations about the pictures.

The most useful questions and answers are those that invite the child to participate actively and give you clues about what he wants and needs to find out. Move through the book as rapidly as your child desires. As much as possible use his own vocabulary to introduce new ideas.

Speak and read with expression. Use your finger to point out and demonstrate what is happening. Animation makes the reading more interesting and provides clues to the meaning of pictures and words.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

Talk about the pictures in the book. Be aware of your child's level of understanding.

Provided by the Social Security District Office in Grand Forks, ND

Q. As we enter into the W-2 form season, is there anything special I should check for my employees before issuing the W-2 form?

A. To be sure that the wages of your employees are accurately matched to their earnings record for Social Security, there are several items that could be reviewed. All of these tips involve using the correct names and Social Security Numbers (SSN) because these are critical links in the chain. SSA records show that the most common W-2 errors are: incorrect name or number — the name or SSN shown on the person's W-2 differs from the persons Social Security card; incorrect format — something, such as the title of Dr. or Mrs., was used on the W-2 instead of just the first name, middle initial, and last name; use of a nickname; and forgetting to connect a compound name with a hyphen.

Q. I got married last year and never changed my name on my Social Security card. Will this delay my tax refund?

A. It certainly could and might also get you a letter from the IRS asking you what your proper name is. Whenever you change your name, such as from adoption, divorce, or marriage, you should be sure to have your Social Security record updated. To do so you will need to complete form SS-5 (Application for a SSN) and submit evidence to document the name change such as your marriage certificate. This evidence must be an original document, for example the county certified record of marriage, and not a photocopy which you made yourself. This evidence should show both the old and the new name. Your document is returned to you. The process can be completed by mail or in person and there is never a charge by Social Security for this service.

Good Samaritan Center of EGF receives award

Good Samaritan Center of East Grand Forks was presented with the Care Providers of Minnesota Chairperson's Award at a ceremony recently in Minneapolis.

The award recognizes individuals and organizations whose outstanding contributions and commitment to Minnesota's long-term care community merit special recognition.

According to Laren Jay Colman, who chairs the Care Providers of Minnesota board, East Grand Forks Good Samaritan Center was selected because of the exceptional dedication and service its leadership and staff demonstrated in caring for facility residents following flooding of the Red River in April of 1997.

"Facility residents had to be moved to a temporary care center set up at Northland Community and Technical College in Thief River Falls," Colman said. "Many facility staff suffered their own personal losses and dislocation, yet they chose to remain with their residents. We salute administrator Sandra Bentley and the 70 dedicated staff members who demonstrated the most unselfish and compassionate commitment to the individuals entrusted to their care."

Jean Larson is Recipient of Chamber Volunteer of the Year

Whether volunteering for the schools, in her church or in the community at large, Jean Larson is extremely active. "I really subscribe to the philosophy 'If it is to be, it's up to me.' We're here to make a positive difference," she stated. Jean received the Volunteer of the Year award at the annual Chamber of Commerce Banquet held January 10.

Jean was born and raised in Warren, Minnesota. She went two years to school at the University of Minnesota and took a year at St. Cloud State University, majoring in Special Education. She then transferred to England where she spent two years working on her elementary teaching degree. While she is a certified teacher in England, she found her college credits did not transfer over exactly into a teaching degree and she graduated in the United States with a Bachelor's degree in Elective Studies. When she married Mark Larson, she moved to Thief River Falls and she made it her home both physically and also in her heart. "It's true I have lived in other parts of the world," she said. "Northern Ireland for 4 years, England for 2 years... and I have traveled extensively. Still, there's no doubt in my mind Thief River Falls is the best place to live and raise a family. There is just no other place I'd rather be!"

She has certainly helped make Thief River Falls a good place with her involvement. She is currently serving her second term as a school board member, is on the Community Education Advisory Council, the ECFE Advisory Council, the Staff Development Committee, the Continuing Education Committee, the Lincoln High School Auditorium Restoration team, Your Community Schools committee and the Education subcommittee of the Healthy Youth/Healthy Community Initiative. She also chairs the Academic Booster Club, teaches for the Art Adventure program, works as a leader for the Junior Great Books, helps with the Young Author's Conference and Odyssey of the Mind, is a member of Friends of the Orchestra, and has volunteered as a parent for a whole number of things such as PTSP Book Fairs and Spring Fling, roller skating, programs, parties, Deep Portage, Franklin Middle School Career Days and Franklin Middle School Activity Days. She was also on the Steering Committee for the School Bond - Facilities Project. As Jean noted, "We're here to leave this world a better place. We need to be outwardly looking to make our community the best we can for future generations." She also added, "Besides I find it so satisfying working for kids because they're so appreciative. It's fun to experience things through their eyes. For example, I just love teaching Art Adventure and seeing the artists come alive in the kids' eyes. I think that what's most rewarding for me."

She also extensively volunteers in her church. She currently teaches Sunday School and has for the past 10 years. She also is a Confirmation Small group guide and on the Task Force to reorganize the Confirmation program and helps with a variety of youth activities. In the past, she has also served as the Sunday School supervisor, Christian Education Board chair, Vice chair of Zion Lutheran Church Council, Vacation Bible School director, Children's music leader, Call Committee for the Senior Pastor and the co-director of the Sunday School Christmas program. "I want my children to have a strong religious background -- a solid foundation," Jean said. "To do that, I need to give of myself, too. My philosophy is what you get out of things is directly proportional to what you put in."

Running true to her philosophy, Jean has spent many hours volunteering in the community. She is a member of Zehlians, a Girl Scout Camp Moe helper, and on the Chamber Education committee. She also was on the New Generations Youth Conference Committee and a Concert Series contact person, is a Blandin Community Leadership Program graduate, and served as the Groundbreaking Chair for the Multi-Events Center. She noted that the Blandin program taught her a lot about leadership and herself. "I learned," she said, "that I want to make Thief River Falls a great community to live in -- and it is! I realized I am a stakeholder in Thief River Falls. Sure, the grass may look greener in other communities at times, but that's when you work to make your own grass a brilliant green!" She is also a past Thief River Falls Public Library Board member, past Thief River Falls Nursery School Board member, past AAUW member and past member of the northwest chapter of the Minnesota Association for the Education of Young Children. Have Jean's efforts been noticed by others? The answer is a resounding YES! Jean has been a recipient of the AAUW Woman of Honor award and the Minnesota Academic Excellence Foundation Hero award. In addition to all this, she and her husband are devoted to their daughters Brittany and Jillian and very involved in their activities.

Truly Jean volunteers many hours of service to a variety of organizations and groups in Thief River Falls. Yet when she was notified about the Chamber award, she was visibly shaken. "I don't deserve this," she said. "There are so many other people more worthy. That's what I love about Thief River -- the people. They're so warm and caring." After much discussion, Jean agreed to accept the award on behalf of the many organizations in which she participates. "If that will encourage one person to get involved in these organizations, then it will be worth it," she said.

What would Jean like to see for the future of Thief River Falls? She smiled and replied, "I like to see progress in our community without losing the wonderful qualities we already have. I want our future to be shaped by our doing our best for all of us and for our children. That's my focus at this point."

Carol Ihle is the Excellence in Education Award Recipient at Chamber Banquet

"I believe," noted Carol Ihle, "that we need to provide for all the educational needs of each child and help them aspire to the heights of their potential intellectually and interest-wise." This statement of philosophy is one Carol not only espouses, but lives every day. It is but one of the reasons she received the 1998 Excellence in Education Award at the January 10 Chamber of Commerce Banquet.

Born in Thief River Falls, Carol moved to Duluth in first grade, but returned to TRF in 9th grade. "I remember thinking when I came back how wonderful Thief River Falls was because it was so flat -- I could go biking and not be going uphill all the time," laughed Carol. "Now I realize Thief River Falls is so wonderful because it truly is a community like the slogan says, "Where Everybody is Somebody." I also think it is a community that cares for and values everybody." It is also the community she has made her home. Carol and her husband Paul have four children, Kate (now a freshman at Carleton), Lesley, Peter and Joe. Both she and Paul are committed to their children and the community.

Carol worked for several years as a speech clinician before beginning her family. Then in 1990, she returned to the workforce as the School District's Volunteer Coordinator and remained there through the 1996/97 school year. At that point, the program had grown and Carol realized the need to change in order to adequately deal with the needs. After much consideration, she recommended the restructuring of her position into 3 building volunteer coordinators. She was going to take a year off this year to enjoy family life, when she was approached by the District to help on a part-time basis as a speech therapist at Challenger Elementary School. "How could I refuse," she asked. "I love working with people especially helping children. As a speech clinician, you get to improve a child's life by helping them develop their speech -- and more importantly, their self esteem."

Carol obviously enjoys working with people to make the community better. She is on the Inter-County Nursing Board, the "PER" committee, Project 2000, the Parent Involvement Task Force, Parent/Teacher organizations and advisory committees at all schools, Band Boosters Board, and a variety of other short term committees and initiatives. She also is an active school volunteer. In the past, she has served on the Chamber Education Committee, Community Awareness Project and the Northwest Regional Library Board of Trustees. She has been a Sunday School teacher and Bible School teacher and has served on the Altar Guild at her church as well as other various Church activities. She also chaired the "Citizens for Quality Education" which worked on communicating information regarding the levy referendum to the public. "The levy referendum was very important to our community as well as the school," she noted. "It was hard seeing the cuts in recent years. It was devastating to the programs, staff morale and especially the students' education. The staff was incredible throughout, trying to keep as much together as possible for the kids. The staff is really a major strength in our schools. The passage of the levy gave us hope and a way to move foreward. And, to maintain and improve our educational system, we need to move forward. The new initiatives planned for our educational system will greatly benefit our kids and so, our community. Our kids are our future resource. We need to provide the best we can for them. And they deserve that. They really do."

Carol also sees a bright future for education in Thief River Falls. "We have a standout educational system," she said. "I envision that all our kids become successful and happy in their lives, that they are fulfilled in life and that the school will play a part in helping them realize their potential and self esteem." This individualized approach to education has been an approach Carol has long touted as necessary for the total education of students. As she put it, "We need to work with kids with special needs, the gifted, the children with special talents such as in sports or music and a whole array of other things. We need to meet the individual needs of the kids. That's how we'll give them a quality education. I really feel it's important that we value everyone and their individual needs and also, the different aspects of people. We all have different gifts and talents. Everyone needs to feel valued, to feel success and to know they are important. Our school system is well on its way to accomplishing this goal and I believe that we will accomplish it!"

If she could leave the community with one thought, what would it be? "I can't say enough positive things about the members of the community!" she exclaimed. "For example, all the money and time provided to the schools. People continue to do it, year after year, week after week!" While serving as District #564's Volunteer Coordinator, Carol had spoken to many other groups across the state on starting volunteer programs. She was continuously met with disbelief that individuals would be willing to contribute hours without recompense. Certainly, they would argue with her, it couldn't be happening in her community. "I kept telling them," said Carol, "that our people value our kids and the importance of education. And they show it with their support of the school and school projects." She also noted that we as a community should be realize all that we have done. "We are a unique community," she said, "and we need to be proud of that!"

Catherine Hagen Is Recipient of Chamber of Commerce Higher Education Award

Her voice is soft-spoken, her manner mild and her smile radiates the beautiful spirit within. Yet Catherine Hagen -- Cathy to those who know her -- is a giver to her family, friends, students and the community. She is also the 1998 recipient of the Chamber of Commerce Higher Education Award, given at the annual Chamber of Commerce Banquet on January 10.

You will find Cathy serving as accompanist at any number of events. She was the accompanist for this year's Northland Community and Technical College fall production of The Sound of Music, for instance. But Cathy has been serving as pianist for musicals in Thief River Falls since 1970. She has also served as church pianist, pianist for college and Lincoln high school choirs and Masterworks Chorales and Top Hat Revues, has played in Marching Band and Jazz Band, played for weddings and funerals, been a performer for faculty recitals and served as accompanist for workshops with outside directors. She claims to be a homebody -- but if she is, she is a homebody who is rarely home because she is accompanying someone somewhere all the time.

Cathy was born and raised in Thief River Falls and has lived here all her life. She and her husband Mark have two sons -- Joshua and Michael. Cathy teaches piano lessons at Northland Community and Technical College and also has her own studio - Catherine Hagen Piano Studio -- at which she teaches private students. She credits her family for her ability to be as involved as she is in the community and through all the oftentimes hectic schedule she keeps. "My husband and kids are very supportive," she said. "I couldn't do it without their understanding. They are wonderful."

Cathy started piano lessons in first grade. "I remember," she said, "I had a toy piano which was really little and which I really loved." It was when her uncle was shifting some furniture during a move, that a real piano arrived in her parental home. Cathy loved it and she showed such potential, her parents (Don and Gladys Barron) decided to enroll her in private piano lessons with Theone Brown. She kept taking private lessons from Theone through the 12th grade including summers. When asked if she ever shirked at her lessons, she shook her head and said, "I don't remember ever not wanting to practice. I always wanted to play the piano. And probably because I practiced so diligently, I was given other opportunities. For instance I was fortunate enough to receive private instruction on the harpsichord from a concert harpsichordist from Geneva, Switzerland that the Foundation [Northland Community and Technical College Foundation] had flown in."

With her talent, it would be logical to assume that Cathy would immediately pursue a music career, but she did not. She had tried other careers including sales. She was successful, but found something lacking. "I was fortunate enough," she noted, "to realize what I really wanted to do was teach -- and specifically to teach piano. I find teaching immensely satisfying. I am still extremely busy, but I do what I love and it doesn't really feel like work. I think each person needs to really look inside themselves and find their own niche -- where they belong in the community."

Cathy noted we are lucky to live in a community like Thief River Falls that values music and other fine arts as well as sports. "Thief River Falls has been really good to me," she said. "It is a wonderful place to raise a family. And we are very fortunate to have the many opportunities we have here -- from athletics to the fine arts. What a person gets out of music and the fine arts is similar to what a person gets out of athletics. It's physical, emotional, analytical, and personal PLUS just as an individual prepares themselves to be part of an athletic team, so a musician must hone their talents to work with others in an orchestra, band, choir, dramatic production or what have you. We are all building teamwork skills to be used in life. It's just that you can reach some people with athletics and some with fine arts and others with a combination. I appreciate that Thief River Falls recognizes the need for balance and the need to meet individual needs with a wide cultural base." This fact is very comforting to her. "I can't imagine a community without music. Even audience members at a music concert participate emotionally. To not have that opportunity here because we're a smaller and more remote area would be unthinkable ... especially when we look at fully developing our children for their future."

Cathy also noted recent studies on piano students who were ranked against non-piano students which showed that the piano students' scores on special relationships and abstract thinking were consistently and significantly higher than other students. "Music does play a part in developing the whole individual," she said. "In order to really play, you have to put your whole heart, mind and body into it. Music is such a huge part of my life, I can't imagine others being without it and not being able to reap the benefits from it esthetically and emotionally."

She also noted that exposure to wide variety of music or art or dramatic presentations is essential to building the well-being of an individual and that will encourage an individual to expand himself. Was she herself encouraged like this? "Yes," stated Cathy emphatically. "Musical experiences I had on tours influenced me, but I think people were behind all the encouragement I was given. Certainly my parents were big supporters by providing the opportunities for me in piano and band and the moral support. I was also encouraged by various teachers and directors, especially my piano teacher who provided a variety of performing opportunities. But so many others have given me so many wonderful experiences. For example, Les Torgersan and I have worked together for 25 years. I have learned so much about styling from Les... and also, that you can do whatever you want to do, you just have to go for it; just do it. I hesitate to list all the people I have to thank because I don't want to miss anyone. So many people have made an impact on me."

She notes that after a long day of working with students, playing accompaniment for choral or band groups and other musical activities, she still will just sit at her piano and play for hours. "Music is very therapeutic. It is a way to bring out emotions, to release anger and joy," she said.

She also noted music allows others to discover the depths inside themselves -- that it is so universal, it can move people where mere words fail. "When people tell me they've been moved by a piece I've done," she noted, "it has an impact on them, but also an impact on me. Music connects people. And I plan to keep on working with others in the community to keep on connecting people...through music. After all, that's what we're all here for."

The six year plan for the facility indicates spending $590,000 for system equipment and modifications. These projects are separate from the pond project to raise the elevation of the dikes two feet. The project to raise the level of the dikes two feet is to meet requirements of the MPCA for the processing of inflow and infiltration in the collection system.

To help rebuild the reserves and pay for the equipment and system modifications, the committee is recommending the increase in wastewater rates in 1998 to raise an additional $50,000. This increase would become effective in March 1998.

To pay for the loan of $1.6 million from the Public Facilities Authority, a rate increase is planned for 1999 to raise $140,000 for annual payments on the loan. They may need less than $140,000 if the loan interest rate is less than six percent.

The rate increase may not take place in 1999. At present, the city is not listed for funding on the 1999 MPCA Intended Use Plan. If the project is not funded in 1999 and is in 2000, the rate increase will be delayed until 2000.

The current charge on 4,000 gallons per month for residential use is $4.75. The proposed change for 1998 would increase the monthly charge to $5.84. The proposed change for 1999 would increase that amount to $7.47, which is an increase of 63 percent from current rates.

The present rate on 8000 gallons for residential use in one month is $6.15. The increase in 1998 would increase the charge to $8.40. The increase for 1999 would increase the rate to $10.87, a total increase of roughly 56 percent from current rates. The current statewide average is $12.88 for 8000 gallons per month.

Industrial and commercial users would see more significant dollar increases. Monthly increases would vary depending upon the size of their water line and usage amount. Generally, increases in 1998 would range from $1.16 to $758. Increases in 1999 would range from $12 to $809.

The information was presented to the council Tuesday for its consideration. The utilities committee expects to ask the council for approval at its March 10 council meeting.

Office Furniture Bids

Office furniture bids for the offices at the renovated Soo Depot were accepted by the council Tuesday. Three bids were received for the project which had been rebid due to a project management error. The apparent low bid was made by Steffan's Office Furniture at $64,690.11. Gaffaney's and Tony Dom Inc. also bid on the project. All three bids were within $2,500 of each other. After review it was recommended that the bid be awarded to Steffan's Office Furniture and to include alternates bringing the total to $66,680.34. The engineer's estimate on the project was $80,000.

Fishing Pier Completed

A fishing pier and access ramp below the reservoir dam in Thief River Falls are nearly complete. Arlo Rude, director of utilities, explained that the project was initiated by the Pennington County Soil and Water Conservation District (SWCD) and funded by the SWCD, City of Thief River Falls Electric department, and Red Lake Watershed District. The total cost of the project has been estimated at $69,718. The city's share of the project is $45,154. The SWCD's share was $28,246. The city has been informed that some of the cost of the rip rap replaced last summer because of spring flooding could be eligible for FEMA funds.

The project isn't quite finished yet. Some landscaping remains and the parking lot needs to be paved.

Mighty Kids Grant

The city council approved a resolution of support for a Mighty Kids grant application. Madelyn Vigen, director of Parks and Recreation, explained that she would be asking for a $2,000 grant that would help expand the tennis program. The Parks and Recreation department would like to purchase a tennis ball machine with some of the funds and use the remaining funds for supplies. Matching funds would not be required.

Support for Housing Project

The city council approved a resolution of support for acquisition and remodeling of Northland Village Apartments. According to Community Development Director Don Stewart, Jay Bagne and his partners are planning to acquire the apartments and improve the buildings, apartments and lots. Because they are seeking government funding, they need a resolution of support from the council. The resolution of support does not include a financial commitment by the city.

Loan Application Approved

The council has approved a loan in the amount of $127,000 from the Community Development Revolving Loan Fund to Northern Woodwork Inc. The loan will assist in the purchase of a new CNC Machining Center, which will cost about $152,000. The Community Development Advisory Board recommended that the council approve the loan application with an annual rate of interest at six percent amortized over five years. Collateral for the loan shall be the equipment being purchased. As part of the loan agreement, wage level and job creation goals were established. The project shall include creation of seven full-time equivalent positions at an annual average salary of $18,000.

In other business, the council approved the hiring of Mike Spears to the full-time firefighters position effective January 25, approved a $1,000 allocation to the Senior Nutrition Council to cover excess senior meals program costs for 1997, approved a consumption of alcoholic beverage permit at the fairgrounds for the Ironman Snowmobile races on January 24 and 25, approved the revised job description for the city mechanic position, approved the airport farm land rental contracts with Jim Rondorf, approved dance applications for music patrol on January 30, February 12 and 25 at the Thief River Falls Armory.

Oklee H.S. in one-act play contest Jan. 17

Oklee high School competed in the sub section one act play contest held in Oklee on January 17. Oklee's play was a farce called "Cinderella?" by William Springer. The cast included Juli Gamm as the fairy Godmother, Talia Bishop as the Stepmother Judy Andrews, Cassie Knutson as Patsy, Mandy Roisland as Masi, Jessica Klasen as Levine, Amber Linder as Cinderella, Jennifer Tougas as The Queen, Crystle Moody as The Prince, Mackenzie Tougas as The Herald.

The cast successfully employed the farce to make the story a very funny production by combining a detective-wand carrying fairy godmother who is more concerned with punching the clock than helping Cinderella. Cinderella's step mother and step sister's only job was to make Cinderella's life a misery by forcing her to work hard for them. When Cinderella finally gets her new dress and sneakers, she is allowed to go to the ball to meet the Prince who is not really interested in marriage.

Confusion, mistakes, and prat falls helped make this story come to life as Oklee did its best to destroy an old story.

Red Lake Falls, and MCC advance to Section contest

Subsection one-act play contest was held in Oklee on January 17. Oklee, Plummer, Red Lake Falls and Marshall County Central competed to advance to the Section 31 one-act play contest. Red Lake Falls and Marshall County Central now advance to the Section contest that also will be held in Oklee on January 24 at 1 p.m.

At the Subsection contest, Red Lake Falls was first with "Competition Piece" by John S. Wells and Marshall County Central placed second with "The Blue Hour: City Sketches" by David Mamet. Oklee placed third with "Cinderella" by William Springer, and Plummer placed fourth with "The Dullsville Mystery" by Kim Esop Wylie. East Grand Forks was first in their subsection with "Medea" by Charles Ludlam and Crookston was second with "Linear Functions" by George R. Smith.

Everyone is welcome to attend the Section contest Saturday, January 24. There is no admission charge. There are a couple of rules, however, that must be followed: no flash pictures during a performance, and no one may leave or enter while a play is on. Audience members also are asked not to talk during performances.

Four industries in NW Minnesota being studied

An analysis of four industries key to the regional economy is underway in Northwest Minnesota by the State and Local Policy Program at the University of Minnesota's Hubert H. Humphrey Institute of Public Affairs. The study is being conducted through a collaborative grant provided by the University of Minnesota Extension Service.

Based on historical performance, the selected four industries show strong potential for on-going growth and jobs that pay well in the future. The four industries are called "clusters" because of linkages among firms. Included are recreation and transportation equipment, value-added agriculture, wood products and related building materials, and tourism.

Industry clusters were selected based on employment data generated by the Minnesota Department of Economic Security and the opinion of regional economic development professionals who comprise the study's advisory council. Humphrey Institute graduate student researchers are conducting focus group and individual interviews with industry representatives.

To better understand the dynamics of the industries clustered in the region, large and small business representatives will be asked about their company's experience with issues related to workforce, education, training, infrastructure, regulations, demand location, supplier relationships, and the local entrepreneurial culture.

The research team is using a framework popularized by Harvard Business School professor Michael Porter to analyze regional competitive advantage. Porter argues that factors other than low wages, cost, and natural resources determine a region's competitive, rather than comparative, advantage in the global economy.

The snowmobile industry is an example of how the interplay among local entrepreneurship, research and development, labor force, and local consumer demand create an industry cluster. According to Tim DeJong, Polaris Industries plant manager in Roseau, "The snowmobile industry started in the region and remains because of a culture of living the product — everyone has snowmobiles."

Jim Russ of Team Industries, a manufacturing firm with four plants in the Northwest, observes, "The future of Team Industries, and other Northwest Minnesota manufacturers, lies in cultivating the skills and adaptability of workers. With statewide labor shortages, increasing the number of technically trained workers would allow key industries to continue expansion and would allow employees to earn higher wages."

Tourism was also included in the study based on the industry's importance to the economy of the region. As David Bergman of the Minnesota Office of Tourism in Thief River Falls notes, "The tourism industry in Northwestern Minnesota offers many levels of employment from entry level jobs to professional and managerial positions."

LuAnn Hennum of Sportsman's Lodge in Baudette observes that work in the area's resorts provides valuable life skills training to young people. "The hospitality industry teaches high school students the value of a job, of working as a team, and of taking responsibility. These life skills are critical in any future entrepreneurial endeavors."

Says State and Local Policy Program researcher Margaret Bau, "Good paying jobs with growth potential exist right here in Northwest Minnesota. The trick is helping young people, parents, teachers, school counselors, and currently underemployed workers to understand what skills are in high demand — and then to align educational programs to the rapidly changing needs of industries and students."

Final study results will be available in May. "Results will be used to shape state and local policy, to focus employee training programs, and to advise students on promising careers in the region," according to Barbara Muesing, University of Minnesota Director of Outreach at the Crookston Campus.

Funds proposed for research on malformed frogs

Governor Arne H. Carlson has recommended that the Legislature set aside $500,000 in the coming session to expand the state's research into the problem of malformed frogs. The initiative was announced as part of the Governor's supplemental budget, and comes on the heels of an ambitious package of environmental initiatives Carlson announced last month.

"This funding is critical to our ability to solve the mystery of what's going on with the frogs in Minnesota," the Governor said. "Scientists in Minnesota and elsewhere have begun some important lines of inquiry into this problem. But we must provide additional resources so the work can continue. This problem may have important implications for the environment and human health, and we must get to the bottom of it."

The appropriation, from the state General Fund, would be directed to the Minnesota Pollution Control Agency. MPCA officials said the funding will be used for field work, laboratory analysis, and additional staff for the upcoming season. The MPCA is coordinating a team of researchers that includes the University of Minnesota, the Departments of Health and Agriculture, and federal agencies including the National Institute of Environmental Health Sciences and the National Wildlife Health Center.

MPCA Commissioner Peder Larson said the research team has made important discoveries but that much work remained to be done. "We've made a very good start in the last two years," Larson said. "But the answers to these questions don't come easily. This is one of the highest-profile investigations we've ever been involved in, and this funding will enable us to do some critical follow-up."

Last September MPCA and NIEHS officials jointly announced that tests using surface and groundwater from sites with large numbers of malformed frogs strongly suggested that something in the water at those sites was causing abnormalities. According to the MPCA, the Governor's FY99 initiative would provide funding needed to continue that line of investigation. The funds would also be used for:

- An investigation of water chemistry and other physical characteristics of wetlands with the intent of comparing study and reference sites (i.e., those with established patterns of abnormalities and those that appear so far to be normal.)
- Continued characterization of the incidence and severity of abnormalities around the state.
- Ground-water surveys to learn more about the interaction between ponds and ground water. This follows up on the preliminary indications that potential causative agents may be in ground water as well as surface water.
- Landscape analysis of specific sites to investigate the potential that human land-use activities may be a contributing factor in the abnormalities.
- Coordination and communication between state agencies and national research efforts.
- Three new intern positions at the MPCA to help with the frogs investigation.

The new initiative for the frogs investigation comes in addition to $200 million the Governor requested in the bonding bill for comprehensive outdoors initiative. The funds will be used to improve every park in the state, protect and enhance wildlife habitat, and create a one-stop shopping system for licenses.

Canola insurance program expanded

The Crop insurance program for canola has been expanded.

"Our goal is to convert crops covered by the Non-Insured Assistance Program (NAP) into insurance programs as soon as sufficient actuarial information becomes available," said Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman. "Under the NAP, producers receive assistance only if there is an area loss. Higher levels of protection are available under insurance plans and individual losses qualify for payment. Insurance provides better protection, which will enable producers to better manage their risk."

The canola pilot insurance program was initiated in selected counties of Idaho, Minnesota, Montana, North Dakota and Washington in 1995. Selected fall seeded counties in Oregon, Idaho and Georgia were added in 1997. Participation has varied from 60 to 77 percent of the insurable acreage.

Beginning this spring, canola insurance will be available in the following states and counties: Minnesota - Beltrami, Clearwater, Koochiching, Lake of the Woods, Mahnomen, Marshall, Norman, Pennington, East Polk, West Polk, Red Lake; Montana - Chouteau, Fergus, Liberty, Pondera, Teton, Toole; North Dakota - Benson, Eddy, Foster, Grand Forks, McHenry, Nelson, Pembina, Renville, Stutsman, Walsh, Ward, and Wells.

The announcement follows publication in the Federal Register of regulation converting the canola pilot program into a permanent program. For more information on the insurance program, contact your local crop insurance agent.

Beginning farmer loan program gets funding

Minnesota's beginning farmers will have $5 million available to them each calendar year starting in January of 1998 for loans covering purchases of land, farm equipment, buildings and livestock for breeding purposes.

The Minnesota legislature agreed to establish an annual $5 million reserve for agricultural development bond loan projects, known as "Aggie Bonds," earlier this year. The program makes funds available to local lenders, who then loan the money to farmers eligible for the program.

Since the Minnesota Agricultural Development Act passed in 1991, the Rural Finance Authority has processed more than $18.5 million in Aggie Bonds, helping 154 Minnesota farmers. However, funding for the program ran out in 1996. The new $5 million annual appropriation cleared the way for the program to resume.

Minnesota Department of Agriculture Commissioner Gene Hugoson said he was pleased the 1997 Minnesota legislature agreed to establish the reserve because the Aggie Bond program benefits both farmers and rural communities.

"I'm pleased that this appropriation will ensure an uninterrupted source of funds for Aggie Bonds," Commissioner Hugoson said. "This program is a great option for beginning farmers because it offers them a low cost source of long-term financing. What makes it even better is that the program also enhances rural economic development."

Through the Aggie Bond program, the credit decision and financial risk stay with the local lender. Agricultural lenders purchasing bonds under this program are responsible for making their own independent credit evaluations of the beginning farmers involved. The state and federal government do not assume any risk under the program.

To be eligible for the program, a borrower must qualify under rules of the RFA and under federal tax law governing qualified small-issue bonds. He or she also must:

- Be a resident of Minnesota;
- Have a net worth of less than $237,000 (indexed for inflation);
- Certify that farming will be the principal occupation of the individual borrower;
- Agree to participate in a farm management program approved by the Commissioner of Agriculture for at least the first five years of the loan;
- Have sufficient education, training or experience in the type of farming for which the loan is requested;
- Must never have owned more than 30 percent of the county median size farm.

For more information about Aggie Bonds or for an application, call the RFA office at 612-297-3557.

Darlene Nelson of Northland kept a close eye on Hibbing's Karissa Tvect, who looked for an open teammate during Friday's Minnesota Community College Conference Northern Division basketball game in Thief River Falls. The Pirates beat the Cardinals 93-55.

Pioneers, Cards split games

Northland opened its home Minnesota Community College Conference Northern Division home basketball schedule Friday with a doubleheader split against Hibbing, winning the women's game 93-55, but losing the men's contest 95-87.

Northland	93
Hibbing	55

Meckenzie Malwitz and Naomi Wilebski converted inside opportunities into points, leading the Northland women to a 93-55 win in the twinbill opener.

Malwitz, a 5-9 sophomore from Red Lake County Central, had a career-high 23-point game off the bench, and Wilebski, a 5-11 sophomore from Kittson County North, netted 21 as the two post players fed off a steady diet of passes underneath from their teammates.

Jenny Johnson (13), Darlene Nelson (11) and Paula Hovda (10) joined Malwitz and Wilebski in double figures as the Pioneers ran up their biggest offensive numbers of the season.

It was a rout from the start, with Northland leading 15-4 five minutes into the game, 32-13 at the 10-minute mark and 55-26 at halftime. The gap kept growing in the second half to 65-33 with five minutes gone, 75-42 at the midway mark and 81-46 at the 15-minute point.

The lopsided outcome overshadowed a 35-point game by Hibbing's Nicole Miska, a 5-9 freshman from Rush City. She scored at a steady pace throughout the game, picking up 17 points in the first half and 18 after intermission.

It was the second Northland victory over Hibbing this winter, with the Pioneers winning an 84-51 match-up in the Northland Invitational Dec. 19.

Scoring

	1	2	T
Hibbing	26	29	55
Northland	55	38	93

Hibbing - Jackie Karela 3, Taryn Barnes 11, Heather Floe 2, Nicole Miska 35, Trish Theroe 4.

Northland - Jamekka Lucas 5, Paula Hovde 10, Jenny Johnson 13, Naomi Wilebski 21, Darlene Nelson 11, Amber Berg 2, Meckenzie Malwitz 23, Tammy Nerby 0, Rayna Benson 2.

Hibbing	95
Northland	87

Hibbing took over down the stretch to beat Northland 95-87 in the men's game.

After the two teams had swapped the lead four times in a six-possession series near the middle of the second half, the Cardinals turned it up a notch – turning a 74-70 lead with 5:50 to play into a 10-point gap with 4:06 left as Kris Arnebeck scored from underneath, Todd Newman hit two free throws and Arnebeck was credited with a basket on a fast break that drew a Northland goaltending call, making it 80-70.

The Pioneers never recovered. The spread hit 13 with 1:21 remaining following a steal and a fast break lay-up by Justin Day that made it 89-76.

Hibbing's finishing kick out-did an early-game 10-0 Northland run that began with a third straight 3-point basket by Nic Thompson and ended with a fast break lay-up off a steal by Melvin Whitney Jr. that made it 18-7 with just six minutes gone.

But Northland picked up only three free throws over the next 12 minutes to fall behind 27-21. The Pioneers did pull within 41-38 at halftime on a 3-pointer by Josh Whitlock with 7.8 seconds left, and it stayed close until the Cardinal breakaway at the end.

It wound up being a free throw marathon that saw the two teams go to the line 77 times. Northland had just as many free throws (26/41) as field goals (26/64). Hibbing complemented a busy night at the line (23/36) with 61 percent shooting from the field (33/54).

In an individual shoot-out, the Pioneers' Chaka Ali, a 6-4 freshman from Minneapolis, out-scored the Cardinals' Todd Bigelow, a 6-2 freshman from Hibbing, 32-30. Northland also got a 21-point game from Thompson, a 6-1 sophomore from Warroad, while Dwight Goodwin netted 12 and Josh Whitlock contributed 10. Hibbing also had double-digit games from Jeremy Morrison and Arnebeck with 15 and 13 points, respectively.

Rebounds and turnovers were nearly even, with Hibbing posting a 28-27 edge on the boards and Northland turning it over one more time than Hibbing, 22-21.

Nordics' rally comes up short

Marshall County Central fell behind, rallied, but could not complete the comeback Friday in a 54-50 boys high school basketball loss to Lake of the Woods at Newfolden.

The Nordics trailed by seven points at the first two quarter stops, 14-7 and 35-28, before pulling within 41-39 at the end of the third quarter.

"We shot so poorly (3/16) in the first quarter," pointed out Marshall County Central coach Ron Ueland, "and they (Bears) shot really well. Second half we did a better job defensively when we got out of the zone. I guess we should have done that earlier."

Marshall County Central's comeback efforts presented the Nordics with the opportunity to go ahead on 11 different occasions in the fourth quarter, but they could never accomplish the feat.

"We could never get over the hump," noted Ueland. "We missed shots and turned the ball over when we had the chance to go ahead."

Greg Hufnagle scored 17 points and Rian Berg had 12 for the Bears, who reversed an early-season 63-47 loss to Marshall County Central at Baudette. David Wilcox finished with a game-high 20 points for the Nordics, and Jon Donarski netted 14.

Donarski also drew three charging fouls, a figure that enabled the 6-3 senior to set a single-season team record in that category. "That might not be real newsworthy to a lot of people, but it's important to us," said Ueland, whose team fell to 8-5 with back-to-back losses by a total of five points.

Bears' quickness beats RLCC boys

Trailing by seven at halftime, Red Lake County Central was forced out of its zone into a man-to-man defense in the second half, opening the doors for Clearbrook-Gonvick to utilize its quickness as the host Bears ran away from the Mustangs 72-46 in Friday night boys high school basketball.

"Their speed really hurt us," pointed out Red Lake County Central coach Chris McLean. "They ran right by us."

Clearbrook-Gonvick began with a 15-7 first quarter lead, went into halftime with a 34-27 advantage and opened up a 47-35 third quarter gap.

"I thought we played a really good first half, but when we fell behind we had to go to the man-to-man," explained McLean. "They're a lot quicker than we are, and they shot the ball really well."

Seth Dorman scored 21 points, Cade Hagen 17 and Jon Gerlofs 15 for the Bears, who were 10-for-22 from 3-point range. Mark Lorenson led the Mustangs with 15 points.

It was the fourth straight loss for the 3-8 Mustangs, who followed a familiar pattern with a 30 percent shooting night from the field. "We're struggling offensively," noted McLean. "In our last four games, 35 percent is the best shooting percentage we've had."

Red Lake County Central was 10-for-15 at the free throw line, where Clearbrook-Gonvick was 10-for-13.

Roseau skates past [illegible]

Roseau out-shot Thief River Falls 41-15 Saturday en route to a one-sided 9-0 high school hockey win.

It was the second straight shutout slapped on the 2-12 Prowlers, who where blanked by Warroad 4-0 Tuesday. But there was a world of difference in the two games, pointed out Thief River Falls coach Scott Bergland. The Prowlers played well at home against Warroad. The same couldn't be said for their performance at Roseau, according to Bergland. "My only comment is that I would like to apologize to all the parents and fans who had to sit through such a total lack of effort," he said. "It almost made me ill."

The Rams overpowered the Prowlers with a three-goal hat trick by Mike Klema, two goals each by Josh Olson and David Lundblom plus single goals by Philip Larson and Aaron Depemess. David [illegible] and Jesse Mo[illegible] both collected three assists.

Meanwhile, Roseau goalie [illegible] Brandt had an easy night of it in the nets, facing only seven shots over the first two periods. Thief River Falls netminder Mike Downs saw more than twice as many shots in a 32-save effort.

Roseau didn't get on the board until 10:34 of the opening period but it was 3-0 before the first intermission. The Rams doubled that lead in the second period and closed out the running time third period with three more goals.

Storm third quarter breaks open game against MCC girls

Marshall County Central was out-scored 13-2 in the third quarter Saturday and lost a 56-35 girls high school basketball game to Stephen-Argyle.

Down 15-9 at the end of the first quarter, the visiting Nordics were able to stay within 32-24 in the first half, but saw the scoreboard spread climb to 45-26 in the third quarter.

"The third quarter really hurt us," acknowledged Marshall County Central coach Alice Dahl. "We had shots that just didn't go in."

Amy Kuznia scored 15 points, Abbey Bergeron 11 and Sarah Kuznia 10 for the Storm. Kristi Kilen turned in a 14-point, 17-rebound game for the Nordics. Mandi Blawat also came up big on the boards for Marshall County Central with 15 rebounds.

"The kids worked hard," pointed out Dahl, whose team fell to 1-11.

Marshall County Central shot 36 percent from the field (16/44) and went 1-for-6 at the free throw line. Stephen-Argyle was 5-for-7 from 3-point range in a 39 percent shooting night (16/41). The Storm went 7-for-13 at the line. The Nordics finished with a 41-25 rebound advantage while cutting their turnovers to a season-low 15. Stephen-Argyle lost the ball just six times.

Goodridge dropped below .500 for the first time this season with weekend boys high school basketball losses to Red Lake Falls and Warren-Alvarado-Oslo.

The Eagles beat the Huskies 66-56 Friday in Goodridge, while the Ponies posted a 58-37 victory in a Saturday game played at Northland Community and Technical College.

Results dropped the Huskies to 5-7.

Red Lake Falls turned in a 55 percent 24-for-44 shooting performance in beating Goodridge 66-56.

The Eagles were 7-for-13 from 3-point range as they posted quarter leads of 12-11, 33-25 and 47-36.

"They out-shot us," said Goodridge coach Eric Mickelson. "It was a good game. Both teams played tough, physical basketball. Our defense was pretty good, but they have a lot of talented shooters."

And when fouls began to mount on both sides, Red Lake Falls' deeper bench became a factor, explained Mickelson.

Tony Cassavan scored 17 points while Eric Hopperstad and Jesse Adelman both had 10 for the Eagles, who also beat the Huskies 59-54 in a Dec. 12 Northland Invitational semifinal match-up. Goodridge was led by Jim Schect and Ben Hanson with 18 and 1[illegible] points, respectively.

The Huskies were 23-for-59 from the field (39 percent) and 9-for-15 at the free throw line, where the Eagles made 11 of 16. Goodridge had a 29-21 rebound edge, but also topped the turnover charts, 19-18.

Slow start doesn't keep Gators from picking up victory

Badger/Greenbush-Middle River overcame a slow start Monday to beat Stephen-Argyle 50-35 in girls high school basketball.

The host Gators trailed 6-2 at the end of the first quarter, but they were ahead 19-11 at halftime and opened up a 39-21 spread through three quarters.

"Monday games ought to be illegal," said Badger/Greenbush-Middle River coach Tom Neibauer. "I hate 'em. We never play well on Monday."

Tiffany Hagen scored 12 points and Stefanie Sparby had 11 for the Gators, who found the range after the first quarter and shot 42 percent from the field from the night (24/57).

"We missed and missed and missed shots in the first quarter," pointed out Neibauer. "We were getting the same shots after that, but they were going in."

The Gators had a quiet 1-for-4 night at the free throw line, where the Storm was 10-for-17.

Badger/Greenbush-Middle River is 11-2.

RLCC girls top Fosston

Red Lake County Central started slow, but finished with a 46-38 girls high school basketball win over Fosston Thursday (Jan. 15) at Oklee.

The Mustangs trailed 6-3 at the end of the first quarter and were down 20-15 at halftime before they doubled their offensive output in the third quarter to go ahead 30-27.

"We got off to a slow start offensively," acknowledged Red Lake County Central coach Rick Kolvisto, "but we played well defensively. We hadn't faced a 1-3-1 this year, but we made some adjustments and played pretty well in the second half."

Angie Chervestad scored 15 points and Katie O'Neill had 14 for the Mustangs, who improved to 8-4.

Willow Goldsmith led the Greyhounds with 10 points.

Red Lake County Central was 20-for-45 from the field (44 percent) and 6-for-14 at the free throw line. Fosston went 16-for-47 from the floor (34 percent) and 5-for-8 at the line. The Greyhounds had a 25-22 rebound edge. The Mustangs wound up with more turnovers, 22-18.

Gators stop Eagles' offense in 62-48 win

Jeremy Vacura scored 20 points and Badger/Greenbush-Middle River put together a strong defensive effort Saturday as the Gators beat visiting Grygla-Gatzke 62-48 in boys high school basketball.

The Gators improved to 8-3 while the Eagles fell to 2-9 with their ninth straight loss.

Badger/Greenbush-Middle River started the game with a 7-0 run and led 18-10 after one quarter. But the Gators carried only a 26-23 lead into halftime before opening up a 43-34 third quarter spread.

The Eagles shot 49 percent from the field, but they put up only 37 shots (hitting 18). "They played tough defense," said Grygla-Gatzke coach Vern Johnson. "They forced us to work for shots."

Grygla-Gatzke also had 21 of the game's 30 turnovers.

"We had too many unforced turnovers," noted Johnson, whose team opened the second half with three consecutive turnovers that sabotaged the Eagles' upset bid.

Daryl Wockenfuss and Bret Bentow joined Vacura in double figures for the Gators with 12 and 10 points, respectively. Alex Anderson of Grygla-Gatzke led all scorers with 26 points, but he was the Eagles' only double figure point producer.

Badger/Greenbush-Middle River was 21-for-45 from the field (47 percent) and 14-for-20 at the free throw line, where Grygla-Gatzke went 4-for-7. The Gators outrebounded the Eagles 26-19.

Mustangs lose lead, game to RLF, 44-39

Red Lake County Central saw a seven-point halftime lead disappear Monday in a 44-39 girls high school basketball loss to Red Lake Falls at Oklee.

The Mustangs started with a 16-12 first quarter advantage and were ahead 27-20 at halftime. But they trailed 36-34 after three quarters, and, although it stayed close, Red Lake County Central turnovers and missed free throw spelled the difference down the stretch.

Jodi Purath was 4-for-4 at the free throw line for the Eagles at the end to wrap it up, while the Mustangs were just 3-for-9 at the line in the fourth quarter – part of a 5-for-13 free throw night. They also turned it over 21 times, including a key mistake with 40 seconds left in a 40-39 game.

"We played a good first half," noted Red Lake County Central coach Rick Koivisto. "I warned them at halftime to beware of a third quarter letdown, and that's exactly what happened. They (Eagles) turned it up a notch and came at us hard. They put a lot of pressure on, and we didn't handle it very well."

Wolverines out-score Bears

■ Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke girls win 91-73

Angie Gast scored 30 points, Kathryn Stanley had 27 and Jenny Nelson 19 Monday as Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke outlasted Lake of the Woods 91-73 in a high-scoring girls high school basketball game played at Baudette.

The Bears' offense featured Ellie Waibel with 21 points, Heather Hanson 20 and Kimi Bragdon 19. Bragdon's effort put her over the 1,000-point mark for her career.

The Wolverines won after overcoming a 10-point first quarter deficit. Lake of the Woods led 14-11 at the end of the first quarter and carried a 43-41 edge into halftime. Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke went ahead 66-57 in the third quarter. The Wolverines were up just seven with a minute to play, but turned the Bears' must-foul situation into game-clinching free throws.

It was the fifth straight win for the Wolverines, who are now 8-5.

"We're playing pretty good ball right now," said Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke coach Mike Gast. "We hit the boards pretty decent, and although the score might not indicate it, I thought we played pretty well defensively. We pressured them as much as we could, and I think we wore them down."

Stanley added 12 rebounds to her point production and Gast had 9. The inside game provided by those two was complemented by Nelson's outside scoring.

The winners were 32-for-66 from the field (48 percent) and a busy 26-for-38 at the free throw line, including a 13-for-18 fourth quarter. The Bears shot 51 percent from the floor (31/61) and 50 percent at the line (10/20). Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke finished with a 37-35 rebound edge.

Northland women tip Rainy River...

Late-game steals nets NCTC a win

Two final-minute steals by guard Jamekka Lucas finished off a 62-59 Northland win over Rainy River Saturday afternoon in Minnesota Community College Conference women's basketball.

Trailing 59-58, the Pioneers went ahead when Lucas came up with a steal, drove the length of the court and put in a lay-up with 11 seconds to play.

Moments later Lucas, a 5-7 freshman from St. Paul, came up with another steal, headed downcourt and dished the ball off to teammate Naomi Wilebski for a lay-up at the buzzer.

The win completed a weekend Northern Division home court sweep for the Pioneers, who beat Hibbing 93-55 the night before. Northland is 6-5 overall and 2-2 in the MCCC.

Northland led by as many as 12 points in the first half, but settled for a 35-35 halftime tie. "They (Rainy River) started with a zone, then switched to man-to-man and we started turning it over," explained Northland coach Rick Nikunen.

The two teams split 48 turnovers. "It was a sloppy game," noted Nikunen. "With that many turnovers, it was hard to get any flow going."

Wilebski scored 17 points and Jenny Johnson had 15 for the Pioneers. Jessica Hanson led Rainy River with 18 points and Steph Tangen netted 15.

Northland was 20-for-59 from the field (34 percent) and 9-for-12 at the free throw line. Rainy River went 24-for-42 from the floor (57 percent), but made just 11 of 21 free throws. The Pioneers won the rebound battle 32-30.

Northland turned it over 21 times in falling behind 45-29 at halftime. The 1-10 Pioneers have not had a lead at the half all year.

Rainy River had an offense that featured Levar Harris with 24 points, Tony Rittmon 22, Tyrone Robinson 13 and Kevin Pagnac and Chares Ownes 12 each. Northland countered with a game-high 26-point effort by Chaka Ali, 15 from Josh Whitlock and 12 from Nic Thompson.

It was the second loss of the weekend for the Pioneers, who fell to Hibbing 95-87 Friday night. They are 0-4 in MCCC Northern Division play.

Northland shot 47 percent from the field (28/60) and went 10-for-17 at the free throw line, where Rainy River was a productive 17-for-20.

Law enforcement investigate several burglaries in area

Law enforcement officials in Thief River Falls and Pennington County are investigating a number of burglaries. Two individuals are in custody following a burglary at the Lantern Restaurant and Lounge Friday evening.

Billy Marvin Yonke, 23, Thief River Falls, and Mark Steven Groslie, 18, Thief River Falls, are in custody and expected to face charges of burglary in the third degree and criminal damage to property in connection with a burglary at the Lantern Restaurant and Lounge reported January 16. The complaint against the two men alleges that they smashed out a window and caused other damage at the Lantern totaling over $700. They also took a safe containing an estimated $2,500. The safe has not been recovered yet. Officials are asking that anyone who locates the 18-inch by 24-inch safe to not touch it and contact authorities immediately.

Burglary. On January 13 at 1:40 p.m police received a report of a burglary at a residence in a local trailer court. Entry was gained by forcing open a door. Taken was a VCR and remote valued at $350. Damage loss was estimated at $80.

On January 16 at 8:04 a.m. police received a report that someone had entered a garage at a local residence and had taken a vehicle and returned it. But missing from the vehicle was a VCR player valued at $250. In addition, damage to the vehicle was estimated at $300. The incident remains under investigation.

Accidents. On January 13 at 8:06 a.m. police received a report of an accident in the 300 block of North Main. Jodi Lynn Bergman, Thief River Falls, was stopped in traffic in her van at a stop light when her vehicle was struck from behind by a car driven by Lauro Jane Follett, Thief River Falls. The collision caused the Bergman vehicle to collide with a pickup in front of her and driven by Brandon Lee Wright of Thief River Falls. Police estimated damages at $500 to the Follett vehicle, and $2,500 to the Bergman vehicle.

On January 17 at 5:30 p.m. the sheriff's department received a report of a snowmobile accident near the intersection of Highway 59 and County road 57 in Smiley township. According to the accident report, Chad Timothy Nelson, 22, Thief River Falls, was driving a snowmobile and crossing a crossing when it landed nose down on some land without snow on it. A passenger on the snowmobile, Arland Dale Nelson, 20, Newfolden, was thrown from the snowmobile and it landed on his leg. Arland Nelson was taken to Northwest Medical Center. Damage to the snowmobile was estimated at $1,000.

On January 19 at 11:42 p.m. police received a report of an accident at Third and Horace Avenue. Valarie Jean Horachek, Goodridge, was driving a car north on Horace and failed to stop for the stop sign. Upon entering the intersection her car collided with a car driven by Randy Dean McBride, Thief River Falls, who was traveling west on Third. Erika Hedlund, 19, complained of back pain. Horachek was cited for a stop sign violation. Police estimated damages at $3,500 to the Horachek vehicle, and $2,000 to the McBride vehicle.

Forgery. On January 14 police received a report that someone had forged a check written to Lincoln High School for a yearbook. It is alleged that Anthony Scott Hendricks, 18, Thief River Falls, took the check, crossed off "Lincoln High School", and added "or cash" and endorsed the check using his own name.

On January 14 police received a report that a 16-year-old female from Thief River Falls had taken a check and forged it for $75.

Hit and run. On January 15 law enforcement received a report of a hit and run incident at Highway 32 and St. Hilaire Liquor store in St. Hilaire. Upon investigation law enforcement learned that Jadon Dennis Skjerven, 22, Thief River Falls, was turning south out of the parking lot when his vehicle struck an unattended vehicle parked on Highway 32 and belonging to Baker's Acres. The sheriff's department estimated damages at $450 to the Skjerven vehicle, and $500 to the Baker's Acres vehicle. Skjerven faces charges of driving while intoxicated, leaving the scene of an accident and no proof of insurance.

Drugs. On January 17 at 4:57 p.m. police stopped a vehicle on probable cause on a drug investigation. The driver, Joshua John Melby, 19, Thief River Falls, was taken into custody and faces charges of driving while under the influence of marijuana, and possession of drug paraphernalia. The investigation into the drug case is continuing.

These reports include names of individuals charged, arrested or cited with various crimes and offenses by police, the sheriff's department or other law enforcement officials. Depending upon the circumstances of a case, charges can be, and sometimes are, changed or dropped by law enforcement officials or attorneys even before the case reaches court. Readers should also realize that under the American system of jurisprudence, individuals charged with crimes are innocent until proven guilty of those crimes in a court of law.

Dr. Charlas Samualson of Thief River Falls was the master of ceremonies at the 5M-11 District Annual Mid-Winter Convention of Lions which was held at the Best Western in Thief River Falls Saturday. Over 400 people from across the state attended the event. Hosts for the event were the Thief River Falls Lioness club and Thief River Falls Lions club.

A dollar for charity. One of the activities at the Lions club Governor's Banquet and Ball was an effort to raise money for charity. Participants in the event were each asked to hold up $1 in support of the event. Hosts for the event were Thief River Falls Lioness and Lions.

NW Minnesota Foundation grants available for restoration projects

Northwest Minnesota Foundation has announced the availability of grants for community fix-up and restoration projects. Through a collaborative effort with the Valspar Corporation and the Minnesota Beautiful Picture-It-Painted Program, help soon will be given to communities and organizations to obtain paint and other coating materials necessary for rehabilitation activities.

"Valspar has been an important part of the Minnesota landscape for decades," said Ruth Edevold, executive director of the Foundation. "The company is now continuing its tradition of community involvement by bringing the Picture-It-Painted Program to northwest Minnesota."

Six grants will be awarded by the Northwest Minnesota Foundation for restoration or beautification efforts which best meet its eligibility criteria. Selection will be based on the visual impact of the proposed projects, potential advantages to the public, volunteer participation and support, intended use of the restored building, and benefit to the needy. "Valspar is excited about the prospect of expanding the Picture-It-Painted Program to northwest Minnesota," commented Gwen Leifeld, administrator of the Valspar Foundation. "This program provides Valspar with an avenue for promoting community restoration projects throughout Greater Minnesota. We look forward to partnering with the Northwest Minnesota Foundation on this endeavor."

Projects which might qualify for a grant include, but are not limited to, those involving historic structures, senior citizen and community centers, facilities for the handicapped, publicly owned buildings, and murals or other visual-impact designs. Projects which would not qualify include those dealing with denominational churches, city maintenance or private properties.

Grant applications are due by March 6, and awards will be announced on April 1. "We hope our communities and organizations will take advantage of this unique opportunity to brighten a local building," said Edevold. "Taking pride in our communities and the way they look is important to us here in the north country."

Applications can be obtained by contacting the Foundation at 218-759-2057 or 1-800-659-7859.

Rep Tunheim writes President about conditions on farms

by Rep. Jim Tunheim

Farmers in Northwestern Minnesota are facing the worst economic condition in history. Low market prices and continual problems with wheat scab have caused this catastrophe. Recently, U.S. Representative Collin Peterson, State Senator LeRoy Stumpf and I met with local farmers and they shared their devastating stories with us.

In response to this meeting, I sent a letter to President Bill Clinton asking him to understand the unfortunate condition our farmers are facing. I explained that never in history, including the farm crisis of the 1980s, have so many farmers in District 1A faced financial difficulties. Four years of failed spring wheat production due to harsh weather conditions, disease, low prices, and the loss of federal price supports have taken their toll on the area farmers.

The letter also states: "The 'Freedom to Farm' act of 1996 has abandoned the concept of a safety net for U.S. farmers and replaced it with a concept of flexibility in crop production governed exclusively by market forces. This flexibility of production and reliance on market forces has had some success in some areas of the country. Unfortunately, the adoption of a one size fits all policy of price support elimination, where a farmer simply adjusts crop production based on current market forces, does not take into account the extreme climactic conditions we face in Northwestern Minnesota. Historically, beside limited acres of Red River Valley sugar beets and canola, there are little or no other profitable crop options other than hard red spring wheat.

"My earnest plea to you is that you work with U.S. Agriculture Secretary Dan Glickman and Congress to immediately implement an emergency floor price of $5 per bushel for hard red spring wheat. I see this as a necessary but hopefully temporary emergency measure to stabilize the economy of Northwestern Minnesota and other wheat regions of the country.

"According to the Minnesota Wheat Growers Association, the current cost of production for spring red wheat is $4.57 per bushel. The current market price, with discounts, as of January 9, 1998, is $2.90 per bushel. As you can see Mr. President, there is no way a farmer can survive with such a financial loss. We are in jeopardy of losing an entire industry!"

In addition to President Clinton, I sent this letter to U.S. Agriculture Secretary Glickman, Minnesota's congressional delegation, and Executive Director of the Minnesota Wheat Growers Association Dave Torgerson. I encourage anyone who shares my concerns about the farm economy to write our U.S. Senators and Representative. Their addresses in Washington D.C. are: Sen. Paul Wellstone, 136 Hart Senate Office Building, Washington, DC, 20510; Sen. Rod Grams, 261 Dirksen Senate Office Building, Washington, DC, 20510; and Rep. Collin Peterson, 2159 Rayburn House Office Building, Washington, DC, 20515.

During the 1998 Legislative session, I can be contacted at 509 State Office Building, 100 Constitution Ave., St. Paul, MN 55155-1298, rep.jim.tunheim@house.leg.state.mn.us or (612) 296-9635.

1997 Library Board President Esther Gallagher and 1998 Library Board President Gary Johnson present outgoing board member Janice Uphem with their appreciation and a gold book fountain book mark for her many years of service on the local board. During her tenure, Jan was instrumental in heading up the library's 90th anniversary celebration, which won a state award for its excellence in public relations. She also was a driving force behind the original board formation, the formation of the library's endowment fund and the barcoding of the entire library collection, which was done by volunteers and staff in three days. Unable to attend, departing board member Norma Spong. Spong was also applauded for her efforts on the library board as library board president and a dedicated worker on a number of projects.

Claudia Borggren, Jessie and Kali, Trace Tumwall, from Prior Lake, Elmer Holmstrom, Evelyn Albaugh, Marie Stolton, Pat Larson, Abbey and Rachael Johnson, Betty Pietruszewski and Joanne Krantz were guests at Judy's Coffee House on New Years Day. That is where you find Kind Hospitality".

With this drastic change in the weather I was wondering how come so many people came to this area to live and bring more like them into the world and came to the conclusion that I would sort of find out by things that have been handed down from the earlier settlers. Next week it will start by a story from a record by a man and his family who came to northwest Minnesota in the 1800s. Time ran out today for me.

The weather in Northwest Minnesota is sunny and cold today - 22°. Below zero but little or no wind. We have had such a nice winter so far, so we feel a bit chilly when the regular temperature for January put in its appearance. Last night the full moon on the new snow made a picture that could only be painted on your mind. The peace and tranquility that sight can bring to anyone privileged to experience it is worth a lot. It is great to live in this area when you see the ice storms they are having other places.

2. Eliminates unnecessary turning.
3. Detection of insect activity.
4. Detection of mold growth.

Voice Of Democracy Winner Announced

Fifteen-year-old Michael J. Hanson, a sophomore at Pershing high school in Plummer, is the winner of the Voice of Democracy contest sponsored by Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 2793 in Thief River Falls for the 1997-98 school year. Topic for the contest was "My Voice In Our Democracy."

Roy Jorgenson, who chaired the competition for Post 2793, said he would like to see more entries in the contest next year. Information and an invitation to participate are sent to six high schools in the area whose communities have members in the Thief River Falls post. Plummer was the only school to submit an entry.

Michael is the son of Lee and Wanda Hanson and an "A" honor student. He likes football, baseball, basketball, fishing and sports card collecting. He received a $50 cash award and a personalized jacket.

The Times wishes to encourage student participation in writing and speaking programs. It helps to make them conscious of the importance of proper use of the English language and allows them to use and develop creativity in their thought processes. We congratulate Michael on his award and are pleased to publish the text of his speech.

MY VOICE IN OUR DEMOCRACY

by Michael J. Hanson

Pershing High School—Plummer, Minnesota

Democracy is the government making and enforcing laws for us to follow. It is our duty as an America citizen to follow and obey these laws. Without democracy our country could not function properly and we as citizens would not benefit.

All Americans have rights and responsibilities Paying taxes is a good responsibility because it keeps the state and federal government up and functioning properly. The taxes we pay go toward paying for social security, the salaries of government officials and space programs or explorations.

Registering for the United States service is a responsibility all males are to do once they have graduated. This is a good responsibility to have in case a war breaks out and the government needs men for battle. Although women can be in the service, it is their choice to serve or not.

The second most important personal responsibility is voting. Without people voting the government can not hold accurate elections or make accurate decisions about bills being voted on by the people. Voting is a great responsibility to have because it lets the people get involved in the government and its decisions.

The most important personal responsibility is your own actions. Your own actions control what you do and do not do to help out with democracy and your life in general. If you get in trouble it is your responsibility to pay the consequences such as fines, time in jail, or whatever punishment is issued to you.

American citizens have many rights that are reserved and can not be violated by the government, like freedom of speech, religion, press and assembly. This means that American citizens may say what they please, be any religion they want, print anything they want and petition without the government doing anything about it.

Peter Zinger comes to mind about freedom of the press. He was tarred and feathered for printing libel things about the government. Citizens may own guns now. They don't have to house soldiers unless they want to. No one can have life, freedom or property taken away from them without due process of law. All citizens have the right to a trial with a jury, a lawyer and a witness in their favor. No person if sentenced can have extremely high bail or cruel or unusual punishment done to them.

The government can not take reserved rights away from citizens. All citizens 18 years of age and older have the right to vote, and should vote. All people born in the United States or jurisdictions of the United States like American Samoa, Guam or Puerto Rico have these rights and responsibilities. All citizens are to pay sales taxes, income taxes and property taxes.

When I turn 18 I will be a true patriot and do anything I can to help with the democracy. As a citizen right now I can study civics and follow or obey all laws, so I can grow up to be a good citizen.

My favorite quote comes from Abraham Lincoln: "You can't fool all the people all the time," which means you can't keep lying to everyone every chance you get or to save yourself from getting in trouble. Sooner or later you will get caught and be in tons of trouble.

There is one thing everyone can do, and that is to lend a helping hand when possible and/or give a little love and care.

More "Do As I Say, Not As I Do" Philosophy

Minnesota Attorney General Skip Humphrey has been making a big push over a couple of years or more to extract megabucks for Minnesotans from the major tobacco companies. The idea is that the companies' products are hazardous to health and use of the products has been harmful to residents of the state. There has also been a push to prevent minors from buying and using cigarettes.

One would expect that such zealous and well publicized efforts would indicate a commitment to keeping cigarettes out of the mouths of kids, especially on state property. Such is apparently not the case.

A local resident tells us that in the H.A.R.T. wing of the state hospital at Fergus Falls, where juveniles are sent for treatment of alcohol dependency and/or drug addiction, juveniles of all ages are permitted to smoke cigarettes at will. When the practice was questioned, a counselor said allowing smoking contributed to treatment for other drugs. And when the Attorney General's office and other state offices were contacted, the complaint was met with indifference.

Crusading on a national scene may make good headlines but condoning an illegal act within the state system seems a bit hypocritical. It's another case of government asking the people to "do as I say, not as I do."

To The Editor:

The recent meeting on wolves in Thief River Falls seemed to really stir up fear and hysteria. It was unfortunate that the meeting was held at an inconvenient time for most working people to attend. The statements and reactions of several people attending that meeting as well as their comments made outside that meeting indicates a need to put the "fear for human safety due to wolves sharing our outdoor space" into some reasonable perspective.

Between 1981 and 1997 in Minnesota there were 85 fatalities during the firearms deer hunting season (which is approximately only two weeks). Those figures are for Minnesota alone. Add to that the other states and the numbers rise drastically. Those fatalities were directly related to firearms accidents and not heart attacks while hunting. There were also an incredible 813 non-fatal accident/firearms injuries!

Those statistics were not broken down into how many hunters vs. nonhunters but we all know about the two recent incidents where a woman was injured by a bullet while she was in her vehicle and a girl was injured by a bullet hitting her while she was in her home. These two victims were not in the "great outdoors." No wolf has that killing capability.

When I researched the confirmed cases of wolf attacks on humans in the United States I was shocked. There has never been a single wolf attack on humans. I expected to learn of at least several, but there were none. If we look at the figures above, who is it we should really fear, the wolf or humans?

The next point of contention seemed to be the wolf attack on livestock. Well again, if we put things in their proper perspective, we kill deer by hitting them with our cars. It may be accidental, but to the deer it's all the same. Dead is dead. The same is true of dogs and cats that have been run over and killed. How many animals have died by being struck by vehicles? Have we ever considered how many pets and livestock die from the direct mistreatment and neglect by their human owners? Why is it that the wolves are the only ones that get blamed for livestock deaths?

Let's take a look at the figures. In 1996, of the farms or ranches in wolf range, only 69 farms or one percent experienced verified attacks on livestock by wolves. These are actual figures and not someone's exaggerated story about how his uncle was forced to quit raising sheep because the "big bad wolf" ate up all the sheep (of which there was no confirmation of that claim).

A deer's death is no more acceptable by a car, by our pet dogs, by a hunter who gut shoots it and does not track the animal and finish it off, or by starvation (which happened to many deer during the last two winters that were never eaten by wolves).

We need to remember that in nature there is a predator-prey relationship between the wolf and the deer. What do you expect wolves to eat? Deer and other wild animals are the wolves' source of food for survival. In fact, wolves have been observed to attack the old and sick deer which serves to help strengthen the deer population. It is a perfect system devised by the Creator and enforced by nature. Every animal on its instinctual level knows what its place and its purpose is in the grand scheme of nature. It is only humans that are capable of getting things out of balance.

There seems to be a great lack of knowledge about wolves. One of the most vocal people later expressed the concern that 2,000 wolves are going to have three pups each and next year we'll have 6,000 wolves in Minnesota. Even a basic understanding of reproduction would prevent an informed person from making that statement. It is naive to assume that all of our wolf population is female. If that person was knowledgeable about wolves, he would understand that it is only the alpha male and female of a pack that conceive pups.

Attitude of fear that permeated that meeting was evidence of total lack of knowledge. Fear is ignorance. If they fear something, then it is their responsibility to learn and study about what they fear until they no longer have fear about it. The last time in human history that we let our fears and hysteria control our decisions, thousands of women were burned at the stake or drowned as witches. As we look back on that past action, do we really want to repeat those mistakes only with wolves as the victims?

Perhaps we have forgotten that we are the protectors of the earth and her plant and animal inhabitants. Our purpose is to protect our only "home." It is impossible to make good decisions when our minds are full of fear, ignorance, power and control. We have upset the balance of everything and it is our responsibility to everyone on this earth to try to learn how to live in harmony and cooperation with all living things. We have an awesome responsibility to make good decisions because "we are not inheriting the earth from our parents, we are borrowing it from our children."

So far we have reacted with greed and disregard for the incredible gifts we have been given. Chief Seattle said, "What is man without the beasts? If all the beasts were gone, men would die from a great loneliness of spirit. For whatever happens to the beasts, soon happens to man. All things are connected."

Understanding that and acting with that knowledge will give us the ability to make the best decisions for man and animals. I hope we all learn the true meaning of Chief Seattle's words, especially the people with the 3 S mentality.

Sincerely,
Janese Thatcher

New Officers But They Are In Fact The Same Old Ones

"The city council held an adjourned meeting last Tuesday evening. No business was transacted. The election of the city officers was no surprise. Lars Backe was elected city clerk; F. Hibner, attorney; Gilbert Gilbertson, street commissioner. Mayor Dobner appointed Dr. Grundy as health commissioner. No further notice by the mayor was taken of the fact that the council refused to confirm the nomination of James Farr as chief of police. He holds, that the council has nothing to do regarding the matter. It is said that Mr. Farr continues to maintain order in the city."

"Simon Klovdahl was here the first of the week with a large roll of his new Red Lake county maps. He is selling them at $4.00 per map.

"A large quantity of ice is being put up by different parties here and it now looks as though the ice famine will not be repeated same as last summer.

"A masquerade ball will be given by the Thief River Falls fire department Friday evening, January 28th. "The village council is investigating the cause why so much noise is made nights by a number of boys who are still in their teens. They have come to the conclusion that whiskey is the cause. Parents should see that their boys are home and off the streets by 11 o'clock the latest. Sunday night they were in the height of their glory. This is a fast age we live in and boys of fifteen summers are setting the pace. Who is to blame?"

LEGAL NOTICE

Minnkota Power Cooperative, Inc., in cooperation with Otter Tail Power Co., is planning to construct and operate approximately 50 miles of 115 kilovolt transmission line and associated facilities from the Oslo 115 kilovolt substation in Walsh County, North Dakota, approximately 1.5 miles west of Oslo, Minnesota, to the Thief River Falls 115 kilovolt substation located in Pennington County, Minnesota, approximately 2 miles east of Thief River Falls, Minnesota. The project as proposed would traverse small portions of Walsh County, North Dakota, and Polk County, Minnesota, and portions of Marshall and Pennington Counties in Minnesota, near State Highway 1. One alternative to the project as proposed is no action, which would retain existing facilities in the existing configuration. The 'no action' alternative would compromise the ability of the utilities to supply low cost, reliable service to customers in the region, and would severely limit the ability of the utilities to provide electrical service to future load growth in the area, and backup and load relief to existing facilities. An alternative route for the project has also been considered. The alternative route would increase the overall length of the project.

A borrower's environmental report (BER) which describes the project further and discusses anticipated environmental impacts has been prepared by Minnkota Power Cooperative, Inc., and is available for public review. The BER will be used by the Rural Utilities Service as the basis for, or will be adopted as, its environmental assessment of the project.

The BER can be reviewed at, or obtained from, Minnkota Power Cooperative, Inc., at the address provided in this notice or from the Environmental Compliance Branch, Electric Staff Division, Rural Utilities Service, Room 1271, South Agriculture Building, 14th and Independence Avenue, Washington, DC 20250. Questions and comments should be sent to Minnkota Power Cooperative, Inc., 1822 Mill Road, P.O. Box 13200, Grand Forks, ND 58208-3200 to the attention of Raymond Dumaled, Transmission Engineering Manager. Copies of the BER are also available for review at Thief River Falls Public Library, 101 East First Street, Thief River Falls, MN 56701.

Comments on the BER should be received in writing to the Rural Utilities Service or Minnkota Power Cooperative, Inc., within 30 days of the publication date of this notice to ensure that they are considered by the Rural Utilities Service prior to issuing an environmental assessment.

FLOODPLAIN AND WETLAND IMPACTS

The project, or a portion thereof, will be located in the 100-year floodplain and wetlands. Alternatives, including no action, were considered; however, no practicable alternative was identified that would avoid having an impact on the 100-year floodplain and wetlands. The facilities will be designed and constructed to keep pole structures as far away from main river channels as possible. Design will meet appropriate National Electrical Safety Code or U.S. Army Corps of Engineers requirements for conductor clearances above floodplains and navigable waters. All wetlands in the proposed project route, with the exception of one, are small enough so that pole placement within the wetland areas is avoidable. With respect to the unavoidable wetland, the utilities will use one travel corridor into and out of the wetland, and permanent fill will be restricted to the pole site(s). Comments or suggestions for further mitigating impacts to the 100-year floodplain and wetlands are welcome.

We are a privileged people in this country where we have freedom to celebrate Christ's birthday to the fullest without fear from those in authority. But let us not forget the price of this freedom. I wish at this season with all the "yahoo" about people of different colors that they would say "Thanks" to all those who gave their lives in the Civil War to give all humans their freedoms in this country. Look what it is like in the countries that they came from. Have a very Happy New Year from our house to your house.

The weather in northwest Minnesota has become a normal January problem, with a passel of snow, enough that with the wind we have a whiteout during the day and it should be a stay where you are at night, preferably at home.

My ladybug looks like she is hibernating in the fold of the kitchen curtain. She doesn't move unless Roy tries to pick her up. He thinks her lease is up and he is going to have her evicted from the premises, or at least from this domicile. But this weather isn't fit for any lady to be out in, whether she has 8 legs or only 2. If 2 legs got cold, think how terrible it would be to freeze 8 legs at one time. That would be cold and the argument was heavy enough so she was permitted another lease on life. Right now Roy is out tuning up the snowblower so it will be ready to go as soon as it quits snowing.

Most of the Strandquist seniors are at home after the holidays, during which they were either gone to children or relatives or the children were back home to them.

School board approves 98-99 school calendar

School will start September 2, the Wednesday before Labor Day, next year. Monday night the School Board for I.S.D. 564 in Thief River Falls adopted a proposed calendar for the 1998-99 school year.

Superintendent Jerry Robicheau said a majority of the teachers had approved the calendar proposed to the board. One of the major issues that had to be overcome involved the three additional student days required by the Legislature. He explained that the contract with teachers had been settled prior to legislative action, so it became an expensive, and contractual issue for the district. Robicheau said he is in favor of increasing student contact, but believes that if the Legislature is going to require additional student days it should provide the money to add the days.

Two other major issues with local staff involved whether the district should have a two week Christmas break, and the date for graduation. The calendar approved by the board includes a two week Christmas break from December 21 through January 3, and graduation will fall on June 4. A number of other issues were addressed including staff development days. A number of early out or late start days have been approved. Robicheau said they will be working on some alternatives for parents who cannot stay late or pick up their children early because of work.

In all, there will be 174 student days, 185 teacher days, which includes two holidays, five conference days, one district-wide staff development day, two and one-half teacher work days, and a half-day open house.

Grad Rule

Glenn Chiodo presented an update on the Grad Rule. Chiodo said the preliminary "mapping" had been completed. Overall, he said, the mapping is good. He explained that mapping was the alignment between Grad Rule standards and curriculum. He said he expects to have a list of eight policies regarding the implementation of the Grad Rule before the school board in March.

A number of deadlines are approaching. Reading tests will be given on February 3 and math tests on February 4 for students in grades 8-10. Grades 3 and 5 will be given reading tests on February 26 and 27, and math tests on March 2 and 3. Grade 5 students also will be given written composition tests on March 4. Letters have been sent to parents and meetings held to discuss the Grad Rule and answer questions parents have about the rule and tests.

Eighty percent is a passing grade on the tests. The state minimum is 75 percent, but the district has chosen to require students pass at the higher level.

In addition to the Grad Rule testing, Franklin Middle School has been selected to participate in a national test. Chiodo said 30 eighth graders will be selected at random and tested on reading and writing. Chiodo said he had no idea who would be selected.

Many choirs join in sacred music festival

Choirs from eight Thief River Falls churches will join in presenting Lift Every Voice, a special worship service Sunday, February 1, at 3 p.m. in the Lincoln high school auditorium.

The choir festival service is a follow-up to the event sponsored by the Thief River Falls Ministerial Association two years ago in observance of the Thief River Falls centennial. That service filled the auditorium.

Several of the local church choirs will provide special anthems and all the choirs will join in three mass choir selections: I Will Greatly Rejoice by Knut Nystedt, Joy to the Heart by K. Lee Scott and Deep River, arranged by Rene Clausen.

The mass choir is expected to total more than 200 voices and will be under the direction of Les Torgerson, director of music at Northland Community and Technical College. All in attendance will also be invited to join in singing congregational hymns.

Participating will be choirs from Our Saviour's Lutheran, Redeemer Lutheran, United Methodist, Zion Lutheran, Trinity Lutheran, Evangelical Free, St. Bernard's Catholic and Evangelical Covenant churches and students from Lincoln high school and Northland college.

Public attendance is encouraged and a free will offering will be received.

"The Devil and Daniel Webster" is the title of the Lincoln high school one-act play which placed second in Sub-Section 8AA Saturday and will advance to Section 8AA competition this Saturday in Alexandria. In this scene the Devil (Yvonne Asp) and Daniel Webster (Kyle Rokke) are shown with Judge Hathome (Nate Keller).

Lincoln one-act play to advance to Section 8AA

Lincoln high school's one-act play, The Devil and Daniel Webster placed second at Sub-Section 8AA competition Saturday, January 24 in Alexandria and will move on to Section 8AA competition this Saturday, January 31, also in Alexandria.

A public performance of the play will be presented Friday, January 30, at 7:30 p.m. in the Lincoln high school auditorium. There will be no admission charge.

Other schools participating in the Sub-Section contest were Fergus Falls, first; Alexandria, third; Detroit Lakes and Moorhead.

The top three plays from the north sub-section advance with three top plays from the south half to the Section 8AA meet. First place play from the sectional competition will advance to the state festival to be held at the College of St. Catherine in St. Paul on Thursday, February 5.

Designer and director Connie Stock explained that there are 16 cast members and four crew members in this 20th Century setting of Stephen Vincent Benet's The Devil and Daniel Webster. Playing the role of Daniel Webster is Kyle Rokke and the role of the Devil (traditionally portrayed as a male) is played by Yvonne Asp. Jabez Stone, the farmer who sells his soul to the devil in order to gain wealth and position, is played by Mathew Bitzegaio, and his wife Mary is played by Bridgette Stock.

"This classic tale, retold in many forms throughout history, was originally set in Jabez Stone's 1841 farmhouse in New Hampshire, the home of the famous statesman and orator, Daniel Webster," director Stock explains.

"In Lincoln's production, the setting has been changed to the 1990s, in the polished, glittering environment of high stakes politics."

The play opens with people attending the celebration party of the Stones' wedding, where two guests will soon arrive—the Devil and Daniel Webster. Party-goers include the musicians Josh Hendrickson and Gretchen Hanson, Nate Keller, Wendy Tomsich, Nicolas Collard, Ryan Viktora, Rob Russillo, Kelli Muzzy, Adam Quesnell, Shannan Lofberg, Jenna Tsukichi and Meghan Reed.

The action heats up after the Devil's arrival.... and before long a jury of the dead appears to pronounce judgment on Jabez Stone after hearing the arguments of both the Devil and Daniel Webster.

The jury members are played by the party-goers with Nate Keller playing the role of Judge Hathome and Adam Quesnell playing the role of the clerk. The play has been described as "eerie," the director said, but the final outcome makes you believe in freedom and remember the foundation on which America was built.

Crew members include Marisa Holmstrom, Alice DuRose, Janna Unbehaun and Colin Browning.

23 students enter spelling bee

Twenty-three students in grades five through eight have qualified to participated in the School District 564 spelling bee to be conducted Tuesday, February 10, at 4 p.m. in the Franklin middle school cafeteria. Public attendance is invited.

Meri Jo Paschke, media specialist at Franklin, is coordinating the spelling bee again this year. Loiell Dyrud, Lincoln high school instructor, will pronounce the words for the spellers and judges will be Carol Tranby and Jane Miller, elementary school instructors, and Marvin Lundin, editor of The Times.

The two top spellers at the bee will advance to the regional contest Saturday, March 14, at Northland Community and Technical College in Thief River Falls. State competition is scheduled for April 3 at St. John's University at Collegeville.

In addition, eighth gradar Sarah Kopecky had a poem selected for publication in tha "Anthology of Poetry by Young Americans," a publication of poems from all 50 states. The students are from Margaret Olson's eighth grade classes and Leslie Nordheim's seventh grade classes. Selection to the latter book is based on literary merit, creativity and social awareness.

"Less than 50 percent of the poems submitted are accepted for publication," the instructors said. "We are very proud to have these students achieve such success."

Poems written by the students and provided by the instructors include the following:

Living Dead
by Sarah Kopecky

As they say pass me the j and take another hit they kill themselves with each bit of smoke that hits their lungs, they start to choke....they don't realize they are killing themselves.

As they inject a needle into their soft fragile skin then turn pale and green and go into a trance, as if they were zombies they don't know they are killing themselves with each shot of clear ecstasy.

I ask then this, is it worth it to be a living dead for a high that goes away? Get high on life or love that lasts forever
be

The Flood
by Brittany Larson

You stand and watch the water rise.
A battle now before you lies.
Your house you've had for many years.
This flood brings all your greatest fears.
You fight the water, give it all you've got.
The large dike breaks, you feel distraught.
Evacuation is the command.
How can you go and leave your land?
You hear the news—a fire broke out.
The flames have spread, there is no doubt.
You feel as though you've lost the fight.
You leave and drive all through the night.
You're hoping that no lives are lost.
You wonder what will be the cost.
This flood has made news everywhere.
It is the cross you have to bear.
This challenge will allow no rest.
Nature's given the ultimate test.
This flood is more than just a game.
Will things ever be the same?

Majestic White Tiger
by Kay Lynn Steiger

O Great White Tiger,
Creature of great mystery;
Why do you not reveal your secrets?
Teach us all that you know.

Great White Tiger,
You are one in a million;
Special in every way,
Set aside from the rest of your Race.

You are not quite from Earth,
But from somewhere else;
Some hunt you for your fair white coat,
And some think you can heal the sick

Only you, Great White Tiger, know.

Death
by Crissy Wegner

Sad unknown death, lurking at every corner.
Waiting to get out like a caged animal.
Breaking out when least suspected. Taking without Mercy, like a demon of the Dark.
Taking lives away without another thought, Young old neither knowing when it will strike.
Merciless, careless, selfish
Death
Taking adding to a void of unknown despair.
Like a shadow of the night taking away all light.
Thriving on pain, taking,
taking with unknown end.
Death is like a heavy blanket weighting you down, unforgiving
Death.
Death comes without a worry in the world thriving on mourners taking, more, and more.
Why does it know no

The Carousel
by Kate Levinson

When I was four, I went to the fair.
The carousel was my favorite thing there.
The horses amazed me as the ride spun around,
Gracefully galloping across the ground.
I asked for a ride; my dad said, "Okay."
I have loved the carousel since that day.
Even now when I see one at a fair,
My heart tells me I should be there,
Riding behind a flowing mane.
It can't be done because of my cane,
So all I can do is sit and adore,
And remember that day when I was four.

I stood in the way to make him stay
I knew he was leaving for sure.
But how long would it
be?
I waited as the years went by waiting and waiting Finally the pain was too much for me to stay
I decided one day I would leave for good. Like him.
I was about to leave when the day came. He came.
Life as I knew it was fulfilled.
My daddy, my hero, came and stayed.
He stayed for good.

Monsters
by Nick Olson

Monsters are like—dark.
A darkness we only see because our eyes are closed.
We stumble over things in this dark called monster.
They make us scared to look at what tripped us.
They don't want us to open our eyes.
If we open our eyes and look at them, we will find we have stumbled over our Imagination.

Sexual violence can be prevented

Educational seminar to be held Monday at NCTC

by Kathi Carlson
The Times Reporter

Names, places, and dates — the necessary elements of most stories — will not be included in the first part of this article. By changing a few of the details, the story could be about any one of thousands of women — your sister, daughter or maybe even you.

An Assault

Around 2 a.m. on a cold, winter morning in a town much like Thief River Falls a woman was startled from her sleep. She was instantly terrified by the shadowed form standing beside her bed and relieved when the person spoke. The "intruder" was a man that she had dated for several months. He had left town two months before, and she didn't know he was back in town.

She pulled on her robe, got up and left her bedroom for the living area of the small apartment. Her friend followed. As she turned on the lights she saw the open window and simply closed it. She didn't think twice about the fact that he'd gained access to her home through a window instead of knocking on her door. The man was unpredictable, a trait that she, at times, found appealing.

She attempted to make small talk as she made coffee in the kitchenette and then turned on the stereo. Her friend wasn't responding and appeared to be in one of his "dark" moods, a personality trait that she did not find appealing.

When he finally spoke, he asked her about another man, someone he heard she was dating. She wasn't expecting the closed-fist blow to the face that came before she had a chance to answer nor the scene that followed.

While the passing minutes seemed like hours, by 3 a.m. the woman was alone again. Her caller had left by way of the door.

She lay in a rumpled heap on the floor. Her mouth was bleeding. She hurt everywhere. Her robe and nightgown were torn. The telephone jack had been ripped from the wall.

When she found the energy to pick herself up and walk into the bathroom, the mirror revealed a cut lip and a rapidly swelling jaw and eye.

The hot shower that she took didn't wash away the physical pain of the assault nor the emotional anguish. She had just been brutally beaten and raped by someone she knew and trusted — a "friend."

Violence Prevention

Through education what happened to that woman might have been prevented.

"Self Defense and Violence Prevention" is the topic of a seminar that will be held on Monday, February 2 in the theater of Northland Community and Technical College. The two-hour seminar will be offered at 10 a.m., 1 p.m., and 7 p.m.

Presenter Bill Nelson will speak about sexual violence and personal safety and offer participants self defense strategies. The presentation will be geared toward women and men who want to make the world a safer place to live.

Nelson earned his B.A. degree in psychology, with a minor in criminal justice, from St. Cloud State University. A former police officer, he has worked as a private investigator for the past 15 years. Nelson is a Fifth-Degree Black Belt Master Instructor in the art of Soo Bahk Do Korean Karate. He currently serves as chairman of the board and a volunteer advocate at the Central Minnesota Sexual Assault Center. Having gained insight from interviews with convicted rapists and child sexual molesters, Nelson authored Your Weapon Within: How to Lower the Risk of Sexual Assault.

In his book Nelson stresses awareness and helps the reader learn to identify potentially dangerous situations. He profiles both the attackers and the victim, and he discusses how traditional gender roles, sexism and cultural conditioning can lead to sexual violence against women. This compilation of safety and preventative tips also suggests some non-traditional weapons that can be used to facilitate an escape during a physical encounter.

In the chapter entitled "Date or Acquaintance Rape," Nelson says "that in approximately 80 to 90 percent of all reported cases, the victim will at least have been acquainted with her attacker." This is an important statistic when considering the fact that most of us lower our guard and feel safe in the company of someone we know.

In this chapter, Nelson lists possible statements that could be indications of sexist attitudes and indications of a potentially abusive relationship. The chapter also includes a list of dating precautions and suggestions that could hinder what could be a dangerous situation.

Armed with the knowledge in Nelson's book, the young woman may very well have avoided the sexual assault that marked her life. She might have recognized her attacker's personality traits — unpredictability, moodiness, a possessive and jealous nature and a poor attitude toward women in general — as red flags. She might have seen that a relationship with such a person could easily lead to violence.

The Rest of the Story

The incident described in the story occurred a number of years ago. The woman and her attacker were young, both in their early 20's. Rape crisis centers did not yet exist. "Acquaintance rape" had not yet been defined, and the attitudes of law enforcement and the courts with its regard were very different. For these reasons, the young man was never punished for his crime.

The woman eventually recovered — both physically and emotionally — from her injuries. The anger that resulted from having been violated was geared at only one person, her attacker. She made a conscious decision not to let the experience ruin her life, and she learned to rely more heavily on her intuition and perception in future healthy relationships.

Don't Let It Happen To You

The situation described in the story could happen to any woman — young or old, rich or poor — at anytime, anywhere with far more damaging results.

Sexual violence can be prevented through education. The upcoming seminars are an opportunity for enlightenment and are sponsored by Northland Commmunity and Technical College, the NCTC Student Senate and the Violence Intervention Project.

Bill Nelson's dossier includes a number of letters praising his seminars. A partial list of clients includes organizations, groups, businesses, schools and other interested parties from across the country who have requested his services at lectures, workshops or seminars.

Nelson's book will be available at the seminar. Easily read and understood, the publication would be appropriate for anyone old enough to date.

The seminar is open to the public and free of charge. Registration is not required. It is not suitable for small children.

Three seminars, scheduled for morning, afternoon and evening, will enable many people to attend. We urge you to do so. What you learn could impact your life.

Grant funds of $9,028 were presented to the Northwest Service Cooperative in Thief River Falls by the Northwest Minnesota Foundation recently for the development of a youth-entrepreneurship program involving computer-based records of site-specific agriculture information. Pictured are Kay Campbell, project advisor for Northwest Service Cooperative and Marty Sieve, program officer with the Northwest Minnesota Foundation.

TRF area host families needed for exchange students

Foreign high school students are scheduled to arrive soon for academic semester homestays, and the sponsoring organization needs a few more local host families.

According to Pacific Intercultural Exchange (P.I.E.) Executive Director John Doty, the students are all between the ages of 15 and 18 years, are English-speaking, have their own spending money, carry accident and health insurance, and are anxious to share their cultural experiences with their new American families. P.I.E. currently has programs to match almost every family's needs, ranging in length from a semester to a full academic year, where the students attend local high schools.

Thief River Falls area families interested in learning more about the student exchange or arranging for a meeting with a community representative may call P.I.E., toll-free at 1-800-631-1818 or via the internet at http://www.pieusa.org.

Youth entrepreneurship project gets Northwest Foundation grant

Northwest Minnesota Foundation has issued a grant for $9,028 to the Northwest Service Cooperative in Thief River Falls for development of a youth-entrepreneurship program involving computer-based records-of-site-specific-agriculture information.

Students in Clearbrook-Gonvick and Norman County West (Halstad, Hendrum and Perley) schools have been conducting a pilot project that involves the collection and management of Macintosh software site-specific agriculture information. Based upon information generated by this pilot program, teams of students, teachers and community partners are performing market research and writing a business plan.

Depending on the outcome of the feasibility study, the students will offer a data management service to area farmers. The business could become a school-based enterprise that would be guided and monitored by high school teachers.

Students Chris Ovrebo and David Nelson of Norman County West, along with teacher Randy Zimmerman, were flown to St. Louis, MO, recently to present a program at the National Mac Software Conference.

"The students have opportunities to develop and learn new technologies," states Kay Campbell, project advisor for Northwest Service Cooperative, in describing the project outcomes.

"The project extends classroom learning to their communities and environment," Campbell added. "In addition, students will be provided access to professionals and adult mentors. The community also benefits greatly from the new technology brought forth and taught to adults and interested community members."

Ruth Edevold, executive director of the Northwest Minnesota Foundation (formerly the Northwest Minnesota Initiative Fund), described the project as exciting and innovative.

"Any time young people are involved and learning through a hands on experience, it adds greatly to their continued success," she said.

Established in 1986 and today comprised of more than 30 funds, the Northwest Minnesota Foundation strives to make a difference in the lives and future of the people in northwest Minnesota. The foundation, through grant making, advocacy, support of the not-for-profit sector, business development, training and education and promotion of philanthropy is constantly striving to strengthen the communities in the northwest region of Minnesota.

Violence Intervention Project receives $1,000 donation from Polaris Industries

Violence Intervention Project (VIP) was the recent recipient of a $1,000 donation from Polaris Industries. The donation will go toward a building project.

VIP is currently in the process of raising funds to build a permanent location for its regional crisis center.

With substantial support shown by the communities it serves, VIP is eligible to apply for a sizable grant. The goal is to raise $40,000 to $50,000 within the seven counties served by VIP. The service area includes Kittson, Marshall, Norman, Polk, Pennington, Red Lake and Roseau counties.

The regional crisis center is the base for the 11 staff members who provide direct services to victims and education for professionals and community members throughout the area. The center operates a 24-hour crisis hotline for the seven counties. Outreach services are based in Roseau, Halleck, Warren, Ada, Crookston and Red Lake Falls.

Violence Intervention Project serves a diversity of people with a wide variety of needs.

In 1996 the total number of victim contacts for all crime areas combined was 4,530. This number includes 2,875 domestic violence contacts, 651 sexual assault contacts, 194 victims of general crime, 810 contacts with child victims and 306 supervised visits and exchanges of children from abusive homes.

The agency has seen a 65 percent increase in domestic violence and sexual assault since 1994.

A permanent location for VIP's regional crisis center will improve services to battered women, general crime victims, sexual assault victims and victims of child abuse.

The generous donation from Polaris Industries will have significant impact on making Violence Intervention Project's building goal a reality.

ON THE OTHER HAND

Teresa Friend
Lincoln High School

Every day I watch over a hundred high schoolers slump into their cars and hurriedly head off the their 15, 20, 30 or 40-hour-a-week job. Some head in the direction of Pamida, some Hugo's, and some to Ben Franklin, but me, I head to the bus. Yes, I am not the average junior or senior at Lincoln High School. I don't have a job.

To work or not to work, that is the question. I have never had a real job. I'm not lazy or a slacker. In fact, I'm kept quite busy for a large section of my day. I am involved in Key Club, Speech, church choir and youth activities, I'm the secretary of my 4-H club, and every once in awhile I baby sit. I also have chores of cleaning and pet caring waiting for me every day at home. Homework makes up most of the time that is left, and I am constantly working on different projects.

Summers are even busier. Last year, I was away from Minnesota for all but three weeks the entire summer, yet I know that I have more free time on my hands than other kids with jobs, and I really enjoy that fact.

There is far too much pressure on the younger generation today, because we feel obligated and are required to take greater responsibility for ourselves. I know parents who make their kids find a job when they turn sixteen. My parents pay for clothes, meals and most activities I wish to take part in. I realize that not everyone's parents will do that, so I'm pretty lucky. But it's not all free time and fun living. There are also obvious draw-backs.

First, and most important, I don't have a car, and there is an extremely high doubt that I will be getting one in the near future. So I normally have to rely on my parents or friends for transportation, and if neither is available, I'm pretty much stuck. And, in the words of my parents, "That's just tough".

The school year is passing by fast, and questions about college tuition will soon be coming to mind. I can see myself taking out some serious loans for that. Also, since I usually use my parents' money for movies, pool games, concerts and other activities, I am only allowed to take part in a certain amount of activities each week. So, although I have more time to enjoy myself, I don't have very much control over what I can enjoy.

But still, I am satisfied with being... jobless. I figure I have a good sixty years of working ahead of me, so why start so early? There are few students who leave the school with the thought, "Oh boy, I get to go flip burgers for six hours!" Yeah, that sounds thrilling to me too. I am not laughing at the high school workers. I greatly admire and respect them for their dedication to their jobs.

My brother applied for a job at Hugo's when he turned sixteen, and I can see the great benefits ($$$) first hand... but I hardly see him anymore. When I do, most of his conversation involves planning around his work schedule or about the bus load of interesting customers that came that day. It's a busy life being a working teen, but it's the hard work and determination of the little people that help keep this town running.

But don't look down on the people who don't work. We aren't lazy or spoiled, we just use our time a little differently to do what we think is most important.

To work or not to work, that is the question, and I have chosen not to. I'm a sixteen year old high school student, and I'm only gonna be this once. I don't want to grow up before I have to. It's my life, and I'm gonna live it the way I choose. We can talk again in a few years. 'Til then, I'm gonna enjoy my youth to its fullest. Now, if you'll excuse me, I have to finish my homework.

SPEAKING OF

Sherry LaCoursiere

I'm Not Interested - I'll Reserve My Judgment Until Later

I'm really not going to discuss Bill Clinton and his problems, even though it seems to be the hot topic lately. That's the problem - it's become such a hot topic that I'm sick and tired of the whole thing.

I've heard the media treatment of the Clinton business called a "feeding frenzy," and doesn't that just describe it to a T - talk about sharks being attracted to blood - that is exactly what is going on.

Last weekend I was looking forward to seeing some television coverage of the pope's visit to Cuba and hearing more about what Iraq was doing, but what did I hear? I heard all about Clinton and the little boopsie he is supposed to have being hanging around with. Did I care? Not really! Did I want to see hour-long specials about it? No, especially not when they interfered with something worthwhile!

Every time I changed the channel, I saw Boopsie's lawyer extolling her virtues and telling us how upset she was. I would change the channel to find something else, and there he would be again, taped, saying the same thing. If I didn't see Boopsie's lawyer, I saw Clinton's friends telling me how they certainly did believe that he wasn't involved with Boopsie or his enemies telling me how they believed that he was involved right up to his eyebrows or other Washington uppitymucks discussing impeachment and resignation. Did I care? No!

First of all, I don't see that the evidence is all in. Investigations are going on, people are being questioned, depositions taken and documents flying back and forth, I am sure. I'm certainly not going to make a judgment on whether or not the president is guilty on the basis of what little I've seen so far. Chances are, I may never see any evidence at the rate I am changing channels, but I am sure it will be blabbed out immediately as a special bulletin on all channels if something ever does come to light.

I missed most of the pope's visit - I saw the coming and the going and not much in between. I thought the big newscasters were supposed to be in Cuba for the visit and would be providing us with some good coverage. Instead, they all ran back to Washington to stand out in front of the White House and watch the rain fall. That was heartening and thought-provoking, I can tell you. Gee, it was almost as interesting and as watching the Pope preach an enlightening sermon to millions of very happy people in a communist country.

Yes, and it was almost as good as learning that we are planning to bomb Iraq in a couple of weeks. What is going on in Iraq? In between the Clinton clap-trap, I heard that we may be giving them two weeks to shape up or else we will be doing some damage over there. Thank heaven, this time I don't have a son in the service, so I can just worry about everyone else's' sons. But I guess the Iraq stuff isn't news this time around, at least not nearly as news-worthy as deciding Clinton's guilt or innocence without any information on it.

It seems to me that our media priorities are all off lately. Did most people really want to watch that junk all weekend, or were they more interested in the Super Bowl, or the pope or real news, like Iraq? Don't the media understand that the majority of Americans really aren't interested in speculation and innuendo in such a case and that they don't have the bloodlust that the media has when it comes to something like this? I think they were all off on their coverage this weekend and that most people feel the same way I do. Am I right?

Thank You

We cannot begin to express our heartfelt thanks to all who supported us in the loss of our precious son and brother, Chip. To each and everyone who sent cards, called, gave their time, money, food, flowers, memorials or just a shoulder to lean on, we thank you. We feel so richly blessed to have such a wonderful, caring community of family and friends who reached out to us during this difficult time. Chip's smile and the many wonderful memories you shared with us will live on in our hearts forever.

ON MY MIND

Kim Chadwick-Quade

I Love To Read!

Whenever I'm asked to divulge my favorite hobbies and pastimes, I put "reading" on the top of the list. I don't remember the process of learning to read or exactly when it occurred, I take it for granted and wouldn't give it back. From magazines and newspapers to books and cereal boxes, I read it all.

I've solved crimes from "A" to "M" with private detective Kinsey Millhone. (I wait impatiently for the next letter of the alphabet to be released in hard-cover.)

I've worked in Kay Scarpetta's morgue as she tracks down killers with her forensic talent.

I've traveled with Jim Qwilleran and his Siamese cats, Koko and Yum Yum, as they investigate some mustache-tingling crimes.

I've pondered the fate of Richard North Patterson's characters (and have been known to read the ending so I could enjoy the rest of the book without knots in my stomach)

I've laughed and cried with Erma Bombeck. I've traveled to farsway locales with Islands magazine and gleaned new recipes from Good Housekeeping.

Reading is my escape and entertainment. When I walk into the house with a new book my husband comments to our son: "Say good-bye to mom." He means that I'll stay up late, rise early and do everything but shower with a book until I've finished it.

I reward myself with a good book. I get to read a chapter when I have folded two loads of laundry. I get to immerse myself in the pages of a new novel when dinner is on the stove. And if I've finished all my dusting, I might get to read two chapters.

So here's my ideal day: Alone, in a quiet (and spotless) house with a suspenseful mystery or courtroom drama and a very comfortable couch with a plumped-up pillow. No guilt. Just good reading with no interruptions. (A lunch break, though, is included.)

My other dream days include wandering (very much alone) in the public library or book store. I can roam for hours scanning the bookshelves, thumbing through pages and skimming magazines. Just as I crave my adult reading, I'm hooked on children's books.

I enjoy the pictures and the stories, and I enjoy sharing them with my 7-year-old son. Together we've explored the wonderful world of books. What's even more exciting is watching my first-grader learn to read.

His eyes light up and a smile spreads across his face as he reads the words and asks: "Is that right, mom?" When I answer in the affirmative, he exclaims: "I did it! I read a book!"

I hope he maintains his enthusiasm for reading into his adult life. As an elementary school student I devoured every book available on World War II like the "Diary of Anne Frank" and similar stories. As a teen-ager I spent my summers lying on the dock with a book in my hand. In college, I studied the required text. And now, I yearn for a quiet day when I can settle in with a good book. I love to read!

Reflections On Principles Of Truth

Tammy Myhrer
Our Saviour's Christian Academy

As a teenager myself I am troubled with a trend of sexual activity that seems to be encouraged by the leaders of my country, America. One's teenage daughter could be pregnant or even sexually active today and her parents may not even know it because our laws do not demand that parents be notified of their daughters' abortion(s). Teenage pregnancies have increased over 400 percent since 1962-63, and the United states now has the highest percentage of teenage pregnancy than any other Western country.

Teenage pregnancy occurs so often that a high school in Dallas organized a 15-bed nursery for students with children, and Houston has also established two entire high schools for pregnant students, and of those teens who gave birth before age 18, only half complete high school.

About 50 percent of all teen mothers are on welfare within one year of the first child; 77 percent join the welfare rolls within five years. And of those families headed by a mother between the ages of 14-25, two-thirds live below the poverty level.

When one's child decides to be sexually active in high school or junior high, there are chances of sexually transmitted diseases (STD). One in every six sexually active teens becomes infected each year with one or more STDs. Cases of gonorrhea among junior high school students between ages 10-14 have increased almost 400 percent. Sexually active teenage girls may be infected with the human papilloma virus (HPV) which causes genital warts.

Over 40 percent of sexually active teens reported to have had more than one sexual partner, and 20 percent have had four or more partners. Two-thirds of America's 11 million teenage boys say they have had sex by the age 18. On the average, these boys have had sex with five different girls. Currently, 8,441 teens become sexually active each day; most girls have had their first sexual experience at age 15, and half of sexually active males have had their first sexual experience between ages of 11 and 13.

Yet we are promoting government sex education in schools. Of those students who have gone through a government sex education program, 65 percent are sexually active, a percentage twice as high as those who have not completed a government sex education program.

Seeing these changes so obvious in the lives of students, it is mind boggling that the Supreme Court would forbid them access to Biblical teachings. Once they took religious teachings out of schools, students were encouraged to set their own standards, and now we see the consequences which are so evident. Before the government took out religious teachings the top school problems were: chewing gum, making noise, running in the halls, and passing notes. Now the problems in schools are rape, murder, suicide, drug abuse, pregnancy, and disease. What can be done to change these statistics?

We need to bring God back into school systems. Even though the courts have banned acknowledgment of God and His principles, our nation is still responsible for its actions and standards of morality, and we will reap what we sow. (Be not deceived; God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap. (Galations 6:7))

Sex was created for a husband and wife, and those teenagers who wait will be blessed. Sex was not created just for pleasure. It is sacred to God. Teenagers who involve themselves sexually are going to reap the consequences. Shouldn't we encourage our children to practice abstinence rather than simply to teach them to protect themselves? Why not choose the high road? (Statistics are taken from David Barton's America: To Pray Or Not To Pray)

Teen ride set at '98 Winter Rendezvous

Teen/youth ride at the Minnesota /USA Winter Rendezvous for snowmobilers in Thief River Falls February 13-15 has been endorsed by the board of the Minnesota Snowmobile Association.

January 25 has been set as the deadline for registrations to be received. The ride will be for snowmobilers ages 14 through 20. The minimum was set at age 14 because youngsters 13 years of age and younger are not legally allowed to cross roads without an adult. All riders must have a safety certificate.

The young riders will have three chaperones along if there are 30 or fewer riders and one chaperone added for each additional 10 riders. Preregistration is required, but there is no fee to participate in the ride.

A get-acquainted gathering will be held Friday night, February 13. The ride on Saturday will include lunch on the trail and a planning session for the next event will take place Sunday.

In addition to observing the age limits and safety certificate possession, riders must have helmets and proper clothing, no drugs, alcohol or tobacco products, and snowmobiles equipped with up-to-date safety requirements. No horseplay will be permitted on the ride.

PARENTING TIPS

Preparing Children For New Events

Children are often afraid of the unknown and display inappropriate behavior in new situations because they do not know what is appropriate. We should explain:

1. what activities will take place;
2. what the child will be expected or permitted to do; and
3. what he/she may feel like.

This is particularly useful with a child whose initial response to new situations is withdrawal.

When the child is less than two years of age, explanations need to be short and concrete since it is difficult to convey an idea or experience that is new to a young child, a "dry run" is often helpful. When the child is over age two, you may begin to explain things through stories and role-playing.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

An example of an appropriate explanation might be:

"Michaela, when we go to the day care center, you can stay there to play with other children while I go to work. There will be lots of toys and games and other children to see and talk to. If you are nervous or afraid, the teachers will help you find things to do."

Q&A SOCIAL SECURITY

Provided by the Social Security District Office in Grand Forks, ND

Q. My Social Security retirement just started but the payment is credited at the bank late in the month and not on the third like it is for other people. Is something wrong?

A. Your benefit is fine. Since last spring Social Security has been using different payment delivery dates throughout the month based on the birthdate of the person on whose record the benefit is being received. For example, someone receiving payments on their own retirement or disability will have a payment delivery date on the second, third or fourth Wednesday based on their own birthdate. A person receiving benefits as a spouse will have their delivery date based on the birthdate of their husband or wife. Although people already receiving benefits did not see any changes, since last spring new applicants are starting to receive benefits on the second, third or fourth Wednesday of the month in many cases. Adding payment dates during the month spreads out benefit delivery related workloads for the agency, postal officials and financial institutions.

Q. Recently I telephoned the Social Security national number and made an appointment to file for benefits. Since the person I spoke to was not in this area, how did they get my appointment to the local office?

A. Using computer networking all Social Security offices place information and appointment schedules on the national system. When you phoned the national number (1-800-772-1213) you were asked for your postal zip code which in turn identified the local office serving your address. Once an appointment is made, it prints at that local office so it can take care of you. Note that virtually all applications for monthly benefits can be completed by telephone so that applicant does not need to drive to the local SSA office unless they want to. Incidently, the SSA national toll-free number can be used for many things besides making an appointment. In fact, with the exception of speaking to a particular SSA employee, most agency workloads can be handled via the national number. Hours of staffed operation for the national number are 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. local time, with automated service the rest of the day.

Groundhog's Day events at Rydell Wildlife Refuge

All are welcome to the first Groundhog's Day Winterfest Sunday, February 1, at Rydell National Wildlife Refuge southwest of Erskine. Festivities begin at 1 p.m. with horse-drawn sleigh rides which will continue throughout the afternoon.

Games will begin at 2 p.m. and include schmoosh races and snow snake toss among other games. The schmoosh race involves teams of four with their shoes in loops on two long 2x4s trying to move in unison in competition with another team of four.

"The trick is to get in rhythm and keep it up," says Wayne Goeken, refuge manager. "The tendency is to fall down like dominoes—usually more than once—which allows the other team to catch up. It's a very interesting sport for participants and spectators alike."

Based on a game played by the northern range of Native Americans including the Ojibwa, the snow snake game was played for amusement and gambling. Snow snakes are wooden "javelins" which are hurled down an iced track to see whose "snake" will go the greatest distance. The thrower with the greatest distance in three attempts is declared the winner.

Cross-country skiers are welcome to bring their skis and take several loops out from the refuge visitors' center. Snowshoeing is also encouraged with several pairs of snowshoes available for people who would like to try this increasingly popular winter activity. Snowshoe making will be demonstrated at the visitor's center.

Hot beverages will be available at the visitors' center throughout the afternoon with additional refreshments served at 3:30 p.m. A brief program will begin at 4 p.m. to recognize the many volunteers who have helped with a variety of projects at the refuge over the past year. Door prize drawings will be held throughout the afternoon with the final drawing at 4:30 p.m.

Nature exhibits are on display in the visitors' center and an active backyard bird feeding area is well stocked and offers interesting bird watching. Everyone is welcome to participate in the day's events. For further information contact Wayne Goeken at 218-574-2622.

Jorstad serves Kiwanis as Lieutenant Governor

When it came to getting Don Jorstad of Thief River Falls involved in the Morning Kiwanis Club, Kip Vigness held the key—or at least part of it.

After 10 years of membership in the club, during which he served several offices including president, Jorstad is now Lieutenant Governor for Division 12 of the Minnesota-Dakota District of Kiwanis International. The district included northeastern North Dakota and northwestern Minnesota.

Kip Vigness, who operated Kip's Lock and Key Shop, was an avid member of the organization and had invited Jorstad to attend several times without success.

Then one day the key broke off in the locking gas cap on Don's car. Kip provided the necessary labor to extract the remainder of the key from the cap and replace it with a whole one. The fee: Attend a meeting of the Kiwanis Club.

"I went that first morning and I kept going back," Jorstad said. "The 6:30 a.m. meetings fit well with my schedule, the members are a great group of people with service at heart, and the international organization has programs with far-reaching impact for children and other people in need."

Don Jorstad

Elected at the district convention October 1, 1997, in Sioux Falls, SD, Jorstad has been busy with the required attendance at each of the clubs for evaluation, interaction and socialization. By the time his one-year term ends, he will have visited each of the nine clubs in his division at least three times.

"That usually means three trips to each of the clubs because each visit has a different purpose," Don said. "Once in awhile I can visit more than one club in a single trip, but that is more the exception than the rule."

Prior to his installation, Jorstad visited each of the clubs to make an evaluation. He has since returned to all of the clubs to attend an installation of officers or some other special function where he is an honored guest. The third visit is to meet with the board of directors of each club to review changes since the evaluation visit and to bring information from the district and international offices.

Clubs in the district include the Morning Kiwanis and Golden K clubs in Thief River Falls; Pioneer 100 and Golden K clubs in Crookston; Sunrisers, Noon and Golden K clubs in Grand Forks, ND, Grafton Kiwanis and Mayville-Portland Kiwanis, both in North Dakota.

Initially there were two more clubs in the district, both in the Grand Forks area. One disbanded due to complications resulting from last spring's devastating flood and the other was at the Grand Forks Air Force Base where the rapid turnover of military personnel made it virtually impossible to maintain any continuity in the membership or officers.

"I had been in a position to work into this office three years ago," Jorstad said, "when changes in my employment situation prevented me from doing so.

"With the change from Northland Community and Technical College to KTRF radio, I have once again found an opportunity to hold the Lieutenant Governor office and I am enjoying the position. Thanks to the cooperation of station manager Jon Praska and others at KTRF it has been working out really well."

Don is involved in advertising sales for the radio station and was an originator of broadcasts of the International Series of Champions (ISOC) snowmobile racing.

"Race broadcasting involves two and a half to three days a week for 10 to 12 weeks during the winter and takes us from Thief River Falls to the Twin Cities, West Yellowstone in Montana and a number of other race locations," he said.

In addition to his visits to clubs in the division, Don is required to attend the fall and mid-winter conventions of the Minnesota-Dakota district along with the other 22 Lieutenant Governors serving other divisions in the district. He will also attend the next fall meeting where his term will expire.

"Main focus of Kiwanis International is to direct efforts toward helping kids from pre-natal to the five-year-old group," Jorstad said.

"Our current emphasis is Iodine Deficiency Disorder and we're attacking it on a worldwide scale, attempting to reduce the mental retardation and goiters which result from the deficiency. We have set up collection cannisters throughout the local business district and worked on special appeals through the local club. So far the Thief River Falls clubs have donated about $1,500 to the fund."

Jorstad has also been active in a number of other community areas. He was president of the Thief River Golf Club for two years—one of them the same year that he was president of Kiwanis.

"That was a year to remember!" he exclaims.

Undoubtedly, this will be a year to remember as well—and all because of a broken key.

Area students practice teach

Kevin Johnson and Jason Niemi of Thief River Falls and Nicole Philion and Brian Remick of Red Lake Falls are participating in the Bemidji State University student teaching program during this winter quarter.

Johnson, a senior life science major, is teaching at Grand Rapids middle school;

Niemi, a senior physical education major, is teaching physical education at Blackduck elementary and Blackduck high school.

Philion, a senior elementary education major, is teaching second grade at Clearbrook elementary school.

Remick, a senior elementary education major, is teaching fourth grade at Plummer elementary school.

Student teaching is a requirement for all professional education majors at BSU. It allows future educators to take part in the development of students and to observe other educators in action. Participants gain experience and learn to apply course work in actual classroom settings.

SPEAKING OF EDUCATION

by Jerry Robicheau, Superintendent
School District 564

Dear Citizens of Independent School District #564:

I hope the new year thus far has been very positive for you and that you have found it to be all you had hoped for. We are looking toward a very positive 1998 school year and all the wonderful opportunities we are going to be able to afford students in the upcoming school year.

As we begin the new year, here are a couple of pieces of information that I think are very important to you. First of all, the school board had its organizational meeting on January 12th. We welcome Randy Twistol and Lyle Olson to the board of education of Independent School District #564. There is no doubt that their commitment will be reflected in their service on the school board and will continue the quality policy decisions that are so important in maintaining School District #564 at the forefront in educational programs for students.

Secondly, the officers of the school board are Carl Clark, chair; Darla Twomey, vice chair; Jean Larson, clerk; and Cheryl Lee, treasurer. Several committee assignments were made to each board member which will facilitate open communication with programs in the district and the school board.

Another activity of the school board that has taken place is to facilitate an opportunity for public comment at school board meetings. A process is being developed to afford citizens who attend our board meetings an opportunity to present information they feel should be brought to the attention of the school board. We will be developing this process and will be sharing it with the public. We are looking forward to open and honest communication that will improve programs for students.

Another item is that many of you completed a survey regarding areas where the school district could be improving and also identifying areas where you feel we are doing well. These surveys are currently being analyzed. As soon as this analysis is completed, we will be establishing an action plan to address these areas. They will then be tied into respective goals for the school district as we develop plans for the upcoming school year and also years beyond 1998-99.

As to where we are with our levy plan, I would like to provide you with an overview of what has transpired. Some of this I have already shared with you, but I think it's important it be reviewed so you are kept informed.

First, we are in the process of developing a plan to address our class sizes. Each building has been asked to address ways to reduce class size so we can identify how many staff we need in order to reduce our class sizes. This was our #1 goal in the campaign. We do plan to have these recommendations in place to bring to the board the middle of February or the first of March. At that time we will give a full accounting of how these dollars are going to be allocated for program improvement.

Second, we have established an Advisory Committee for Agricultural Education. This committee has met on four occasions and the committee membership is comprised of many individuals within the agri-business community. We have posted a position for a Teacher of Agricultural Education and are soliciting applications at this point. It is our intent to hire the best qualified candidate and, until we are satisfied, we will not employ someone just to fill the position.

Third, we have a task force looking at a program for the gifted and talented students. This, again, will be included in the recommendation that will be brought to the School Board the middle of February or first of March. I invite you to give me a call if you have any questions as to what the status is on these issues. However, please be assured that you will be kept informed of how the dollars are being allocated as we plan for the 1998-99 school year.

Also, we have addressed our kindergarten issue. We have hired three Educational Assistants at a cost of approximately $13,000. This was possible with our levy dollars.

I'd also like to share that our schools will be involved in statewide testing of basic skills in February and March. Reading tests will be given on February 3 and math tests on February 4 for students in grades 8-10. Grades 3 and 5 will be given reading tests on February 26 and 27, and math tests on March 2 and 3. Grade 5 students will also be given written composition tests on March 4. These will, in fact, be significant as they will measure how our students are doing in math, reading and written composition.

For you, parents of students in the grades that are being tested, I strongly urge you to work with us in a partnership as we prepare students for these tests. What you can do is to make sure they have a good night's sleep prior to the test, talk about how important it is to focus on these tests and, hopefully, afford them an opportunity to have a good breakfast prior to them coming to school the morning of the test. But, most importantly, please talk to your children regarding how important it is to do the best they can do. Once these tests are completed and the results are back, we will report the results to the community and to parents individually. More information will be forthcoming and, if you have any questions prior to or after the test, please feel free to contact my office or Glenn Chiodo at 681-8711.

As we approach the end of January, winter has been kind to us as it relates to holding school without cancellations, late starts or early dismissals. Certainly we have a lot of winter left, but I want to assure you as we look at the decision making process relating to closing of school, our decision is first and foremost driven by the safety of students. If there is any time that the weather is less than satisfactory and we have not made a decision to close school or close early or start late, you as parents do have the right to keep your students at home as a result of inclement weather. I would certainly encourage you to consider this if you do have some concerns about your children attending school during inclement weather.

I would also like to invite you at any time you have a question regarding the educational program in Independent School District #564 that you please give me a call at 681-8711. It is your school and the school will only be as good as you, the community, wants it to be. Open communication is a way to enhance quality—quality that will ensure that students are receiving the best education to which they have a right.

Many tech college grads find work in their fields

A high percentage of technical college graduates in Minnesota find work in their fields, according to a consumer report released jointly by the Minnesota State Colleges and Universities (MnSCU) and the Minnesota Department of Economic Security (MDES).

Nearly 40 percent of the vocational and technical programs in state colleges reported 100 percent employment in their fields of study for 1995, the latest available year. The largest category of technical college graduates, nearly 2,300 in 1995, involved people in health fields.

"The exceptional graduate placement rates underscore that the Minnesota State Colleges and Universities have close ties to the businesses in their communities and they are training students for real jobs after they graduate," said Chancellor Morris Anderson. "We are constantly changing our mix of programs to meet market demands and not just training people for any job," Anderson said.

Minnesota Consumer Report on Vocational Technical College Programs provides the percentages of technical college graduates who find work in their fields of study by campus and by college program. The report is designed to help prospective technical college students make more informed career and education decisions.

"In light of Minnesota's current worker shortage, this type of information is invaluable in training workers in the skills employers need," said MDES Commissioner R. Jane Brown. "This report can aid smart career choices that help both employers and job seekers."

The consumer report is available as a reference document in high school and technical college counseling offices, community libraries and Minnesota Workforce Centers around the state. The report can also be found on the Internet at http://www.des.state.mn.us/lmi/consumer.

For more information contact Minnesota Department of Economic Security, Research and Statistics office, phone 612-296-6545.

The MnSCU system serves approximately 145,000 students in the fall quarter and a total nonduplicated headcount for a full academic year of about 230,000 students.

Donation of children's video tapes to the Thief River Falls public library has been made from the Meghan Steiger memorial fund by Lois Steiger and her daughters Laura (right) and Kay Lynn. The donation purchased a large number of Walt Disney, Barney and Berenstain Bears videos for the collection in the children's room of the library. The family members noted how much Meghan had loved videos she had received at the library and felt they would like to give to other children what Meghan had prized so much. Librarian Heidi Hoks notes that the videos have been extremely popular and are frequently checked out to borrowers with people often placing requests for them. A listing of the videocassettes is available at the library for people to take with them.

Gifted and Talented Program

Jean Larson, board member, presented information about a district task force looking at a Gifted and Talented program. Larson explained that while the district was attempting to increase the levy last year, it promised to look into such a program. The problem they are looking at is whether the district is providing an eduction to all of its students?

Recently, the task force had an individual from Elk River, which has such a program, visit with them about such a program.

The task force is still studying models of programs, she said, but is leaning towards creating a new position for the district called coordinator for academic activities, a position similar to athletics director. Larson said it may or may not happen.

To address some of the many questions, the task force also is looking at an in-service day to discuss how to deliver services and activities.

The task force, she said, has decided it does not want this program to be "elitist". They don't want to identify and remove students.

School District 564 board of education recognized the following: the following students for having their poems published in an anthology titled "A Celebration of Young Poets" which is published by Creative Communication Inc. and contains entries of young poets from Wisconsin and Minnesota — 7th graders Kate Levinson, Nick Olson, and Shannon Smith; 8th graders Brittany Larson, Nachele Olson, Kay Lynn Steiger and Crissy Wegner; John and Lorraine Seaverson who donated a computer to the school district's Volunteer Program; the Backcourt Club which donated $3,160 to purchase game day outfits and shooting shirts for the girls and boys basketball programs; Darla Twomey and Diane Freeman who donated scholarships to the Close-Up Program, and Bridgeman's and Hugo's which donated ingredients for the program's cookie sale.

The following personnel items from consent agenda were approved: the resignation of Michelle Sande as EBD educational assistant at Challenger, the resignation of Amy Tabatt as minority tutor in the district; a child care leave for Julie D. Olson, teacher at Challenger; a medical leave of absence for Sandra Johnson, kitchen helper/cleaner, to extend Helene McCauley's contract as school psychologist for five days; the employment of Sidney Braswell as kindergarten pupil program support assistant at Challenger; the employment of Lynelle Wayne as gender equity co-coordinator for the district; the employment of Violet Pahlen as kitchen helper at Lincoln.

The next scheduled meeting of the school board will be at 5:30 p.m. on February 9 at the School District Service Center.

No. 4-ranked Fergus Falls boys beat Prowlers 64-44...

Otters' size wears down TRF

Fergus Falls closed out the first half with a 14-0 run Friday and went on to beat Thief River Falls 64-44 in a Section 8AAA boys high school basketball match-up that pushed the No. 4-ranked Otters to 10-2 for the year and dropped the host Prowlers to 1-12.

Second meeting of the year between the two teams was much like the first encounter two weeks earlier at Fergus Falls, where Thief River Falls fell 71-56. In both cases the final score didn't give the Prowlers credit. They battled, but they simply couldn't stay with the Otters for a a whole game.

Playing 32 minutes of winning-caliber basketball has been a season-long problem for the Prowlers. A fatal quarter or half-quarter letdown has been a common occurrence, admitted head coach Bob Johnson. "I told the kids coming into the game that it would take a really good effort to beat this team," he explained. "We had that effort at the start, but then we got lax for four-five minutes."

Thief River Falls trailed only 12-11 at the close of the first quarter, and during a 66-second second quarter flurry when the lead changed hands four times, the Prowlers found themselves leading 17-16 on a Michael Morris rebound with 5:47 to play in the opening half.

But that's when the inevitable meltdown kicked in. They didn't pick up another point the rest of the half and watched as Fergus Falls' size began to dominate play as the Otters controlled the boards and drew fouls pushing the ball inside.

The Prowlers had a 13-7 edge on the boards after eight minutes, but they were out-rebounded 17-4 in the second quarter. The Otters, who have a 6-6, 6-5, 6-5, 6-4, 6-3 starting line-up and bring in a 6-7 reserve, grabbed nine offensive rebounds in the second quarter, with many of them being converted into points.

"Give our kids credit, they were rebounding right with them for a while," said Johnson. "That's as big a team as we'll face all year."

Still, the Prowlers weren't done. They doubled their first half offensive output in matching Fergus Falls point-for-point in a third quarter that ended 47-34, then got within 49-39 when Jeremy Swanson banked in a long jumper with 6:54 left in the game.

However, Thief River Falls turnovers began the mount, and the Otters continued their game-long march to the free throw line to win going away.

"We played them even in the third quarter, and our fourth quarter wasn't all that bad, either," offered Johnson. "Their size just wore us down."

The Otters, led by long-time Warren coach Gary Schuler, wound up with three double figure scorers as 6-7 Cody Norman and 6-2 Nate Brown both came off the bench to net 12 and 10 points, respectively, while 6-5 starter Brent Ness also picked up 10.

Casey Skjerven scored 14 points and Justin Walseth contributed 11 for the Prowlers.

Fergus Falls shot only 39 percent from the field (22/57), but Thief River Falls had even more trouble with a 30 percent figure (15/50). Johnson, however, liked the Prowlers' shot selection. "The kids looked at the basket from 17-18 feet," he explained. "We've been working on them in practice to look for those outside shots."

The two teams combined to shoot 54 free throws, with the Otters making 19 of 33 and the Prowlers hitting 12 of 21. Fergus Falls wound up with a 39-26 rebound advantage. Thief River Falls had more turnovers, 23-18.

B/G-MR girls snap Wolverines' streak

A strong all-around game by 5-7 senior Kara Kuznia, who scored 10 points, handed out nine assists and pulled down seven rebounds, helped carry the Badger/Greenbush-Middle River girls past Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke 57-40 in Thursday high school basketball.

A typically slow start for the Gators found them trailing 6-4 at the end of the first quarter. But they quickly found their game in the second quarter, taking a 25-18 lead into intermission, then maintained a 37-29 third quarter spread.

"It was an up-hill battle," admitted Badger/Greenbush-Middle River coach Tom Neibauer, who had to contend with foul trouble incurred by two key players – Stefanie Sparby and Tiffany Hagen. "We found a way to win. I just wish we could get out of the blocks a little faster. Luckily we got a good game out of Kara."

The outcome put the Gators at 12-3 and snapped a five-game win streak for the 8-6 Wolverines.

Failure to capitalize on the Gators' slow start wound up costing the Wolverines, noted Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke coach Mike Gast. "We missed four easy shots in the first two minutes," he pointed out. "We could have easily had an 8-0 lead."

Despite the fouls, Sparby still led all scorers with 16 points. Teammate Missy Smith had 14, and Kuznia got her 10. Dana Wiseth scored 14 points to lead the Wolverines.

Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke shot only 31 percent from the field (14/45), while Badger/Greenbush-Middle River shot 51 percent (20/39).

"Shots didn't drop for us," said Gast, "but give credit to their (Gators) defense."

Neibauer concurred. "Our half-court defense was good," he noted.

In a foul-plagued contest, the Gators were 17-for-29 at the free throw line, where the Wolverines went 10-for-17. The winners finished with a 28-23 rebound edge.

"We just didn't play very well," said Gast. "We didn't shoot well and we didn't pass the ball very well. We threw it away too many times."

Leading Northland scorer is felled by injury vs. Cobbers

Ankle injuries suffered by Chaka Ali and Nic Thompson sealed the fate of Northland Community and Technical College Friday in an 88-68 nonconference men's basketball loss to the Concordia College junior varsity.

Ali, the Pioneers' season-long scoring leader and only real inside threat, was injured with 12 minutes remaining in the first half. Northland had an eight-point lead when he left. They found themselves down 46-38 at the break.

Thompson, Northland's top outside shooter, joined Ali on the injured list with 10 minutes to play in the second half.

"There's a big void without those two in the line-up," pointed out Northland coach Ted Krize.

Dwight Goodwin tried to fill the gap with a 20-point, 16-rebound game for the Pioneers, but it wasn't enough. Josh Whitlock added 11 points and Ali had 10 before he was forced to the sideline.

Mike Flakoll and Nick Jess scored 15 points each to lead the visiting Cobbers.

Northland was 22-for-56 from the field (39 percent) and 21-for-28 at the free throw line. Concordia went 32-for-71 from the floor (45 percent) and 12-for-22 at the line. The Pioneers finished with a 44-39 rebound edge, but also had more turnovers, 19-13.

Itasca beats Northland 75-66

Another slow start on the road wound up costing Northland Friday in a 75-66 Minnesota Community College Conference Northern Division women's basketball game against Itasca at Grand Rapids.

The hot-shooting Vikings had a 42-28 halftime lead. It was still a 14-point spread with 18 minutes remaining before the Pioneers rallied. They chopped the difference to just two points with 4 1/2 minutes to play, before back-to-back 3-point shots on consecutive possessions by Itasca's Misty Hieb put an end to the comeback.

"Same old story on the road – it takes us 20 minutes to get going," explained Northland coach Rick Nikunen. "We came back in the second half, but we could not get over the hump. Those 3-pointers by Hieb were real back-breakers."

Hieb was 6-for-6 from 3-point range en route to a game-high 26 points. Andrea Paul contributed 18 and Shelly Myrvold had 15 for the winners, who made 8 of 10 shots from behind the 3-point line as part of a 46 percent 26-for-56 shooting night.

"Everything they put up went in," said Nikunen. "They're a much improved team. They're way quicker than we are, and quickness is the name of the game."

Jenny Johnson scored 23 points, Naomi Wilebski had a 16-point, 14-rebound game and Meckenzie Malwitz added 10 points for the Pioneers, who had a nearly identical 45 percent 25-for-56 shooting night as the Vikings, but didn't come up with the 3-pointers. And Northland was 9-for-18 from the free throw line, where Itasca went 15-for-28.

Northland out-rebounded Itasca 46-32, but also had more turnovers, 13-6.

TRF frustration continues

■ Prowlers lose 4-1 hockey game to Spuds

Another chapter was added to Thief River Falls' frustrating, head-shaking 1997-98 high school hockey season Saturday when the luckless Prowlers dropped a 4-1 decision to Moorhead at the Huck Olson Memorial Civic Center.

As has been the case on more than one occasion for the 2-14 Prowlers, even in a three-goal game, the difference between winning and losing was a matter of inches as they hit pipes and missed open nets from start to finish.

"We played well enough to win," offered Thief River Falls coach Scott Bergland. "We worked hard. If we weren't getting chances I'd be upset. You just figure sooner or later..."

Scoring didn't start until 14:16 of the first period when a screened wrist shot from the slot by the Spuds' Joe Cullen found its way past Thief River Falls goalie Mike Dowers at the tail end of a Moorhead power play.

Thief River Falls gained a 1-1 tie when a slap shot from the point by defenseman Adam Nordin got through a crowd at 2:58 at the second period.

Second Moorhead power play goal of the night made it 2-1 at 4:38 as Cullen found the net from the face-off circle to the right of Dowers.

Two minutes later the Spuds' Tony Castaneda smacked a mid-air rebound into the net that the Prowlers argued – without success – was played with a high stick.

It became 4-1 at 9:11 when a flash of Moorhead speed set up a 2-on-1 rush that was converted into a goal by Nate Ronning at 9:11.

That was the last of the scoring, but certainly not the end of the Thief River Falls scoring opportunities, with Wade Chiodo and Kyle Anderson both hitting pipes about a minute apart late in the game.

"We had 10-11 Grade A chances to score in the third period," noted Bergland, "but six (shots) never hit the net, three hit pipes and we put the other two right into the goalie."

The near-misses has Bergland scratching his head trying to come up with reasons for the Prowlers' tough luck. "We're going to have to talk to Dale Wennberg (whose Thief River Falls business, Wennbergs Inc., manufactures the goals used in the arena)," he said. "I figure he's making the pipes too wide."

Scoring

First period - Moorhead, Joe Cullen (Gus Groslie-Ben Sullivan), 14:16.

Second period - TRF, Adam Nordin (un.), 2:58; Moorhead, Cullen (David Scott-Sullivan), 4:38; Moorhead, Tony Castaneda (un.), 6:43; Moorhead, Nate Ronning (Erik Paulson), 9:11.

Third period - none.

Goalie saves - TRF, Mike Dowers 11-6-7–24; Moorhead, Jim Richards 5-5-6–16.

A save made by Thief River Falls goalie Mike Dowers was plucked out of mid-air by Moorhead forward Tony Castaneda (8), who batted the rebound into the net in the second period of Saturday's high school hockey game at the Huck Olson Memorial Civic Center. Thief River Falls defenseman Brett Johnson (4) was also involved in the play. The Spuds won 4-1.

Thief River Falls girls lose to Pirates second time..

Crookston completes sweep

Head coach Jeff Loe had mixed emotions Friday after watching his Thief River Falls girls high school basketball team lose a 50-44 game at Crookston.

It was the second close defeat for the 5-9 Prowlers against the strong Pirates squad, a 49-46 winner when the two met back on Dec. 9.

"We had a chance to win," noted Loe. "When the game was done, I didn't know whether I should be upset, frustrated or happy."

The two teams played to a 15-15 first quarter tie. Crookston had a 30-24 lead at half and went into the final eight minutes up 38-29.

Jenny Boll of Crookston and Nicole Kopari of Thief River Falls shared game-high scoring honors with 17 points apiece. Boll picked up 13 of her points in the first quarter as the Pirates broke the Prowlers' press and got the ball inside, forcing a change in defensive strategy by Loe. Kopari, meanwhile, sat most of the second quarter after picking up three early fouls.

"I was real happy with the way the kids were able to pick it up and play with Nicole on the bench," said Loe. "They did a nice job keeping us in the game."

Kelly Reese and Tiffany Hasbrouck added 13 and 10 points, respectively, to the Pirates' offense. Laura Follett, who was 6-for-6 at the free throw line, joined Kopari in double figures with 12 for the Prowlers.

Both teams shot 35 percent from the field, with the Prowlers going 17-for-48 and the Pirates hitting 15 of 43. Thief River Falls was 7-for-9 at the free throw line, where Crookston went 20-for-30.

"We got into foul trouble right away," noted Loe. "They (Pirates) were running, and we were caught hacking them."

Crookston had a 30-20 rebound advantage, but also had more turnovers, 24-19.

Eagles fall behind early in 64-41 loss

Roseau jumped out to a 19-9 first quarter lead and rolled to a 64-41 Friday night boys high school basketball win over host Grygla-Gatzke.

The Rams were up 33-12 at halftime and enjoyed a 50-19 third quarter cushion.

"They drilled us," acknowledged Grygla-Gatzke coach Vern Johnson. "They jumped on us. The game was essentially over at halftime."

Isaac Lang scored 22 points and Tristan Sjaaheim had 15 for the Rams. Alex Anderson led the Eagles with 13 points.

"They really played a good game," noted Johnson. "We didn't play very well as a team. They played good, hard defense, and we didn't handle it."

Grygla-Gatzke shot only 22 percent from the field (13/58), while Roseau shot 43 percent (26/49). The Eagles were 13-for-21 at the free throw line; the Rams went 11-for-14. Roseau had a 29-26 rebound edge and had topped the turnover charts 10-8.

It was the tenth loss in the last 11 games for the 3-10 Eagles.

Rams' third quarter play secures 63-40 win over MCC girls

Marshall County Central stayed with Roseau in the first half, but couldn't keep pace with the Rams after intermission as the Nordics lost a 63-40 Thursday girls high school basketball game played at Newfolden.

Roseau led only 8-7 at the end of the first quarter and it was still a game at halftime, 25-17. But the Rams came out of the third quarter with a 46-24 cushion.

"That was by far the best we've played," said Marshall County Central coach Alice Dahl, looking at the first half performance turned in by the underdog Nordics, who came into the game 1-11.

Shooting spelled the difference, with the Rams hitting 26 of 53 from the field (49 percent), while the Nordics were just 13-for-47 (28 percent). Roseau also converted 11 of 15 free throw opportunities, compared to an 11-for-25 showing at the line by Marshall County Central.

"They (Rams) shot really well," acknowledged Dahl. "We've got to learn how to put the ball in the basket. We have to concentrate on better shot selection."

Marshall County Central sophomore Kristi Kilen led all scorers with 22 points. She also had nine rebounds as the Nordics beat the Rams on the boards 29-25. They also had a season-low 11 turnovers.

Patriots add second win over RLCC boys

Win-E-Mac beat Red Lake County Central by 36 points the first time they met this winter. Friday's boys high school basketball rematch at Oklee produced a closer game, but the Patriots still wound up a 25-point winner, 69-44.

"We played much better than the first time we faced them," said Red Lake County Central coach Chris McLean. "We got it down to nine points in the third quarter."

But the 3-10 Mustangs, who have lost six straight, are having trouble getting their shots to fall. "We're struggling offensively," acknowledged McLean. "Things would be a lot easier if the ball would go in the net for us."

Win-E-Mac led at the quarter stops 14-6, 32-19 and 51-31.

Jay Mehlen scored 13 points, while Kyle Ness and Wade Hedlund netted 12 each to lead a balanced Win-E-Mac offense.

It was a case, explained McLean, of the Mustangs doing a good job defending the Patriots' top scorers, only to see other Win-E-Mack players pick up key points.

Nick Waldal scored 12 points and Matt Bjerklie has 11 for the Mustangs, whose season-long leading scoring leader, Mark Lorenson, faced heavy defensive coverage and was limited to eight points.

Red Lake County Central turned the ball over 18 times and went 5-for-9 at the free throw line, where Win-E-Mac had a productive 19-for-22 night.

"They did a good job going to the basket," noted McLean. "Their quickness hurt us. We were reaching and getting called for fouls."

Nordics' losing streak hits five

Marshall County Central turned the ball over 26 times against a strong Kittson Central defense Saturday as the Nordics suffered their fifth straight loss, a 78-48 setback at Kennedy.

"We're in a real losing streak," acknowledged Marshall County Central coach Ron Ueland. "It's a real downer."

The Nordics last won Jan. 9 – a 69-46 victory over Red Lake Falls. The losses began with a 56-55 overtime defeat at the hands of Badger/Greenbush-Middle River.

"We played our best game of the year against Red Lake Falls," pointed out Ueland. "We had the Gators beat, but let it slip away. It's gotten a little bit worse each time since then."

Kittson Central jumped out to a 22-8 first quarter lead, had a 43-15 halftime advantage and carried a 63-31 spread into the fourth quarter.

Four Kittson Central scorers hit double figures, led by Josh Deere with 17 points. David Wilcox scored 14 points to lead Marshall County Central.

The Wolfpack went 29-for-62 from the field (47 percent) while the Nordics were 16-for-46 (34 percent). It was a busy game at the free throw line, where Kittson Central was 16-for-30 and Marshall County Central went 15-for-26. The winners had a 34-30 rebound edge, and only turned the ball over 10 times.

"The turnovers really hurt," noted Ueland. "The one thing we've been able to hang our hats on during the losing streak was that we've done a great job taking care of the ball. Even on bad nights we maybe had 15-16 turnovers. Our guards just could not get by them. They went from a man-to-man to a trap defense, and did an excellent job with it. We just couldn't break it."

The Nordics are 8-8 for the year.

Gators pull out a 60-51 win

Sometimes you need a little luck to come out ahead – like Badger/Greenbush-Middle River did Friday in a 60-51 boys high school basketball win over Lake of the Woods at Baudette.

The Bears led at each quarter stop 10-9, 23-21 and 39-35. They were still up four with three minutes to play before the Gators charged from behind on a 3-point basket by David Truscinski and a Jeremy Vacura field goal to take the lead for the first time with only 1:49 to play. A few free throws down the stretch completed the comeback.

"We were lucky," admitted Badger/Greenbush-Middle River coach Eldon Sparby. "We struggled until the last three minutes. They shot well, and played good defense against us. We had a lot of trouble moving the ball."

Truscinski scored 12 points and Daryl Wockenfuss had 10 to lead the Gators' offense. Rian Berg of the Bears led all scorers with 16 points, while Marty Humeniuk and Tony Caldwell both had 14.

Badger/Greenbush put up 73 shots, hitting 26 of them (36 percent). Lake of the Woods was 22-for-54 from the field (41 percent). The Gators went 11-for-18 at the free throw line, which included an 8-for-14 showing in the last 90 seconds of the game.

The Gators finished with a 33-26 rebound edge, but also had 20 turnovers, which Sparby said, was "way too many." Lake of the Woods had trouble, too, with 21 turnovers. The Bears made 7 of 12 free throw attempts.

The win improved the Gators to 10-3.

Goodridge beats MCC 60-48

Ben Hanson scored 20 points Friday as Goodridge ended a four-game losing streak with a 60-48 boys high school basketball win over Marshall County Central at Newfolden.

The Huskies led at the quarter stops 15-9, 26-23 and 42-34.

Goodridge coach Eric Mickelson credited some of the Huskies' success to a 22-point Goodridge victory in the junior varsity game. "That seemed to set the tone for the whole night," he said. "They (JV) hit seven or eight 3-point shots, and that really got our (varsity) kids fired up."

It was the Huskies' first win since a Jan. 9 victory over Red Lake County Central.

"I felt we played a real solid four quarters of basketball," offered Mickelson. "That's something we haven't been able to do lately."

Jim Scheef joined Hanson in double figures for the 6-8 Huskies with 12 points.

The Nordics, mired in a losing streak of their own, got a 14-point game from David Wilcox and 11 from Garrett Magner.

It was a disappointing performance on the part of the Nordics, according to Marshall County Central coach Ron Ueland. "We're not a great team," he said, "but I think we can be a good team if we can just get back to playing the way we did earlier in the season."

Goodridge was 19-for-45 from the field (42 percent) and came up with a big 21-for-30 free throw game. Marshall County Central went 20-for-58 from the floor (34 percent) and was 6-for-13 at the line.

"Free throws were a factor," noted Ueland. "They got to the line, and we didn't."

Goodridge finished with a 28-25 rebound edge. Marshall County Central had more turnovers, 12-9.

Wolfpack wins 60-42 girls basketball game...

Kittson Central tops Nordics

Underdog Marshall County Central played Kittson Central tough, but the Nordics still wound up with a 60-42 Monday night home court girls high school basketball loss.

The Wolfpack turned a 12-10 first quarter edge into a 29-19 halftime lead and carried a 44-31 advantage into the fourth quarter.

With the loss, the Nordics fell to 1-13, but Marshall County Central coach Alice Dahl was more than satisfied with her team's performance. "They played hard," she said. "Everyone played well as a team. We played four good quarters – the first time we've been able to do that all year."

Jamie Visness scored 19 points and Darcy Lundberg had 10 for the Wolfpack. Kristi Kilen and Miki Waterworth led the Nordics with 16 and 15 points, respectively.

Marshall County Central was 17-for-40 from the field (43 percent) and went 7-for-14 at the free throw line.

"We didn't take enough shots," noted Dahl, "and we didn't have a real good percentage at the free throw line."

Kittson Central went 26-for-50 from the floor (52 percent) and had a quiet 3-for-3 night at the line.

Mandi Blawat grabbed 10 rebounds and Kilen had 9 as the Nordics beat the Wolfpack on the boards 31-24. Marshall County Central had 14 turnovers; Kittson Central wound up with 12.

Karie Johanning and Tammy Myhrer had 10 service points each and Becky Bray added 9 as Our Saviour's Christian Academy won the volleyball match 15-8, 15-5, 16-14.

Myhrer also led the Crusaders with 16 points and Paula Ramsey had 11 in the 35-31 girls basketball victory. The winners had quarter leads of 8-2, 21-9 and 25-19.

Jon Lee scored 31 points and David Bray had 13, but it wasn't enough to keep Heritage Christian School from winning the boys basketball game 51-44. The Patriots led at the quarter stops 18-4, 33-18 and 43-33.

Fergus Falls is 71-27 winner in JV contest

Fergus Falls broke loose in the second quarter en route to a one-sided 71-27 boys junior varsity high school basketball win over Thief River Falls Friday.

The winners turned a 19-10 first quarter lead into a 41-12 halftime spread. It was 55-18 through three quarters.

Collin Schafer scored 8 points to lead the Thief River Falls offense.

Snowmobiles using metal studs banned from Heartland Trail

Paved portion of the Heartland State Trail, which was widened and repaved last summer, is open only to snowmobiles without metal studs this winter, it was noted by the Department of Natural Resources.

A parallel alternate route constructed last fall on the unpaved horse trail and other parts of the Heartland Trail corridor, will also be open to snowmobiles, with or without studded tracks. Both trails will be open to appropriate snowmobile traffic, only when there is sufficient snow for groomed trails to be maintained.

"The repaving of the Heartland Trail last summer cost nearly $1 million," said Butch Belcher, Regional Supervisor of Trails & Waterways with the DNR at Bemidji. "When the Paul Bunyan Trail north of Brainerd was paved in 1995, excessive wear and surface damage from studded snowmobile tracks was evident after the first season."

Minnesota Legislature enacted laws prohibiting the use of paved state trails by snowmobiles equipped with metal studded tracks. There are 18,000 miles of snowmobile trails in Minnesota, and only 216 miles of paved state trails; but over the year, many snowmobile trails were developed around state trails, and they became important connecting routes for extensive trial systems.

"The Heartland State Trail was the first state trail to be paved for bicycle use, more than 20 years ago," explained Belcher. "Since then it has become an essential part of both the summer and winter tourism industry in the north-central part of Minnesota."

The decision to groom both the alternate route and the paved trail surface was made following discussions between the DNR, local business leaders, and state and local elected officials.

"Many business owners feared that closing the paved trail to all snowmobile traffic would lead people to believe that the entire Heartland State Trail was closed for the winter, and snowmobile tourists would stay away," explained Belcher, "so we decided to open the paved trail to snowmobiles without metal-studded tracks, and maintain both trails throughout the snowmobile season."

The ban on studded snowmobile tracks will be enforced. Using metal-studded tracks on a paved state trail is a misdemeanor, under state law, with a maximum fine of $700. If officials detect significant trail damage, or if problems develop with snowmobilers not complying with the stud-ban law, the DNR does have the authority to close the paved trail.

Both the paved trail and the alternate, unpaved route are well marked with signs instructing snowmobilers where they can legally ride. The alternate route for studded-track snowmobiles does, out of necessity, reconnect with the paved surface in some locations – a combined total of about two miles along the 28 miles between Park Rapids and Walker. In those areas, the trail has been covered with wood chips and sawdust to protect the new asphalt from stud damage. The three railroad trestle bridges on the Heartland Trail have also been covered with particle board to help protect their decks from studded snowmobile tracks.

Sports Boosters will meet Thursday noon

Thief River Falls Sports Boosters Club will meet Thursday at 12-noon at the Elks.

Scheduled guest speakers include Lincoln High School cheerleading advisors Monica Bartles (basketball), Kari Carlson (wrestling) and Tami Hemmesch (hockey), along with head swimming coach Brian Olson.

The public is invited.

Cross country ski pass revenues aid state trail projects

One of the greatest winter bargains in the state could be the Great Minnesota Ski Pass, with prices unchanged since 1983, according to Paul Nordell of the Department of Natural Resources.

"For $5 you can enjoy more than 200 cross country ski trails, totaling 2,000 miles of opportunity," Nordell noted. "The purchase of this card provides revenue to most of these trials, although some additional costs may be encountered at some locations, such as a state park sticker."

The ski pass must be carried by skiers ages 16 to 64. Passes are available at $5 per year for an individual, $7.50 per year for an annual husband/wife pass, $14 for an individual three-year pass, and $21 for a three-year husband/wife pass.

"Making a three-year commitment to the ski pass is one way to affirm that you really do like Minnesota winters," Nordell said. "Some people buy the ski pass as their way of obtaining a truly 'made in Minnesota' gift for hardy friends."

Although the ski pass generates only a portion of what is needed for developing, brushing and grooming public ski trails, it does provide essential, continuous revenue that can be spent only on the ski program.

This year the Great Minnesota Ski Pass can be obtained at nearly 340 locations statewide, including state parks, the DNR License Bureau in St. Paul, county auditor's offices, many sporting goods outlets, and even some regional parks. Ski passes, which can be charged on VISA, Discover or Mastercard, may be ordered over the phone by calling toll free at 1-888-MINNDNR.

Snow condition reports are also available weekly by calling the above phone number. Those reports are updated Thursday afternoons.

Traveler's Guide to Wildlife

A new 326-page publication, Traveler's Guide to Wildlife in Minnesota, provides information and directional maps for 120 places in Minnesota where people can view and photograph a wide variety of wildlife in all four seasons. There is helpful information on viewing everything from prairie butterflies to bald eagles, prairie chickens and moose.

The book, which has been in development for four years, summarizes where wildlife enthusiasts can see birds, mammals, reptiles, amphibians and butterflies as they explore Minnesota. The book includes two maps per wildlife viewing site.

Accompanying the site information are 190 color photos of Minnesota wildlife, ranging from regal fritillaries to Blanding's turtles, boreal owls, pine martens and moose. Eleven "featured species sections" give additional details for encountering some of the state's most sought-after wildlife, including prairie chickens, sharp-tailed grouse, peregrine falcons, moose, raptors in fall, winter owls, timber wolves, common loons, bald eagles, tundra swans and spring warblers.

Traveler's Guide to Wildlife in Minnesota was produced by the DNR Nongame Wildlife Program, with funding from the nongame wildlife checkoff and supplemental funding from the Legislative Commission on Minnesota Resources' Environmental Trust Fund, along with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. The book was produced by Carrol Henderson, Andrea Lambrecht, and the regional wildlife biologists of the DNR Nongame Wildlife Program.

The book costs $19.95. To order, call the Minnesota Bookstore at 1-800-657-3757, the DNR Gift Shop at 1-612-228-9165, or check with a local bookseller.

These reports include names of individuals charged, arrested or cited with various crimes and offenses by police, the sheriff's department or other law enforcement officials. Depending upon the circumstances of a case, charges can be, and sometimes are, changed or dropped by law enforcement officials or attorneys even before the case reaches court. Readers should also realize that under the American system of jurisprudence, individuals charged with crimes are innocent until proven guilty of those crimes in a court of law.

Joni Rinkinen of Husula, Finland, (second from left) finished second in the Pro 440 class of the Ironman 250 in Thief River Falls last weekend. Rinkinen is a member of a team of four, two riders and two mechanics, who traveled to the United States to compete in the Ironman 250 and ISOC 500. The other racing team member was Antti Maukinen (second from right) who finished fourth in the Pro 440 class. Maukinen is of Sotkamo, Finland.

Finlanders travel to U.S. to compete in area races

by Becky Rantanen

The fallacy that people of the Finnish descent are laid back and docile is quickly put to rest when you meet two hard-driving snowmobile drivers, Joni Rinkinen and Antti Maukinen, fresh from Finland and eager to display their racing ability.

The gentlemen arrived in the U.S., along with their mechanics, Tomi Veijalainen and Jarmo Siira, just last week, sponsored by Arctic Cat, and personal sponsors from their homeland. They are here to participate in the ISOC Ironman 250 on January 24-25 in Thief River Falls, and the grueling ISOC 500 in Warroad the following weekend. The winning points are accumulated for the two races for an overall winner of a Christian Motors Chevy S-10 Blazer.

This is not new stuff to Joni, who competed in the Ironman last year. Although he took home a third in the sno-cross division, a series of bad breaks plagued him in the cross-country event. That is, if you figure that running out of gas, losing your windshield, racing several miles with fogged goggles and 60 more in sub-zero temps without goggles means "bad breaks".

But in true Finlander fashion, Joni maintained a stoic attitude despite his problems.

"I used up all of my bad luck during that race so I didn't have to bring any back to Finland with me," he mused.

Joni is anxious to prove himself in the United States, as he has proven himself in Finland. This 24-year-old driver has raced snowmobiles for two years and bagged the bragging honors of Finnish Champion in 1996 and 1997. But that has not gone without the scars to prove it. At the end of the 1996 season, Joni had the championship in the bag, so the race he was participating in was not significant. Joni got into some bad track conditions, however, and took a nasty tumble with his sled. When the snow-dust settled, a full-conscious Joni was on his back staring at a foot in his face. He pushed it away to clear himself and heard bone crunching. That was the moment he realized it was his leg — broken so badly that it swung free. Three months and a few pins and shafts in his leg later, Joni was racing motocross.

Antti, at 21, has not had the racing success that has blessed Joni, but it's not from lack of trying. This athletic young man is fearless, enjoy such pastimes as rock climbing, mountaineering, ice climbing and sky diving. Doesn't that combination of thrill-seeking experiences categorize a person as a daredevil? Not according to Antti.

"No, I just like to experience all sorts of things," he commented.

Antti finished eighth in Finland's points standing last year, and attributed that to the obvious — a lot of bad finishes (no pun intended).

When asked if these two gentlemen plan on competing against each other, they were quick with a response.

"No, we are going to kick some American butt," they said in unison. And promptly added with a laugh, "Then they will kick ours!"

Cross-country snowmobile racing in Finland, by far the most popular, is run in rallies, with five to 12 special stages all in different lengths. They feel that it is a more challenging race involving 140 to 500 miles each. There is just a single racing organization, so entries per race involve from 130 to 200 racers. The paybacks are poor, with only two races paying cash, the rest are trophies for a winning spot, although contingencies from the Finnish snowmobile importers are paid on a points system to team drivers.

Tomi, Jarmo, Joni and Antti, are sponsored by the Finish Arctic Cat importer, but not in the same manner that U.S. drivers are accustomed to. Spare parts and the snowmobile are supplied, personal funds and other sponsors are needed to defray entry fees and traveling expenses. The parts that are given to team drivers are little more than salvage, and have to be fixed and rebuilt before use.

In addition to poor paybacks, limited support, the fact that snowmobiles cost 40 percent more than sleds purchased stateside, makes racing a spendy sport. For example, an Arctic Cat ZR 500 in the United States sells for about $5,995. In Finland, that same sled would sell for 50,000 marks, or $9,700 U.S. dollars. Another example in the difference in costs — if a Finlander were to buy an automobile in the U.S. to ship to Finland, they would pay 102 percent to the importer for tax, and an additional 22 percent tax as an individual. Add the $5 per gallon price for a gallon of gas in Finland and it is time to look for a good pair of walking shoes.

Sled set-up is also different in Finland. Because the snow consistency is sugary, studs in the track are unnecessary, although carbides are used. Only stock sleds qualify for racing.

The snowmobile shops in Finland are understocked, with just the basics available. So imagine four Finlanders in the Arctic Cat factory racing department.

"It has been great," mechanic Tomi commented. "It is amazing at all of the different things available. The race shop has everything!"

They have enjoyed the expertise of all of the racers, engineers and mechanics at Arctic Cat, also.

"Joey (Hallstrom) has been great. We have learned so much, set-ups, clutching, . . it has been a real educational experience," Tomi stated.

The Finlanders are definitely grateful to be here and credit goes in no small part to Mitch Swanson, Arctic Cat's International Sales Coordinator. He arranged the trip, accommodations and has been available to make the four gentlemen comfortable and welcomed.

Their strategies for the races are typical — great hole shots, don't take it too easy because it is too tough to catch up, and hold the hammer down.

And, of course, kick some American butt.

Massive fiber optic initiative includes NW Minnesota

by Sen. Roger Moe

Working with a consortium of businesses, the State of Minnesota is moving forward with a major fiber optic initiative called "Connecting Minnesota — A Transmart Telecommunications Partnership." While making progress on the "information superhighway" is commendable, some concerns about the initiative have surfaced.

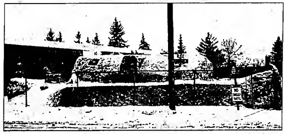
The partnership is intended to create a statewide telecommunications backbone that delivers high-speed data transmissions to remote locations, including significant population centers in our part of the state. The agreement announced recently will deliver a great deal of capacity to Crookston, East Grand Forks, Thief River Falls, Bemidji and other Northwestern Minnesota communities along U.S. Highway 2, U.S. Highway 75 and MN Highway 32.

The benefits of high-speed data transmission are significant. Fiber optics will facilitate lightning-fast Internet access, video conferencing, vastly improved interactive education and possibly telemedicine which would bring the abilities of medical specialists to remote locations. Fiber optic cable will be placed in 1,800 miles of highway right-of-way corridor. The consortium of companies winning the contract will have exclusive rights in all interstate corridors around the state. In exchange for use of the right-of-way, the consortium is providing free access to the cable for the state, counties, cities, and public and private schools and universities. Under the agreement, those agencies and institutions can use up to 20 percent of the active capacity.

Concerns have been expressed about the size of the deal, which involves a large portion of the state's highway corridor, because it may give the consortium partners a leg up on competition for telecommunications access. Critics say it would have made more sense to move forward with a pilot project before entering into an exclusive contract with a statewide contract. An association of Minnesota telephone companies has filed a legal action in federal court to block the agreement, and the Federal Communications Commission has been asked to comment on whether the agreement complies with the federal Telecommunications Act of 1996.

For most communities, the problem isn't finding high-speed fiber optic access. Many companies are already providing bulk access to large portions of the state. It is a matter of delivering service to "the last mile" for the more remote schools, city halls, businesses, hospitals and residential customers who want it. Another concern is the 30-year exclusive contract provided to the "Connecting Minnesota" partners. With technology changing so rapidly, 30 years is a long time to be locked into an exclusive deal in an evolving market that is complex and volatile.

As I have stated so often in recent years, it is clear to me that telecommunications and new technology is a key to the future economic success of Minnesota, especially for rural communities such as our own. It concerns me that this deal was put together with limited input from the communities and policymakers who will be affected by the initiative. However, in the long run, perhaps "Connecting Minnesota" will move our state forward in the technology race. In any event, Minnesota must continue to pursue policies that encourage advanced technology and we must continue to carefully scrutinize our technology infrastructure investments.



Noah's Ark was the subject of a snow sculpture built at Evangelical Free Church in Thief River Falls. The sculpture won second place and $300 in the Dean Dokken Memorial Snow Sculpture contest, which was held in conjunction with the Ironman 250 snowmobile race in Thief River Falls last weekend.

Dr. Johnson named diplomate of ABFP

Dr. Peter D. Johnson of Thief River Falls has been named a Diplomate of the American Board of Family Practice (ABFP), the certifying entity of the family practice specialty.

Dr. Johnson, a family physician, earned Diplomate status by passing the ABFP's certification examination, an intensive written test of the physician's abilities in pediatrics, internal medicine, surgery, obstetrics, gynecology, psychiatry, prevention and other aspects of family practice.

Family physicians are trained to care for the whole person, treating a majority of all medical problems people might have and referring them to other specialists as necessary.

There are family practice departments in approximately 126 U.S. medical schools and residency training programs in more than 465 university and teaching hospitals.

ABFP Diplomates must continue to demonstrate their competence in the specialty by taking recertification exams every six years. Family practice was recognized in 1969 as a medical specialty by the American Medical Association and the American Board of Medical Specialties, and it was the first specialty to require its Diplomates to take recertification exams at regular intervals.

Most of the more than 50,000 physicians who have achieved ABFP Diplomate status are members of the American Academy of Family Physicians (AAFP). The AAFP is a national medical association that offers educational, legal, lobbying and practice support services to more than 84,000 family physicians, family practice residents and medical students.

Strandquist Community News

F. Myrtle Vagle

The weather in Northwest Minnesota continues to be cold and the snow that came this past week has just been a dusting that Roy with an old beat-up broom sweeps the sidewalks clean before anyone has a chance to make tracks in it. He has the snowplow ready in case we get more than the old broom can move. Many people are sick from the constant weather changes.

Yesterday someone asked how my ladybug was doing so when I came home I went to look for her. Earlier last week she had vacated the curtain due to the cold from the window and found a new place in the family Bible. Roy said "look where your bug has taken up residence" and shooed her off to the table where I quickly retrieved her and tried to put her back near the curtain. She slid out of my hand and disappeared in the green moss that covered the new amaryllis that I received for Christmas and the directions for planting was to cover it with the green moss that came in the package. I found her laying on the cupboard near the window turning into dust, all but her polka dotted shell which was also shrinking making her look so small. I wonder if she was allergic to the dye in the moss or the soil that she got in contact with. Someday I would like to write a poem entitled "An Ode to a Ladybug" because one of my favorite poems was Reilly's "Ode to a Louse" a tale of a louse scurrying across a fancy lady's hat in church. It began with those words "Would to God the gift he'd give us. To see ourselves as others see us" Good thoughts from a Scotsman.

Strandquist has been a busy place this weekend. The Bethesda Lutheran Church had their annual meeting and a big dinner on Sunday. Many functions are being completed before Pastor Norquist leaves to go to North Dakota.

Vance Lefrooth is going to enjoy his 60's alot because on Sunday he had another birthday with a 60 on it and his next one will be in the 70's. The following folks came to celebrate his birthday, Elsie Lefrooth, Donnie and Merlys Lefrooth, Mary and Donna Ronstrom, Jeff and Margaret Donaldson and daughters, Alaura and Sara, Michael, Lisa, Alison and Edwin Verne Lefrooth, Lowell Lefrooth, Henry, Venetta, Stephanie, Zacary, Noelle and Kristine Pettis, Loyal, Shelly, Taylor and Emily Lefrooth, Vance Jr., Kelly, Amanda and Jessica Lefrooth.

Guests for supper of Peter and Pearl Thompson's on Monday night were Jeremy and Danny Johnson, and Isaac and Betsy Thompson. It was Jeremy's birthday and his mother had to work so he celebrated at grandpa's house.

Those who visited Judy Kleinwachter this week were Vance and Kelly Lefrooth, Amanda and Jessica, June Kasprowicz and Claudia Berggren.

Elsie Lefrooth, Pearl Thompson and Betsy Thompson joined other ladies for a workshop day on Tuesday at the Assembly of God Church.

I had a letter from Joyce Sjodin of Grafton, ND. in which she had included a Christmas letter from a former resident of Strandquist, Joe Koland who now lives in Morgan Hill, CA. He sent greetings and blessings to all. Also in the letter was an obituary of Foster W. Bens who came to Strandquist when he was about 14 years old to attend school. He became a dentist and was a credit to the profession in Staples and in La Mirada, CA. His sister, Ruby Jayne Lansberry of Phoenix, AZ had sent it to Joyce and she was kind enough to share this with us.

Roy and Myrtle Vagle, John Vagle, Elsie Lefrooth, Walter Thompson, Betsy Thompson, David and Phaela Thompson, LaVonne and Brian Johnson, Danny and Becky Johnson, Jeremy, Michelle and Jake, Morris and Hazel Anderson helped Pearl Thompson celebrate her birthday on Sunday afternoon.

Elsie Lefrooth and Pearl Thompson accompanied Betsy Thompson to the Fellowship supper at the Heritage Christian School on Saturday evening. The trio rendered many beautiful songs for the evening's entertainment that was enjoyed by all. The men of the trio are Robert Thompson, Dean Johnson and Kurt Aakre and it is a pleasure to hear them sing.

Gully Community News

Sanna Brovold

Mrs. Harry Watnema feels their family was richly blessed this Christmas. They are thankful for the moderate temperature and good roads this holiday season, so their family members could get home for a joyful celebration of Christmas. This was true for many families, some of us forget to be thankful. Harry and Agnes had Arlene Muellerleile of Mankato, daughter, Paige of Syracuse, NY, Caryn of St. Paul, her Argentine friend, Natalie Duque of Hopkins, Bob and Linnae Anderson and family of Fosston, Harold, Rosalyn and family of Moorhead, all home for Christmas.

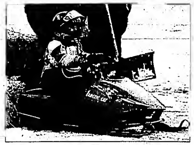
Monday the 19th was a holiday for many celebrating Martin Luther Kings birthday, but for many in this area it was a sad day since it was George Ness's funeral. It is sad to part with one that still seemed young. George had been born and raised north of Gully, where he attended school and later attended the A.C. at Crookston. George was interested in people and the affairs of the community, now he leaves two empty houses one in Gully and one on the farm, both seem to look and sound lonesome with out George's cheerful whistle. Rev. Kelly officiated at the funeral held at ten, in the Lund Lutheran Church. Gregory Ness spoke about his grandparents and how his grandpa taught his grandchildren. Especially about the things around the farm. Knowledge gained that way seems much more vivid than from a text book. George deserved a "star in his crown" for having so much patience as a teaching parent. Gertrude Ness Nipper's, grandchildren, Sally and Rick Erickson sang several favorite hymns, among them, Precious Lord, I Was There and Amazing Grace. Casket bearers were Gregory, Jeffrey and Jon Ness, James and Joshua Mattson, and Kevin Kelelsteger. Interment was at Lund Lutheran Cemetery where George was laid for peaceful rest beside his wife Lilly who passed away in 1993. Their son William and wife Henrietta live in Thief River Falls and their daughter Norma and husband Orven Mandt live in Bloomington. George is also survived by six grandchildren and two sisters, Gertrude Neper of Thief River Falls and Clara LeVol of Fosston. (Since Clara is a former classmate of mine I waited for her on Monday, but guess she had heard Gully was even colder than Fosston so she didn't dare to venture out.)

Mark Lee visited his grandma, Irene Carlson on Friday. Mark has been home (with Nancy and Dick) after returning from Anchorage, Alaska, after the snow got too deep there for the work he was doing. He expects to go back to Alaska in April. I don't believe Mark is only gaining his wages in Alaska. He is getting a chance to see and learn first hand about the geographical and the living culture of the people in that part of our continent, that most of us read about and dream about having a chance to see.

Visitors at the Michelle Levin home, were Beth Alfelt Nelson, and Molly Lethert, from the Cities. They spent most of the weekend at Ed and Lynn Turenne's cabin at Clearwater Lake. On Sunday they got together with Ed and Lyn and Maja Turenne came up to Gully to visit Michelle and Maja's grandma, Ellie Handy and had dinner at the Gully Cafe.

We are having to say farewell to many of our friends that we have known for years. This time on Saturday we attended funeral service for a former neighbor, Inga Sweno Johnson. Services were held at Bethany Lutheran Church north of Gully. This was Ingas last trip to Bethany Church but she had made many trips to there and spent many hours there as she took part in the various activities as Sunday School teacher, Ladies Aid, the various committees or whenever help was needed to keep the congregation going. On her last trip to Bethany she was buried right close to the farm where she lived as a youngster with her folks, Martin and Karen Burgh Sweno. Rev. Erick Midthun officiated on Saturday with Sarah Gunning, organist and Vernon Hamnes, soloist. Casket bearers were Glen and Dwane Bergerson, Russell Morlin Norberg, David Norberg, Glen Langseth and Robert Vanderport. The Ladies served a noon dinner (after the burial) to the many friends and relatives attending. They say "If there's room in the heart there is room in the house". With the large crowd attending the funeral it showed Inga had a heart and concern for many from far and wide and the church was crowded, but we were well taken care of.

It is fun to hear from former Gully residents but the news we heard from Robert and Phyllis Hanson Anderson of Flint, MI, was not happy news. They tell us a former Gully resident Roy Wilmo passed away December 31. Roy moved form Gully to Flint, MI, in 1933 and was employed there at Fisher Body Division until he retired in 1976. Roy was preceded in death by his parents, Sophie and Jacob Wilmo, a son Leslie in 1994, a grandson, Ron Thronson in 1991, a sister Marie and brother, Art. Roy is survived by wife, Bella and children, Ardella and husband Harry Hegg, Sandra Thronson and husband, Marie Drury and husband Doug, Russell and Norma Wilma, Peggy Fifield and husband Richard, 26 grandchildren, 39 great grandchildren, and 7 great great grandchildren, and sisters, Alice Lundmark (formerly of Gully) and Edna Collatte of Brainerd. Funeral services were held January 3rd, at the Sunset Chapel of Riegle Funeral Home at Flint with Rev. Jerry Pruett officiating.



Waiting for the race to begin is tough. A large number of youngsters participated in the KCPRO Kitty Cat race held during the Ironmen 250 in Thief River Falls.

The Office Of President Deserves More Respect

Radio and television talk show hosts and self-professed "comedians" have been having a field day lately with the most recent alleged improprieties of U.S. President Bill Clinton. From what we have heard, none of the "live" shows on TV failed to take a shot at the President and some were more than usually crude and tasteless.

Of course we are thankful that we live in a nation where there is freedom to criticize our government without concern for reprisal. As a member of the "news media" in general, we can appreciate being able to say and write what we think as it concerns our political leaders.

We are concerned, however, that the willingness—perhaps even the eagerness—to find fault with those in high office supersedes the responsibility to simply report clearly and accurately and contributes to loss of public respect for not only the office holders but the office itself.

Most certainly, along with this public lack of respect for the office, is the more serious lack of responsibility shown by the office holders themselves. President Clinton's indiscretions in the past and perhaps in the present show an arrogant disregard for how the holder of the nation's highest office should conduct oneself. He is not alone in abusing his office, but that is no excuse in his defense. If the President does not think enough of his position to serve in it with dignity and honor, can we expect the public to be respectful?

Clever satire can be humorous when carefully done. It can also be vicious and improper, as has been the case with too much of the recent programming. Bill Clinton may be deserving of ridicule; the President of the United States should not.

What will come of this latest purported scandal? A couple of things are possible: (1) The President will survive it and have given the office yet another deep scar; (2) Bill Clinton will be found to have advised someone to lie under oath and be impeached or forced into a resignation.

The latter would not be the bad news. The bad news would be that Vice President Al Gore would become President. Think about that possibility for awhile.

MnUSA President Urges Snowmobile Safety

GUEST EDITORIAL
by Greg Sorenson of Proctor
President of the Minnesota United Snowmobilers Association

In Minnesota, snow and snowmobiling go hand in hand. We don't need to get much of the white stuff before eager riders are out in force enjoying the crisp winter air and beauty of Minnesota's winterscape.

During the last year, consumer media has focused almost exclusively on snowmobile accidents and deaths. Unfortunately, 1996 was a record year for snowmobile-related deaths, not only in Minnesota, but Wisconsin and Michigan, too. And, this year, we've already had a dozen fatalities.

Granted, more people than ever are riding—it's terrific sport for the entire family to enjoy—but that also means more inexperienced riders, too. We'll never be able to eliminate all accidents. But just liking driving a car, boat or ATV, risks are minimized by driving smart and using common sense, which is where the Minnesota United Snowmobile Association (MnUSA) has an impact. MnUSA actively promotes snowmobile safety and has partnered with the Department of Natural Resources to keep trails groomed and provide volunteers for the ONR safety training classes.

As Minnesota's largest snowmobiling organization, MnUSA's 40,000 members and 280 clubs help maintain more than 80 percent of the state's 18,000 miles of trails. The clubs maintain the trails not only to ensure a wide variety of scenic routes for fun snowmobiling, but to promote the safety of the sport. Trail riding is the safest riding. Groomed trails are safer because they are clear of fence posts, trees and other fixed objects, which account for more than 70 percent of all snowmobile accidents.

Snowmobiling has an incredible economic impact on the state's economy. With more than 300,000 licensed sleds, the sport generates more than $600 million in revenues, and is particularly important for resorts and restaurants in greater Minnesota. The sport is represented by the young and old, from city dwellers to those who call the country home—people who make a conscious effort to ride smart for their safety and for the sake of others around them....We need to ensure that the sport remains safe and fun for everyone.

Dole Could Be President ....Elizabeth, That Is!

There are a lot of Americans who believe the wrong Dole was on the ballot in the last election for U.S. President. While Bob bombed in an effort to stir up any enthusiastic support for his candidacy, his wife distinguished herself as an articulate, intelligent and perceptive person who earns respect rather than demands it.

Delivering a keynote address recently at the annual meeting of the American Farm Bureau in Charlotte, NC, Mrs. Dole said she feels there has been a deterioration of values in America and believes strongly in the need for more "individual and national character."

Dole said the country should model itself after the nation's farmers and ranchers. "You who work the land understand this simple truth more than anyone: hard work and moral integrity, faith and freedom....these most American of values that are the values of the farm and the ranch are deeply rooted in the land.

"These are the values that guide you through drought and storm, through the hard times and the good, and they are the values that will carry our great and good nation through the years ahead."

Acknowledging that Americans have become disenchanted with their government over the years, she said that many qualified people are discouraged from entering government service and running for office.

"The words 'I'm from the government, I'm here to help' are guaranteed to get laughs....and that was not the case when I started out," she said.

"The federal government, I believe, has become too big, too complex, too bloated, too bureaucratic," she said. "Decisions once made in state legislatures and city halls and around kitchen tables are now made in Washington. People feel their government doesn't have confidence in their wisdom, therefore they shouldn't have confidence in their government.

"What we need to do is remember the wisdom of our founders and the 10th Amendment. Those powers not specifically delegated to the federal government nor prohibited to the states are reserved for the states and for the people; you and me....that's where the power needs to be."

That may have been Bob Oole's philosophy as well, but it sounds more believable coming from Elizabeth. She could be President.. if she would.

To The Editor:

Your editorial regarding a unicameral legislature was comprehensive and timely. It seems that a singe-house body would be a logical step if we must accept thing as they are. Let's review the background of the present situation for readers who might have forgotten:

The original American Constitutional Convention spent a long, hot summer debating the issue of representation. The big states wanted it to be based on population; the small states fought for equal representation and didn't give in until they got the Senate. George Washington was sworn as President of the remodeled government on March 4, 1789. States modeled their Constitutions on the federal system, giving representation both to the counties (State Senators) and population (Representatives), making state governments bicameral as well.

It continued this way until about 30 years ago. Then the very activist "Warren" Supreme Court decreed that states could not pattern their government on the federal system (as you stated).

At that time U.S. Senator Oirksen of Ohio felt that the Supreme Court had no right to decree the states could not model their governments after the federal pattern. He wrote an article which was published in the Saturday Evening Post entitled "The Supreme Court Has Gone Too Far!" He sponsored a bill which would have given states the right to keep their legislatures as they were but his bill was defeated.

This is the worst thing that has ever happened to rural America!

I suppose the reason why this travesty has received so little attention is that major newspapers are printed in population centers, but I have never heard of any farm organization making an issue of it either.

Complaining about wildlife, property rights, farm prices, etc., do no good unless we have the votes. I am reminded of out-of-state people who complain about the taxes on their lake property; local boards just laugh and raise their taxes more.

Would the Twin Cities be what they are if rural tax dollars had not gone to build the Capitol and University?

The American Revolution came about because people objected to taxation without representation.

What would the Feds do if Minnesota went back to the old system? If pressed, the present Supreme Court might reverse the ruling

On the other hand, an activist court in the future might declare the U.S. Constitution unconstitutional(!!) and rural states will lose the Senate. I guess it's more likely that another Constitutional Convention will be called and we'll be outnumbered when an amendment to eliminate our U.S. Senate comes up for ratification.

Sincerely,
Ernest Thorsgard

To The Editor:

How long will we Americans keep the Second Amendment? There are some very powerful forces out there trying to destroy it.

The anti-gunners are using everything at their disposal to disarm private, law-abiding citizens in this country. They perpetuate lies, distort facts and statistics and use the national media to promote these and other untruths. To top it all off, they have a President in Bill Clinton who will go down in history as the greatest anti-gunner ever. He also lends the anti-gunners his support.

By focusing on lies, these people hope to sway the American people to their way of thinking. The first big lie is that somehow law-abiding gun owners are responsible for all the crime out there. Fact: Of the 80 million gun owners in this country, less than one percent use them illegally.

The second big lie is a dandy: It's all for the sake of the poor children that we need "gun control." Fact: We already have 20,000 gun laws on the books. Of those laws, there are a few that totally prohibit felons and minors from owning guns. Incidentally, if it is for the sake of the poor children, why do we kill 4,400 babies daily through legalized abortion?

The third "fraud" out there is what is called Cease Fire. This organization hopes to distribute enough false material to discourage gun ownership—to portray any home that owns a gun an unsafe place to visit. To quote a line from them: "Do not send your child to a home where a handgun is present." Do you get the picture here?

To add further impetus to the agenda, members of the U.N. now, including Japan, the United Kingdom and India are pushing for total gun control. They feel private citizens have no need to own a gun....a global agenda!

The latest country where residents are losing their rights to owning guns is Australia. This past fall they had to turn them all in, including even .22s. They said it would never happen. Oh, yeah? This now brings a percentage of countries in the world which prohibit private gun ownership to 80 percent.

Will it happen in America? Consider this: Of 80 million gun owners in this country, only four percent belong to the National Rifle Association (NRA). Furthermore, the apathy and complacency out there is unbelievable. So there's the answer to the above question..

Ridiculous cliches such as "They can have my gun when they peel it from my cold dead fingers" will not stop them. If people don't take a stand, this is exactly what will happen. It's people control, not crime control!

NRA dues are $35 a year. The address is NRA, 11250 Waples Mill Road, Fairfax, VA 22030 or call 1-800-672-3888.

To The Editor:

Your editorials are read with interest. It is not difficult to agree with you. In the last editorial giving the views of the Sierra Club, their opinion that wolves do not attack humans and that no records exist to say that they do are in error.

The Grand Forks Herald published a letter recently about how an early settler was followed and was not attacked because he had matches. A few years ago the Smithsonian magazine had an article about wolves. It described where and how they live, of known attacks on humans, of captive wolves and cross-breeds with dogs and of attacks on people.

I am near 78 years old and old-timers described wolf attacks on people. Roseau Times Region published wolf attack articles, although a fire years ago may have destroyed their old editions. Wolves have attacked children and other people. Thanks for reading my comments.

Sincerely,
James G. Efta

To The Editor:

In response to Ginny Yingling of the Sierra Club: She states in the January 17 Northern Watch that no one in North America has been attacked by a wolf. I enclose a copy from The 13 Towns newspaper published 12/29/97 in which the review from Jan. 3, 1908 states, "Wolves killed a boy in the Sebeka area."

Open Letter To Drug Dealers:

As a resident of Thief River Falls, I would like to roll out the welcome mat to all drug dealers who are looking for a safe haven to do business, and know that if they are caught they will only get a slap on the wrist. Does that sound ridiculous? Maybe not. . .

Consider this: In the past few months we have read about people convicted of one drug charge after another here in Thief River Falls. Sounds good. Something finally being done—or is it? Look at the sentences handed down: probation, hardly any time in jail, and no prison sentences unless the sentence was stayed and a five or 10-year probation thrown in for good measure.

Now consider this: 14 and 15 year-old kids from our city are being sentenced to drug treatment centers and correctional facilities in the state for periods up to four months and more (far beyond recommendations to the court by experts in this field) for buying drugs from these same drug dealers.

Also consider this: Law enforcement officials tell me that they arrest the dealers and the court turns them back out on the streets, making their job of getting the drugs out of Thief River Falls pointless to some extent.

And finally, consider this: The same judge is sitting on the bench for sentencing of the juveniles as well as the dealers.

Someone out there want to explain to me the logic of this picture?

Sincerely,
Ed Leeper
Thief River Falls

FROM [illegible] CITY

A Proposition Which Mr. Bergh Can Consider

"The much mooted question of whether or not P. O. Bergh is guilty of bribery has dwindled down to a matter of veracity between the editor of THE NEWS and the alderman-at-large from the First Ward. Last week in a signed statement published in THE PRESS, Mr. Bergh denied the charge as absolutely false. He gave no proof, just simply said it was a lie. The discussion of this matter in the newspapers is not elevating, and, in order that it may be stopped, we make the following proposition to Mr. Bergh, which we believe is fair and will vindicate the one that has been telling the truth:

"When the Grand Jury convenes in Red Lake Falls next month, let Mr. Bergh present his side of the case to this august body, and the editor of THE NEWS will do the same. Then the Grand Jury can do as it sees fit: if the editor has lied, he can be indicted for criminal libel, which is punishable by a term in the penitentiary; if Mr. Bergh is guilty, he can be punished in the same way. We are willing to abide by the decision of the Grand Jury.

"We believe we have told the truth regarding this matter and last week we met by appointment the person (we do not wish to publish his name, for he is young and says he did not know the gravity of the offense at the time) whom Mr. Bergh paid money to. He said that the article as published in THE NEWS was practically correct, and that Mr. Bergh had come to him since the article was published and said that he should consider that the money given to him was a mere loan, not a bribe. But we are willing to have the facts regarding this alleged loan investigated, however.

"The following was published in THE PRESS:

"'THE NEWS man wants some explanation.

"'I want to make him this proposition: If he will publicly admit he lied about the interview and truthfully tell how many subscribers he lost by it, I will explain some more. But it takes a week to answer in a weekly paper. P. O. Bergh.'

"This plainly shows the calibre of the man we have to deal with. It has nothing to do with the case, but in the hopes of having Mr. Bergh 'explain some more' we herewith give the names of the people who stopped their paper on his account:

P. O. Bergh, alderman
John Burkee, alderman
Lars Backe, city clerk
John Mickelson, city engineer
Gilbert Gilbertson, street commissioner.

"The latter three gentlemen are candidates for re-election to their various offices and we presume that they are obliged to take part with the men who rule for them in the council. We do not blame them, although we admire independence. And as to the first proposition, for the sake of argument, we will affirm, 'Explain some more, Mr. Bergh, please do.'

"THE PRESS did considerable explaining last week. It said that the reasons given by THE NEWS for the council's refusing to confirm Mayor Dobner's appointment of 'superintendent of police' were untrue. Everyone in the city has heard the threats made by the aldermen regarding the matter. And we are sorry that that paper is so far behind the times.

"A coward and vilifier has come to the defense of Mr. Bergh. Last week he wrote a malicious article which was published in THE PRESS, and not daring of course, to give his own name, signed it "A Citizen." We have a well-founded belief as to this author."

TOPICS OF THE TIMES

50 YEARS AGO • JANUARY 22, 1948
Editorial comments from the files of Norm A. Holen

—Random thought: Wonder why the abbreviation for Missouri is MO, instead of MI. It may be because Mississippi also ends with an "I."

—Remember back before the war when young Michael Kirby appears at the arena here in a skating show staged by the Winnipeg Winter club? He is now the skating partner of Sonja Henie in a New York ice show.

—No law suits are instituted in heaven, we read, because they can't find any attorneys there.

—Harry Truman offered us $40 for our vote in 1948, but we doubt that we'll accept it.

—Times change. It's only a year or so ago that owners of oil-burners were feeling smug when John L. Lewis' coal miners went out on strike.

—The kind of party prison inmates enjoy most is an open house.

—As General H. H. Arnold said recently, no one will win the next war.

—Clipped thought for today. If no one but yourself benefits from your labors, then your work is unimportant.

—We don't need to think that we are the only U.S.A. in the world. There also is the Union of South Africa.

—Says the Ada Index: The only voice a lot of men have in their homes is the invoice.

LEGAL NOTICE

Minnkota Power Cooperative, Inc., in cooperation with Otter Tail Power Co., is planning to construct and operate approximately 58 miles of 115 kilovolt transmission line and associated facilities from the Drayton 115 kilovolt substation in Walsh County North Dakota, approximately 1.5 miles west of Oslo, Minnesota, to the Thief River Falls 115 kilovolt substation located in Pennington County, Minnesota, approximately 2 miles east of Thief River Falls, Minnesota. The project as proposed would traverse small portions of Walsh County, North Dakota, and Polk County, Minnesota, and portions of Marshall and Pennington Counties in Minnesota, near State Highway 1. One alternative to the project as proposed is no action, which would retain existing facilities in the existing configuration. The "no action" alternative would compromise the ability of the utilities to supply low cost, reliable service to customers in the region, and would severely limit the ability of the utilities to provide electrical service to future load growth in the area, and backup and load relief to existing facilities. An alternative route for the project has also been considered. The alternative route would increase the overall length of the project.

A borrower's environmental report (BER) which describes the project further and discusses anticipated environmental impacts has been prepared by Minnkota Power Cooperative, Inc., and is available for public review. The BER will be used by the Rural Utilities Service as the basis for, or will be adopted as, its environmental assessment of the project.

The BER can be reviewed at, or obtained from, Minnkota Power Cooperative, Inc., at the address provided in this notice or from the Environmental Compliance Branch, Electric Staff Division, Rural Utilities Service, Room 1271, South Agriculture Building, 14th and Independence Avenue, Washington, DC 20250. Questions and comments should be sent to Minnkota Power Cooperative, Inc., 1822 Mill Road, P.O. Box 13200, Grand Forks, ND 58208-3200 to the attention of Raymond Bumsted, Transmission Engineering Manager. Copies of the BER are also available for review at Thief River Falls Public Library, 101 East First Street, Thief River Falls, MN 56701.

Comments on the BER should be received in writing to the Rural Utilities Service or Minnkota Power Cooperative, Inc., within 30 days of the publication date of this notice to ensure that they are considered by the Rural Utilities Service prior to issuing an environmental assessment.

FLOODPLAIN AND WETLAND IMPACTS

The project, or a portion thereof, will be located in the 100-year floodplain and wetlands. Alternatives, including no action, were considered, however, no practicable alternative was identified that would avoid having an impact on the 100-year floodplain and wetlands. The facilities will be designed and constructed to keep pole structures as far away from main river channels as possible. Design will meet appropriate National Electrical Safety Code or U.S. Army Corps of Engineers requirements for conductor clearance above floodplains and navigable waters. All wetlands in the proposed project route, with the exception of one, are small enough so that pole placement within the wetland areas is avoidable. With respect to the unavoidable wetland, the utilities will use one travel corridor into and out of the wetland, and permanent fill will be restricted to the pole site(s). Comments or suggestions for further mitigating impacts to the 100-year floodplain and wetlands are welcome.

INVITATION TO BID

Board OKs full-time County Attorneys

Pennington County Commissioners have approved a request to make the County Attorney's office a full-time position effective July 1.

Pennington County Attorney Dave Olin has occupied the position of part-time county attorney for a number of years, and Al Rogalla, as part-time assistant county attorney. In making his request to the county board Tuesday night, Olin said there were a number of reasons for the request. One reason was to bring the county in compliance with state law if it decided to make the positions full-time this election year. Another reason had to with a workload that has more than doubled since 1977.

At one time, the county attorney's office was staffed by three part-time attorneys. Pennington County Commissioners agreed with Olin and approved his request. Effective July 1, the county attorney's will have two full-time attorneys working for Pennington County.

"I requested action to make this job a full-time position be taken during the month of January to be consistent with Minnesota Law requiring that the full-time county attorney's position, if switched from part time to full time, be done in the January proceeding filings for the position," said Olin in a written statement. He stated Tuesday night and in his written statement, that the request was being made in the best interest of Pennington County, whether he should remain as county attorney after the election this fall, or whether someone new ends up occupying the office.

"By way of explanation, during my 23 years as county attorney, I have watched the county attorney's position go from a part-time job with one assistant to a part-time mob with two assistants, all of whom, were working over two-third of the time on county work. I have also watched the number of full-time county attorneys statewide grow from about seven when first elected to 48 as of the 1997 salary survey. Of greater concern to my office is that I have watched the public defender's office go from two part-time public defenders defending cases from Norman county and Mahnomen county to the Canadian border, grow to two full-time public defenders with another to be added soon across the street from my office; two part-time up in the Roseau county area, and I am not sure how many in the Polk county area.

"In dealing with the criminal work load, I have watched the work load grow from 66 felony cases and 91 combined gross misdemeanor and misdemeanor cases in 1977 to 172 felony cases, 117 gross misdemeanor cases and 136 misdemeanor cases in 1997, 20 years later. Last night at the board meeting, the Paul Bunyan Task Force statistics for 1997 were revealed. This task force is the task force dealing with drug prosecutions and arrests in a seven-county area. In reviewing the numbers of this task force, Beltrami county with five full-time attorneys in their office, lead the records with 45 arrests. Right behind them was Pennington county with 30 arrests through this task force and only two to three part-time attorneys. (Gayle Borchert left in November, leaving my office with two part-time attorneys.)"

Olin also noted the same general trends occurring with juvenile crime. They may even be escalating at a faster rote, he added.

Appearing at the meeting Tuesday night, Sheriff Gerald Moe agreed with Olin's request. Moe said that there have been times when he needed a county attorney for official business and was unable to reach one because they were working on private law cases and or were unavailable because of other court cases.

Olin noted that availability of the county attorney by other department heads was another important factor. "In today's society issues involving the county in litigation or requiring board advice have increased significantly."

In his written statement, Olin thanked his clients who have dealt with him over the years and said he will miss them, but the time for the county to progress to full time is now.

City to address trains, traffic

Traffic delays and problems caused by trains will be the subject of discussion at a meeting February 3 Tuesday, the Thief River Falls City Council heard plans for the meeting, which was brought about by a number of complaints.

Milt Burstad, council representative, asked that something be done about the railroad blocking Eighth Street. Burstad said it has become more of a problem lately. On Sunday, he said, it completely blocked Eighth Street for 15 minutes. In addition, the constant blocking and activity on the tracks makes it difficult for emergency response vehicles to respond to emergencies. (The city's new rural fire truck and the ambulance services' ambulance do not fit under the tracks near the fire hall.)

Police Chief Ken Froschheiser said following concerns expressed by others a meeting had been set up with CP Rail on February 3. During this meeting those concerns will be addressed.

Variance Request

A variance request by Steven and Janet Milender, 1125 Pennington Avenue, was denied by the council. The Milenders proposed to demolish an existing 16-foot by 22-foot single stall, attached garage, and to construct a 50-foot by 28-foot attached garage onto the northwest side of their residence. There is also an existing 30-foot by 50-foot detached, accessory building on the property. The maximum size for a private garage in a residential area has to be under 1,000 square feet in floor area.

The Board of Zoning Appeals (BOZA) approved the request, but Tuesday night the city council reversed the decision of BOZA, denying the request.

New Development

The city council has put its support behind a proposed 20-unit, multi-family, townhome development on property east of Northland Village on Highway 1. Don Stewart, community development director, explained that Southhill Group had proposed to build the facility and that to maximize application for tax credits to the Minnesota Housing Finance Agency, they needed the support of the city. That support could come in the form of excavation and backfill for a road through the project.

The council approved a resolution of support for future funding of economic development in Thief River Falls through Jobs Inc. This resolution specifically addresses support of development in the industrial park.

The council approved a request to transfer one-half mile of county road to the city's MSA system (from Barzen Avenue west to the proposed alternate Truck route).

The council has approved a memorandum of understanding covering the city administrator's position for 1998 and future years.

Don Stewart has been appointed planning commission secretary.

A plat along Highway 32 south of Thief River Falls has officially been named the Oxbow First Addition.

Council Assignments

Sitting on the Administrative Services committee will be: Frank Hamerlinck, chair, Milt Burstad, Don Barzen, and Dale Wennberg. Sitting on the Park and Recreation and Public Safety committee will be Dale Wennberg, chair, Dave Carlson, chair, Fronk Hamerlinck, and Mark Borsheim. Mock trial team prepares for season

Mock trial team from Lincoln high school held a practice trial in the Pennington county courthouse Thursday, January 29, in preparation for its two scheduled trials in official competition.

The first of those events takes place today, Wednesday, February 4, at the Mahnomen county courthouse in Mahnomen. There Lincoln will represent the defense and Detroit Lakes the prosecution in a 1 p.m. trial.

Second trial of the season will be Thursday, February 12, when Lincoln represents the prosecution against Moorhead at the Norman county courthouse in Ada. This trial is also at 1 p.m.

For both trials the Lincoln team will leave Thief River Falls at 10:30 a.m. and return about 7 p.m.

Teacher coach for the team is Cal Lindberg, social studies instructor at Lincoln, and attorney coach is Mike Jorgenson.

At the trial today with Lincoln representing the defense, Rachel Greelis, Nikolas Kotz and Lesley Ihle are the attorneys with Marisa Holmstrom, Kristine Koop and Sara Rasmussen as the witnesses. Paul Dehnert will be timekeeper with Stephanie Wiseth as bailiff and Allen Bolar as video photographer.

At Ada on February 12, when Lincoln represents the prosecution, Allen Bolar, Lesley Ihle and Paul Dehnert will be the attorneys with Nikolas Kotz, Rachel Greelis and Stephanie Wiseth as witnesses. Sara Rasmussen will be timekeeper with Kristine Koop as bailiff and Marisa Holmstrom as video photographer.

At the practice trial Thursday, a jury of faculty members, students and Academic Boosters members found the defendant not guilty. Jury members were Academic Boosters Lori Weets, Penny Langland, Cindy Tsukichi, Brenda Marben and Dr. Jerry Robicheau, faculty members Lynn Oyer, Scott Hetherington, Linda Goulet and Alice Hofstad and student Stephanie Stanina. Attorney Kurt Marben served as judge and critiqued the team members.

This year's trial involves the question of whether 18-year-old honor student Casey Coates broke into Liberty high school's main computer, changed student grades and then vandalized the computer classroom—or if someone else just wanted it to look that way.

This year there are more than 2,000 students on 214 Minnesota teams entered in mock trial competition, an academic program sponsored by the Minnesota State Bar Association (MSBA). More than 800 lawyers and judges statewide have volunteered to work with the program this year.

Mary McEnelly first physician assistant to practice in TRF

by Kathi Carlson
The Times Reporter

Icy roads, snow storms and a five hundred year flood couldn't keep Mary McEnelly from fulfilling her goal, but she did describe the winter and spring of 1997 as "not fun."

In January of last year Mary began a 12-month educational program at the University of North Dakota, and on January 9th of this year she was one of 81 candidates to receive a physician assistant certificate from the University of North Dakota School of Medicine during formal graduation ceremonies at the Chester Fritz Auditorium.

What is a physician assistant? According to a press release from the Department of Community Medicine and Rural Health of the School of Medicine at UND, "Physician assistants (PA's) are health professionals who practice medicine with physician guidance and supervision. PA's assess the health status of individuals of all ages, obtaining a database which includes a medical history, physical examination and appropriate diagnostic tests. This information is compiled in a problem-oriented medical record. In addition, PA's, in collaboration with their supervising physicans, are prepared to implement, supervise and evaluate therapeutic protocals for the management of common acute symptoms, chronic stable conditions and provide emergency care services. Program graduates also provide patient and community education to aid in promoting, maintaining and/or improving health status and preventing disease."

In plain English, a physician assistant does what a doctor does — performs all types of medical examinations, orders the appropriate tests, diagnoses illness and prescribes treatment, including medications. The supervising physician is sought out in complicated cases.

According to McEnelly, the physician assistant program at UND accepts registered nurses who have "five or six years of experience."

The course of study includes four months of didactic instruction at the University with eight months of preceptorship under the direct, one-on-one supervision of a practicing physician. Students rotate between the classroom on the UND campus and the supervising physician's practice in the student's home community.

For Mary this meant five weeks in the class in Grand Forks followed by nine weeks at Dakota Clinic under the supervision of Dr. Charles Winjum. Studying was "continuous," and from the look on her face as she described it, intense.

Mary has been a registered nurse for 26 years and worked in the mental health unit of Northwest Medical Center for 20 of those years. Her husband Jamie is a welder who works in the construction field. The McEnellys have two sons. Tony is completing his education at the University of North Dakota, his bachelor's degree in chemistry and master's degree in aero space science. Nineteen-year-old Mickey is currently living at home and working while exploring future career options.

In her 40's, Mary said, "It is not the time to go back to school." Nontheless, she did it, hampered by nearly continuous inclemate weather conditions. It doesn't take much more than a gentle breeze to kick up a storm on the Grand Forks outacross.

The School of Medicine at UND was the hardest hit by the flood. Labs filled with expensive equipment were destroyed, and other areas were inundated with flood waters. Classes were moved to North Dakota State University in Fargo. Mary spent six weeks living in a dormitory during the middle of summer. Mary hadn't cared for dormitory life 28 years ago, and didn't like it any better this time. Because of the availablility of the NDSU facility, however, her educational course was only "thrown a little off track."

Mary's goal to become a physician assistant was not spurred by a mid-life crisis or impending empty nest syndrome but her desire to "eliminate gaps in medical health coverage" in the mental health unit of the hospital.

She describes mental health care as "time intensive" and not the ususal physician's "favorite area" of practice. A physician assistant was viewed as the best way of providing consistent medical treatment to the patients in the unit.

Serving patients from all over northwestern Minnesota, the mental health unit of Northwest Medical Center is, according to Mary, "busy." Minnesota's closest inpatient mental health facilities are located in Fergus Falls and Brainerd, and while there is a facility in Grand Forks, there are often problems involved with transporting patients across state lines.

Mary says, "Medicine, with regard to mental health is changing — almost daily." Stress is recognized as an important factor in mental health as is the role mental health plays in all kinds of illnesses. New medications are being rapidly introduced, and the tendency to institutionalize mental health patients has been replaced by the propensity of treating them in their home communities.

While a member of UND's 26th class to complete the educational program and one of 982 who have, to date, received a physician assistant certificate from frum UND's School of Medicine, Mary is the first physician assistant to practice in Thief River Falls. She is licensed by the Minnesota Board of Medical Examiners and nationally certified by the National Commission on the Certification of Physician Assistants.

In additional to her employment in the mental health unit of NWMC, Mary will "soon" begin to practice two afternoons a week at Dakota Clinic pending some legalities and agreement between the hospital and the clinic.

Dr Winjum will be her supervising physician, collaborating with her in providing medical care. The relationship between Dr. Winjum and Mary appears to be one of friendship and ease, and he sincerely states that he "welcomes her to the medical community."

Natural disasters of monumental proportion didn't deter Mary McEnelly from becoming a physician assistant as she balanced her educational and career goals with her role as a wife and mother. That's dedication — a trait from which her patients and the community will most surely benefit.

A recent graduate of the 12-month physician assistant (PA) program of the School of Medicine at the University of North Dakota, Mary McEnelly will be the first PA to practice in Thief River Falls. She will be employed by both Northwest Medical Center and Dakota Clinic. Mary's preceptorship was done with Dr. Charles Winjum in his practice at Dakota Clinic, and Dr. Winjum will continue to be her supervising physician, collaborating with her in providing medical care to the community.

ON MY MIND

Kim Chadwick-Quade

Oh, So Tasty!

Every few years we weather major food trends - from the popularity of the pressure cooker (which I hear is making a comeback), to the air popcorn popper, the food processor and food dehydrator. We've seen home beer brewing, personal ice cream machines and flavored pastas. I believe the latest food trend is garlic.

Garlic's always had a presence, but not as popular as today. In earlier days, people often hung bulbs of it around their neck as a charm to ward off vampires and other evils (along with a few friends and relatives). In the past, when I used it for cooking, it came out of a plastic shaker in the from of salt, minced and powder and found its way into hotdishes and onto bread. To me, it was just another spice.

Lately it seems as if I can't get away from garlic, which is also known as the "Stinking Rose." Every recipe I clip out of a magazine calls for fresh garlic - sliced, minced, chopped and whole (with as many as 50 whole cloves to one chicken). It's in butter, soups, potatoes, dips, salads, vegetables, pastas, breads, poultry and it's eaten plain. Imagine...straight garlic.

Kitchen stores stock garlic bakers so brave souls can bake a bulb of elephant garlic (that's the really large kind) and slather the creamy concoction on crackers and ears of corn. There's also a garlic press, garlic-flavored olive oil, garlic-flavored pastas and garlique pills. There's garlic foot rubs and even a garlic newsletter for diehard garlic lovers.

Many people enjoy the flavor of this small, but potent bulb which is a member of the lily family. My research found that the garlic plant first grew in East Asia, but it is now grown commercially in California. It's hard to imagine that about 630 million pounds of garlic is produced each year. We actually eat that much of it.

A search on the Internet for the word "garlic" found more than 93,000 entries. Just for garlic. People conduct garlic tastings. There's a garlic festival in Gilroy, Calif. (touted as the "Garlic Capital of the World") and 11 other sites in the United States. A Montana seed company offers more than 400 varieties of garlic seeds if you're keen on growing your own. The Guinness Book of World Records lists an entry for the longest continuous string of garlic – 123 feet using 1,600 garlic bulbs. That occurred in a small village in England, in case you wanted to know.

Garlic was worshipped by ancient Egyptians and chewed by Greek Olympians. And there are many people who believe in the health benefits of consuming garlic. One web site claims that it is effective at zapping bacteria, keeping the heart healthy, warding off coughs and colds, and lowering blood pressure and cholesterol.

Another web site suggested that the average daily dose of raw garlic was two cloves. The question is: How can one consume two cloves of garlic a day without losing friends? The answer: A garlic shooter. Here's the recipe. I DID NOT try this at home and cannot vouch for its effectiveness, but let me know if it works!

To make a garlic shooter crush two cloves of garlic. Remove the skins and mince. Put the garlic in a small glass with about two to three ounces of grapefruit or orange juice. Swallow in one motion. Follow with another two to three ounces of juice. After five to 10 minutes, the garlic smell will have disappeared.

I'm not sure I'll go that far in the trend toward garlic. But I have a couple of boxes in my refrigerator (and for less than 50 cents for two bulbs it's a great bargain). I also possess my very own garlic press.

Garlic appears to be an "in" thing. The breath mint, chewing gum and toothpaste companies are loving it!

ON THE OTHER HAND

Dan Carpenter
Lincoln High School

Well, the chaos of the semester's end is finally over. No one has to worry (at least until third quarter) about those late assignments or that particular missing theme that has to be written on the last day possible. I found myself wondering how many times has this scramble for credit taken place for students, or am I the only one who procrastinates? But I'm afraid many people would say it's been happening forever for them too.

As I was thinking about that question a little more, I realized how quickly the time has flown by. And I don't just mean this year, but my whole 13-year school career. I started recalling some of the things that have happened to me since I moved to Thief River Falls from Brookings, South Dakota, in the summer of 1985 - just two months prior to the start of Kindergarten.

I was all set to begin school there, when my parents just packed up and moved here. I had to make some new friends when I came here. I always fancied myself to have good people skills at that young age.

Well, I was wrong. I had a few bad personality habits. I had an aloof attitude. Also, I had just a little too much energy. I liked to smart off to people. Sure, these are pretty common in five-year-olds, but the real problem was that I was small and unathletic, so I couldn't physically back my words.

I can remember one of first days that I went to daycare in town here. I was referred to as "The New Kid." This one kid had almost everything in common with me. One would think that we would have hit it off right away. Well, I was wrong again. I responded to every snide thing he had to say, and he pounded my face into the ground with ease, and with great frequency.

With my attitude and demeanor, I was like a little yipping dog biting at someone's ankles. To make a long story short, I learned how to keep my mouth shut by the third grade.

Also, I can clearly remember my first day at Franklin. I was pretty nervous about moving to a larger school. I was also amazed at how many kids there were that were actually my age. I was extremely nervous about meeting all of these kids. But that nervousness was unfounded, because all of the people that I am friends with now I never even knew before the seventh grade.

Another thing that sticks out in my mind from my middle school years happened in the seventh grade after the illustrious "Last Dance." To celebrate the event, I was staying overnight at a friend's house. We decided that it would be a funny prank to sneak out of his house, trek across the whole city, and crash my sister's birthday slumber party. Well, it took us about three hours to make the mile long walk (seventh graders are very paranoid about police officers and their curfew enforcements.) When we finally got to my house, all of the lights were on. Since it was about four in the morning, this seemed quite odd.

We decided to abort our mission and go back to my friend's house. But when we got back, his mom was waiting for us. We were busted on the spot. My dad came and picked me up around five thirty. That night made his Top Ten List for the most angry he'd ever been.

There are many other things that I can clearly recall from my school life: my first real girlfriend, the first day on a real job, the first performance with my garage band, and the day that I made Jazz band at the high school.

Not everything in the last thirteen years of my life has been peachy keen, but everything; even the bad moments, are memories that will be with me for the rest of my life. I never really understood what my parents were saying all those years until now. "High school is the best time you'll ever have in your life."

Even though we'll still have a couple of those dreaded make up work rushes left in our school lives, we should cherish them. We'll never know how great it was until it's gone. Sure –

Book Reviews of the Month

Fear Nothing by Dean Koontz is the latest from this highly popular author and the one he has labeled his best. Christopher Snow has a very rare genetic disorder that leaves him vulnerable to light and so he truly lives in the night -- but into his world of the dark comes a violent mystery that only he can solve, a mystery that will force him to confront his fears and his friends in his community.

Web Sites of the Month

Well organized, it allows you to browse online publications, databases, support and self help groups, government agencies, clearinghouses and non-profit organizations that produce reliable information.

Http://www.mindspring.com/~zoonet/ --Zoonet-- This site lists and gives details about zoos in the United States and other parts of the world. It also links to many animal sites.

Question of the Month

Why don't you have better parking? This and the need of more Internet workstations are the two items we have heard the most about from the public in the past six months. In fact, the parking issue had been a hot topic for many years. The library has street parking on 3rd Street and Main Avenue and has a parking lot located between the library and Bridgeman's which was deeded to the library (not the City) by L.B. Hartz with the stipulation that it be used for library parking. However, there is still not a great deal of parking -- not only for the library, but also for all the buildings around this area. It is a problem with which the City is dealing. One advancement they make this past year was to pave the current parking lot and sign it so that we would have a good space for our handicapped accessible parking spot. They are currently discussing other solutions for parking in this entire few blocks and hopefully a solution can be arrived at within a year or so.

PARENTING TIPS
Read, Read, Read!

As we look at American adults and their reading habits, it is very easy to see that a love of reading and an interest in books does not "just happen." In one study of American adults, nearly two-thirds reported that they had not read a single book all the way through, during the previous year!

Being able to read and having a love of reading are two of the most precious gifts we can give our children. The earlier we start, the easier it will be to provide a basis for this gift.

Following are some suggestions to help you nurture in your child a love of books and reading:

- Read to your child, daily if possible. Make this an enjoyable "together time." Hold and cuddle your child as you read.
- Talk about the stories and nursery rhymes.
- Provide opportunities for your child to see you reading. Let him/her see and know the joy you receive from reading. (If you do not enjoy reading, try to do some for your child's sake.)
- Buy books for your child so that he/she has his/her own.
- Take your child to the library. Let him/her have his/her own library card to check books out with.
- Make reading fun. Read with expression and enthusiasm. Follow the story with an activity related to the story.

SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT

Talk about the books you are reading. Point out details in the pictures. Describe or label what you see. When your child is older, ask him or her questions about the picture.

Courage Retreat Friday for FMS sixth graders

Franklin middle school sixth graders will participate in a Courage Retreat Friday, February 6, at Redeemer Lutheran Church. About 200 students will learn about courage, respect and values at the session.

The full-day workshop will be presented by Youth Frontiers, Inc., a non-profit agency whose mission is to provide school with programs designed to nurture young people in the development of their character, values and relationships.

The day-long program takes students out of their academic setting and encourages them to consider their values and contrast those values with their behavior. It involves such activities as singing, dancing, role-playing, small group interaction and discussions and large group presentations.

Eleven students from Lincoln senior high school along with 12 adults from the community have received special training to assist with leadership of the small group activities. Every activity in the retreat is intended to enhance the participants' understanding of conflict resolution, communication, respectful behavior, kindness and friendship.

Some schools which have participated in the program have reported up to a 70 percent drop in disciplinary referrals to the principal after the retreat has been presented. One participating teacher pointed out that the retreat give students "... the power to stand up for themselves and the tools to be kind."

Candlelight ski outing offered at Old Mill Park

Candlelight and moonlight skiing will be offered from 7 to 10 p.m. Saturday, February 7, on the mile-long ski trails at Old Mill State Park west of Newfolden. The trail will be lighted by candles and, if the sky is clear, by the moon.

Hot apple cider will be provided and skiers are invited to bring a treat to share. Ski passes (daily fee is $1) for the day, one year or three years are available at the park, as are vehicle permits. Ski passes are required for skiers ages 16 to 65 years.

Approximately 140 sets of skis, boots and poles in a variety of sizes from children to adult may be rented at the park for $7 a set. Skiers should call the park at 218-437-8174 to reserve sets. The candlelight ski outing will be canceled if dangerously low temperatures or wind chills occur.

Picnic shelter will be used as a warming house and snowmobilers are invited to ride down to the shelter and warm up this winter. Riders are asked to avoid the ski trails since snowmobiles ruin the track.

Call the park number listed above for further information.

Random Acts of Kindness Week observed at Franklin

Random Acts of Kindness Week will be observed February 9-12 at Franklin middle school in Thief River Falls. The event has been scheduled in response to the "Healthy Community—Healthy Youth" survey conducted in 1996 which indicated a need for emphasis in this area of behavior.

Franklin will be joining people across the nation in promoting the theme, with local emphasis provided by a group of sixth through eighth grade students known as the Respect Team. This group has received instruction in promoting activities emphasizing positive self-worth and empathy for others.

Team members include: Grade 6, Ashley Morkrid, Kari Johnson, Runea Jorgenson, Andy Hoard and Philip Kosel, Grade 7, Kara Larson, Maggie Stock, Kate Levinson and Nathan Browning; Grade 8, Kris Adamson, Brionna Srnsky and Kiley Brazier.

During the week of February 9-12, students at Franklin will be encouraged to show acts of kindness in response to daily themes. Those students who choose to participate during the week will be rewarded by being allowed to attend a student council dance and activity night Thursday, February 12.

On Monday, February 9, the theme is Random Acts of Kindness in the Community. Students will be asked to bring two canned food items to school for donation to the Thief River Falls Area Food Shelf.

On Tuesday, February 10, the theme is Random Acts of Kindness in Your Family. Students will be encouraged to be especially considerate and helpful in their homes.

On Wednesday, February 11, emphasis will be on Random Acts of Kindness toward the staff at Franklin middle school. Thoughtful and caring actions toward all adults working in the Franklin building will be highlighted. The seventh grade Respect Team members will serve hot chocolate and cookies to the staff at 3 p.m.

On Thursday, February 12, students will be promoting Random Acts of Kindness among their peers and friends.

People who are the beneficiaries of these daily themes of Random Acts of Kindness will be asked to sign their name and give a brief explanation of the kind action done by the participating student on a Random Acts of Kindness coupon. The more signatures a student has, the less it will cost the student to get into the Random Acts of Kindness Activity Night on Thursday. At the Activity Night, students will be able to go to a dance, swim, play games on the computers or play Bingo, board games, basketball or table tennis.

All profits from the Activity Night will go to the Al Krause Greenhouse project at Franklin.

FMS Accelerated Reading Program gains momentum

Accelerated Reading Program at Franklin middle school in Thief River Falls is growing in popularity while motivating students to read more and better books, according to Meri Jo Paschke, media center coordinator at Franklin.

Last year there were approximately 200 students who participated in the program and by this time in the school year had checked out 2,604 books This year there are 359 students enrolled in the program and 3,031 book loans have been made.

Students earn points for books they have read after passing a computer test about the book. They can purchase items with the points earned or use them to enter a monthly drawing. January winner of the drawing was Justin Rondorf, an eighth grade student, who won a 13-inch color television set donated by KTRF radio. More than 100 names were entered in the drawing.

Paschke explained that students select a book from a list of more than 750 eligible titles. These books are given point values depending on length and difficulty. After a student has read a book, he or she takes a multiple choice test on the computers in the media center Most tests are 10 questions in length; longer and more difficult books have 20 questions.

Students must pass the test in order to earn points for reading the book. They receive partial credit for questions missed and 60 percent or higher is a passing score.

With earned points, students can "purchase" a variety of items. Point totals for the items are as follows:

15 points—Pen/pencil/eraser, 20 points—Lincoln activity pass good for one sporting or musical event; 25 points—One free bowling game or free popcorn at the Galaxy Twin Theater, 30 points—Two free bowling games; 40 points—paperback book; 50 points—Movie pass from the Galaxy Twin Theater or three free bowling games; 75 points—Medium Domino's pizza; and 100 points—Limousine ride (compliments of Royal Limousine) and lunch at McDonald's or Hardee's.

Prizes awarded during the monthly drawings include one of the following: $25 gift certificate from Falls Book Company; $25 gift certificate from J. C. Penney; two $25 gift certificates from Budget Electronics; $50 savings bond from Northern State Bank; $50 savings bond from First National Bank; remote controlled car and microscope from Radio Shack, and 13-inch colored television set from KTRF radio.

Once students earn 100 points, Paschke said, their name will be posted on the wall in the media center and their names will be entered in a drawing to win a Prowler warm-up suit valued at $100. If a student earns 200 points, his or her name will be entered in the drawing twice.

After students have earned 100 points, they will be allowed to read books which are not on the list and write tests for those books

An advantage to students participating in the program is that the Accelerated Reading program computer tests are accepted as a substitute for book reports in Franklin communications classes. Students can work at their own paces and set their own goals. They have all school year to earn points, but points not "spent" by the end of the school year will be lost.

"Studies have shown that as students' reading skills improve, math scores will also rise," Paschke said.

"Thanks go to the Swenson Foundation for purchasing the computers and the software for this program, and to the Education Foundation for continued financial support to purchase test disks and more books."

January winner of the monthly drawing in Franklin middle school's Accelerated Reading Program was eighth grader Justin Rondorf. He is shown with Meri Jo Paschke, media center coordinator at Franklin, and the 13-inch color television set which he won in the drawing among participants in the reading program. This year there are 359 students enrolled in the program and they have checked out 3,031 books to date.

Former resident featured in Minot daily newspaper

Eldo Johnson, a former resident of the Thief River Falls area who still has a number of immediate relatives here, was featured recently in the Minot Daily News as he worked on an oil workover rig crew near Keene, ND.

Johnson moved from Thief River Falls to western North Dakota to work on ranches in 1950, returned to Minnesota to farm, then moved back to North Dakota in 1953 to help build the Tioga Gas Plant. He has worked on workover rigs ever since August of 1954. He and three partners bought the rig he now operates in 1985.

Workover crews are hired to work on existing oil wells, either to keep the production up or increase the production. They pull the tubing out of a well and replace it. Work on a well can last anywhere from a short time to months.

Oil business is said to be increasing in North Dakota in the past couple of years after a lull following the boom of the 1980s. In that boom period Johnson remembers that it wasn't uncommon to work a 24-hour day. One week he recorded 127 hours on the job. (There is a total of 168 hours in a seven-day week.)

At 63 years of age, Johnson is the oldest workover rig operator in western North Dakota. He doesn't plan on retirement for at least another year.

Housing and economic bills introduced

Bills have been introduced in the Minnesota House and Senate addressing Minnesota's severe shortage of housing for low- and middle-income workers and their families. The Greater Minnesota Housing Fund (GMHF) and the Family Housing Fund (FHF) have received enthusiastic support from legislators across the state for this initiative.

This proposal invests $40 million of state money to leverage an additional $200 million in philanthropic and federal funding for housing construction and home-buying assistance. Specific components include: $10 million for Employer Assisted Housing Tax Credit, $15 million for Community Rehabilitation fund (home ownership); $15 million for Affordable Rental Housing Investment Fund (rental housing).

"Many communities are experiencing a severely limited housing stock for incoming workers, which in turn has inhibited economic growth," says Warren Hanson, President of the GMHF.

"The best thing about this proposal is that it's win-win-win: the state reaps a significant return on its upfront investment, employers gain the housing infrastructure they need to move forward on expansion or new business development, and workers see new housing as well as jobs to produce this new housing," says Tom Fulton, president of FHF.

SPEAKING OF...

Sherry LaCoursiere

...Never-Never Land...Me?

I woke this morning fresh from a dream of a kitchen filled with graham crackers - I kept finding them everywhere, in the toaster, in the bread box, all over in the cupboards. Don't ask me why - I hadn't even eaten any graham crackers the day before the dream. But the cracker dream was nothing compared to what I went through after I awoke. I felt as if I were in Never-Never Land, where nothing is the same I felt like Alice who fell down the rabbit hole and everything changed Something was radically wrong.

My radio was playing strange music. I didn't hear my familiar newscasters' voices - those of Joe Blow The News Guy or Big Bob In The Morning. I didn't hear my familiar commercials - for farm fertilizers and local businesses What was wrong?

Was it not Monday, a work day? Had I somehow awakened on the weekend and just imagined it was a week day? I checked the calendar - it was Monday. Had someone changed the channels on my clock radio when I wasn't looking? Checked the radio - right spot on the dial. Was I still asleep and dreaming this strange station? I pinched myself and I was awake. What was wrong?

Before my story gets too far along, let me tell you I have a little problem with my mornings I have gotten on in years and rather set in my ways, and I can't seem to get myself together and going in the morning without a certain radio station. I need the comfort of familiar voices, familiar songs, familiar news, familiar commercials, and especially, familiar weather reports (I am a weather junkie - I don't even know what to put on myself until I hear the weather report).

Sometimes I turn on my radio to get to sleep at night and listen to another talk show or some such station - not my old familiar one. When the radio comes on in the morning to this different station, I can't get going at all. My brain waves seem to be set for one sound in the morning and, if it isn't there, I can't function properly. I immediately switch back to my old station

My children have always made fun of my choice of morning listening - they don't like the music or the constant comment chatter or the local commercials I have always told them that it is the only station I can wake up to and, if it isn't on, I just don't wake up right. They have always listened to their own radios. Sometimes we have had as many as five different radios playing five different stations. Made for interesting mornings, but I didn't care, as long as I could listen to my good old station.

Anyway, my radio was playing something different and I was in Never-Never Land. I took myself downstairs, had my shower and did all of those other necessary things that must be done in the morning, and then went back upstairs, all be it discombobulated and disoriented. My radio was still playing strange music. I turned the television on, just to make absolutely sure that I had the right station on the radio. According to the television set, I did.

When I came back from drying my hair, I heard a familiar voice It was one of the guys from the local station He sounded rushed and breathless and not like himself at all, and I think I figured it out I bet all the station guys overslept at the same time and they had some canned outfit on playing music and giving news It had to be!

But here was one of my regular guys, saying the same old things and playing the same old songs and giving out the same old commercials Oh, heavens! Things were back to normal. I listened to the weather report and farm commercials while curling my hair, and I felt that all was right with the world Never-Never Land was gone It was going to be a good day after all! Now I wonder, did the radio station guys all oversleep at the same time, or was I really in Never-Never Land?

Feel free to email me with comments and ideas.

After the United States, many of our visitors came from Norway, Canada, United Kingdom, Australia, Germany, Sweden, Indonesia, Japan, Finland, France, Czech Republic, Netherlands, Singapore, and Malaysia. By charting activity, we also know that most of the visitors from the United States came from or via Virginia, followed by Minnesota, California, North Dakota, Ohio, New Jersey, Texas, Wisconsin, Pennsylvania, and South Carolina.

Many of our online readers are from outside of the United States. They commonly report that it's nice to read it online rather than wait for mail to deliver the newspaper.

The most active day of the week is Wednesday. The average number of visits on a weekday is 603. The average number of visits on the weekend is 650. The average number of users on the weekend is 67.

Most of our visitors stopped at The Times home page. Once on our Home Page they discovered we offer a lot of information. The number one entry page, other than our home page, was sports, followed by news stories, community focus, recipes, and opinions and editorials. The top sections of the site, however, were news, followed by community news, sports, obituaries, and opinions.

Some of the new things recently added to our online newspaper are bowling results, classified advertisements, and a searchable archive of obituaries recorded since last February. Eventually, The Times and Northern Watch hope to expand their searchable archives to include newspaper stories, and a searchable site. We are also looking at how to put more classified advertisements online and subscriptions.

Minnesota State Patrol responded to a number of accidents near Thief River Falls Friday evening.

At 11:30 p.m. on January 30 the state patrol received a report of an accident one mile north of Thief River Falls on Highway 32. Corey Peterson, Thief River Falls, was driving a pickup south on Highway 32 when the pickup hit a patch of ice. Peterson lost control of the vehicle and it rolled onto its top. Peterson had minor injuries. Chad Olson, 17, Thief River Falls, was taken to Altru hospital with injuries. Two other passengers had minor cuts and were checked at Northwest Medical Center. The pickup was considered a total loss.

Local and regional competition is conducted in January and February, leading up to the state tournament during March, in the Twin Cities. Final trial will be at the State Supreme Court chambers in St. Paul. The state winner will represent Minnesota in the national mock trial championship in Albuquerque, NM in May.

"I predict the participants will come out of the competition with a whole new understanding of 'innocent until proven guilty' and will have an appreciation of how important that basic American principle is," states MSBA president Sheryl Ramstad Hvass.

"Mock trial is the kind of activity I would have relished in high school. Back then, watching 'Perry Mason' was the closest I got to a courtroom. It took years for me to understand how courts work in the real world, and that's something mock trial participants will know when they leave high school. This experience will be beneficial wherever their careers take them."

Attorney Sara Rasmussen listens to the testimony of witness Rachel Grealis during a practice trial Thursday for the Lincoln high school mock trial team. The trial was held in the courtroom at the Pennington county courthouse with attorney Kurt Marben presiding. The Lincoln team participates in its first trial today (Wednesday) at Mahnomen with Detroit Lakes as the competition. Next trial will be February 12 at Ada.

Lesley Ihle presents the closing argument for the defense at the Lincoln high school mock trial team practice trial Thursday in the Pennington county courthouse.

Copies of "Cultural and Chemical Weed Control in Field Crops" are available from the U. of M Extension Distribution Center at (800) 876-8636 or (612) 624-4900. "Robin Hood" is the term applied by archers to the exact centering of one arrow with another. Brendon Narlock, 12, recorded the archer's equivalent of a bowler's 300 or golfer's hole-in-one during warm-up for league shooting Sunday, January 25, at the archery range in the Old Arena in Thief River Falls. He was shooting at 20 yards, using 23-inch arrows and a 40-pound pull compound bow with a mechanical release. He carries a 236 average (out of a possible 300) in the Cub Division and on Sunday was shooting on the Olin Law Office team with his father, Dale, Alan Rogalla and Dave Halvorson. Since the feat ruined two arrows, and Brendon had brought only one spare, it left him one short of the five arrows he needed for each league round. Brendon can't claim all archery bragging rights in the Narlock family, however. Three years ago Dale Narlock centered three arrows in similar fashion.

Knights knock off Prowlers by 46-38

Two teams with a single win between them met Friday when Thief River Falls and Fisher/Climax were matched up in boys high school basketball. Now they both have a victory to their credit, with the previously winless Knights beating the now 1-14 Prowlers 46-38.

Thief River Falls opened the game with a 12-7 first quarter lead and had an 18-14 edge at halftime before mistakes caught up to the Prowlers, who trailed 28-26 through three quarters.

The game's only double figure scorer was Geralyn Moen of Fisher/Climax, who netted 21 points.

Both side had chances to add points with free throws, but the Prowlers were just 7-for-17 at the line and the Knights only 18-for-32.

The Prowlers, who have lost nine straight, have challenging road games ahead of them Friday at East Grand Forks and Tuesday vs. Tri-County at Karlstad.

Lake of the Woods picked up its second six-goal win of the 1997-98 high school hockey season over Thief River Falls Friday at the Huck Olson Memorial Civic Center when the Bears handed the Prowlers their fourth shutout loss of the year, 6-0.

Jon Waibel collected a hat trick for the winners, who won the earlier match-up between the two teams by an 8-2 score Dec. 16 at Baudette.

Blaine Thomas, Keith Ballard and Shane Aikenhead added single goals to the Lake of the Woods offense as the Bears out-shot the Prowlers 37-13.

Gators lose to Rams

Roseau started the game with an offensive show, then shut down Badger/Greenbush-Middle River with a strong defense Thursday as the Rams beat the visiting Gators 48-34 in girls high school basketball.

"They have so much talent," pointed out Badger/Greenbush-Middle River. "They were bigger and faster than us in four of the five positions."

The Rams hit eight of their first nine shots en route to an 18-12 first quarter lead. They were up 28-19 at halftime and maintained a 41-31 third quarter spread.

Kristi Glassmann of Roseau led all scorers with 21 points. Tiffany Hagen scored 11 points and Missy Smith had 10 for the Gators.

Badger/Greenbush-Middle River was 16-for-43 from the field (37 percent) and 2-for-7 at the free throw line. Roseau made 5 of 7 free throw attempts.

High school wrestling...

Prowlers will finish regular season with Green Wave, Spuds

Thief River Falls will close out its 1997-98 home high school wrestling schedule Thursday when the Prowlers host East Grand Forks. Junior varsity action begins at 6:30 p.m., followed by the varsity matches.

The Prowlers finish the regular season schedule with a Saturday night dual at Moorhead. Section 8AA team tournament will be hosted by Cass Lake-Bena Feb. 14. Individual portion of the Section 8AA meet will be hosted by Fosston/Bagley Feb. 20-21.

Detroit Lakes and Fosston/Bagley handed Thief River Falls a pair of losses Thursday in a double-dual meet hosted by the Prowlers.

Thief River Falls was shut out by Detroit Lakes 70-0 and fell to Fosston/Bagley 52-21.

Detroit Lakes won the third part of the meet by a 51-16 decision over Fosston/Bagley.

The two losses dropped the Prowlers' dual meet record to 0-15.

Nordics edge Eagles 56-55

Marshall County Central wiped out an early-game deficit, then held on for a 56-55 boys high school basketball win over Grygla-Gatzke Friday.

It was a match-up of two struggling programs. The Nordics had lost five in a row; the Eagles have dropped 12 of their last 13 starts, with six of them by a margin of four points or less, and three of them by a single point.

"It's like a bad movie that keeps replaying itself every so often," offered Grygla-Gatzke coach Vern Johnson. "We played a pretty good ball game at times, but we had way too many un-forced errors. We threw the ball away and we didn't execute our offense. We're making December mistakes in late January."

The Eagles doubled the visiting Nordics 16-8 in the first quarter, but led only 29-27 at halftime. They maintained a 45-41 edge through three quarters.

Marshall County Central took the lead near the game's end, and iced it by hitting four straight free throws as the clock was winding down.

"We played very well," said Marshall County Central coach Ron Ueland. "We shot the ball poorly in the first quarter (3-for-17), but we whittled away at the lead. We made some big plays down the stretch, and we made our free throws."

The Nordics made 11 of 16 free throw attempts for the game, including an 8-for-9 fourth quarter. Garrett Magner and Greg Wawrzyniak were both 3-for-3 at the line in the final period.

Still, Marshall County Central had to sweat out a Grygla-Gatzke opportunity at the end when Jeddah Holte drew a foul while putting up a 3-point attempt with 1.8 seconds on the clock. He made the first two free throws, but missed the third try.

Jon Donarski scored 18 points to lead a Marshall County Central offense that missed David Wilcox, one of the team's scoring leaders who suffered an ankle injury five minutes into the contest.

Philip Brateng scored a game-high 23 points for the Eagles, while Alex Anderson netted 11.

Marshall County Central was 21-for-48 from the field (44 percent). Grygla-Gatzke went 18-for-48 from the floor (38 percent), had a 33-24 rebound edge and wound up with more turnovers, 15-11.

The Nordics are 9-8; the Eagles are 3-12.

Gators' strong play nets win

Badger/Greenbush-Middle River put together a pretty good product Saturday and came up with a 68-42 boys high school basketball win over Lake of the Woods.

"We played good, solid defense, and we moved the ball better on offense than we have for a while," reported coach Eldon Sparby after watching his Gators win for the seventh straight time and improve their record to 12-3.

A balanced Badger/Greenbush-Middle River offense included Bret Bentow with 12 points, Shane Nelson and Daryl Wockenfuss 11 each, with Jeremy Vacura and Richard Wockenfuss both picking up 10.

Nelson complemented his double figure scoring with 13 rebounds, four steals and five assists. "Shane had a real sharp game," pointed out Sparby.

Marty Humeniuk led Lake of the Woods with 13 points.

The Gators were 25-for-55 from the field (45 percent) and 14-for-22 at the free throw line. The Bears struggled through 14-for-53 shooting from the floor (26 percent) and a 9-for-18 free throw game.

Badger/Greenbush-Middle River finished with a 46-37 rebound advantage and Lake of the Woods topped the turnover charts 20-8.

Detroit Lakes 4-3 winner over TRF

A huge Thief River Falls advantage in the shot count did not convert into a win on the scoreboard Saturday as the Prowlers lost to Detroit Lakes 4-3 in high school hockey at the Huck Olson Memorial Civic Center.

The Lakers were out-shot 45-18, but still handed the Prowlers their 16th loss in 19 starts this winter.

"When you out-shoot someone 45-18 you should win," said Thief River Falls coach Scott Bergland.

The teams were deadlocked at 2-2 and 3-3 at the two period breaks.

There were just 13 seconds left when the Lakers' Mike Spenningsby broke the tie with the game-winning goal.

Brett Johnson, Tony Fletcher and Kyle Anderson scored the Thief River Falls goals. Luke Weekly scored twice for the Lakers, with Nick Ellertson joining Spenningsby in the single-goal column.

It was the final segment of a four-game homestand for the Prowlers, who headed to Bemidji for a Tuesday game. They finish the regular season with games Feb 10 at home against East Grand Forks and Feb 13 at Fergus Falls.

RLCC boys end losing streak

Red Lake County Central boys snapped a seven-game losing streak Saturday with a 42-38 high school basketball win over Fisher/Climax.

The Mustangs, who shot poorly as the losses mounted, had another tough time knocking down shots against the Knights with a 30 percent 16-for-54 showing. But some solid defense and key free throws produced the win.

Red Lake County Central led 8-6 at the end of the first quarter and had a 17-14 edge at halftime before falling behind 30-29 at the close of the third quarter. It remained close, but late in the game three straight Fisher/Climax turnovers were converted into three Red Lake County Central lay-ups. An 8-for-11 showing at the line then sealed it.

"We went to a trapping defense, and it worked," noted Red Lake County Central coach Chris McLean. "I wish I could take credit for coming up with a great coaching move, but one of the players actually suggested it."

Special defensive attention kept Red Lake County Central scoring leader Mark Lorenson in check, but Nick Waldal came up with a 16-point game for the winners. The Knights had only three players in the scoring column, led by Josh Korynta with 18 points. Geralyn Moen added 13 points to the Fisher/Climax offense, but he ran into early foul trouble and sat most of the second quarter.

The Knights were 18-for-44 from

Chervestad sparks rally for RLCC girls

Red Lake County Central got by without Angie Chervestad for two games, but Monday the Mustangs had to call on their standout center to pull out a 64-51 girls high school basketball win over Fisher/Climax.

Chervestad, a 6-0 senior who missed two games with a back problem, was dressed, but on the bench as the Mustangs took on the Knights. They were up 11-10 at the end of the first quarter and it was a 26-26 draw at halftime before they fell behind 38-32 with three minutes to play in the third quarter.

That's when Red Lake County Central coach Rick Koivisto called on Chervestad. She played only nine minutes, but during that stretch she scored 14 points and grabbed 9 rebounds while the Mustangs outscored the host Knights 30-8.

"She kind of makes a difference," smiled Koivisto, whose team improved to 11-5.

Chervestad was the Mustangs' only double figure scorer. Three Knights hit double digits, led by Mandy Dick with 15 points.

Red Lake County Central was 21-for-51 from the field (41 percent) and 19-for-31 at the free throw line. Fisher/Climax went 19-for-60 from the floor (32 percent) and 9-for-11 at the line. The Mustangs finished with a sizeable 31-19 rebound advantage.

The rebounds were a major factor, too, in a 50-41 Thursday victory over Warren-Alvarado-Oslo at Plummer, where the Mustangs doubled the Ponies on the boards 34-17. Katie O'Neill scored 16 points and Jenni Morinville had 14 that night as the winners built a 24-17 halftime lead.

Lake of the Woods race won by Wolfe

Todd Wolfe of Anaandale was declared the winner of the Liquid 440 division at Lake of the Woods after three days of racing. The final results of the Ultimate 500 cross-country snowmobile race, which was held on Lake of the Woods this year, has been released by ISOC.

Apparently, the event was not without its controversy. On the first day, 25 racers ran out of gas. Some of those who ran out of gas did make into the finish after obtaining gas. Some of the notable racers who ran out of gas included: Brad Pake, Kirk Hibbert, David Stenlund, Jesse Strege, Corey Davidson, Shannon Gust, Jim Beck Jr., and Jim Theriault.

On the final day, Trevor John, 17, Cross Lake, was directed down the trail at a section where the previous day's route had went. He missed the new route, losing five miutes and falling to second place before getting back on the correct route. He then battled back to within 10 seconds of the winner, Todd Wolff.

Bryan Dyrdahl, Bagley, had the best combined time from the Ultimate 500 and Ironman 250, winning a one-year lease of a Chevy S10 Blazer.

B/G-MR girls defeat Nordics

Tiffany Hagen and Stefanie Sparby sparked a game-turning third quarter Badger/Greenbush-Middle River run Monday, leading the Gators to a 67-45 girls high school basketball win over Marshall County Central at Newfolden.

The underdog Nordics trailed only 12-10 at the end of the first quarter and were within 25-21 at halftime. But with Hagen scoring 10 points and Sparby picking up 8, the Gators' 27-15 third quarter scoring advantage opened up a 42-30 gap.

"Tiffany took over the game in the third quarter," pointed out Gators coach Tom Neibauer. "She scored 10 points and had a ton of steals."

Halftime adjustments in the Badger/Greenbush-Middle River press made a major difference in the second half, noted Neibuuer, and Marshall County Central coach Alice Dahl concurred. "They blew us out in the third quarter," she said. "We played pretty well the first two quarters and the last quarter, but we got lazy on the press in the third quarter, and they took advantage of it."

Hagen and Sparby both finished with 18 points. Kristi Kilen scored 15 points and Miki Waterworth had 10.

The Gators shot 53 percent from the field (29/55) and were 9-for-17 at the free throw line. The Nordics shot 33 percent from the floor (14/42) and went 17-for-26 at the line. Badger/Greenbush-Middle River finished with a 30-23 rebound edge, although Neibauer said he was impressed with the board work of Kilen, a sophomore, who pulled down seven rebounds. The Nordics topped the turnover charts 25-14.

The win improved the Gators' record to 13-4. The Nordics fell to 1-16 with the loss that was similar to a 63-43 Thursday night setback against Warroad – a game in which Marshall County Central trailed only 26-20 at halftime. Waterworth led the Nordics with 16 points that night, while Heather Evans had 28 and Lisa Fry netted 17 for the winners.

■ TRF girls defeat East Grand Forks 68-54

Success at the free throw line highlighted a 30-point Thief River Falls fourth quarter Thursday as the Prowlers posted a come-from-behind 68-54 girls high school basketball win over host East Grand Forks.

The Green Wave, behind 15-14 at the end of the first quarter, went ahead 28-25 at halftime and had a 41-38 lead at the start of the fourth quarter.

But Thief River Falls dominated the final eight minutes, thanks to 13-for-17 free throw shooting.

"About the middle of the third quarter, we started to pick it up a notch," reported Thief River Falls coach Jeff Loe. "We were struggling offensively the first 2 1/2 quarters. In the fourth quarter, we picked it up on both ends. The kids worked hard."

Nicole Kopari scored 25 points to lead the Prowlers, getting 14 of those points in the fourth quarter thanks to 7-for-7 free throw shooting. She was joined in double figures by Laura Follett and Amber Klinker with 14 points each. Follett was part of the final quarter free throw parade by making 5 of 7 gift tosses down the stretch.

Key contribution also came from Beth Olson, who came off the bench to score eight points.

Thief River Falls was 24-for-53 from the field (45 percent) to go along with an 18-for-30 free throw game. East Grand Forks went 21-for-45 from the floor (47 percent) and 11-for-16 at the line. The Green Wave out-rebounded the Prowlers 24-22, but also had more turnovers, 17-12.

"I thought our defense did a good job," noted McLean. "We didn't allow a lot of second shots. Offensively we tried to be real patient with the ball and get good shots."

Rams edge Wolverines 40-38

Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke overcame a 15-point first half deficit to challenge - once-beaten Roseau before surrendering a final-minute 40-38 girls high school basketball decision to the host Rams Monday.

It was the second time the 10-7 Wolverines have lost a close decision to Roseau this winter, with the Rams winning 57-54 at Goodridge a month ago.

A hot hand from the outside staked Roseau to an 18-5 first quarter lead. The Rams had a 30-21 halftime edge, but the Wolverines chopped the difference to just 34-33 by the end of the third quarter, and went ahead briefly midway through the final quarter.

After falling behind 40-38, the Wolverines ran into trouble in the final minute. With 30 seconds to play, a tie-up wound up as a Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke turnover even though the Wolverines argued that the possession arrow was incorrect.

They got the ball back moments later and called a 20-second timeout. But the officials, ruling they were late coming out of the huddle, placed the ball on the floor and began an in-bounds count. That forced the Wolverines to sprint across the court and abandon their pre-set play just to get the ball in play with a hurried pass.

In the hectic final seconds, the Wolverines tried to push the ball inside, only to have it knocked away and picked up by the Rams.

"We dug ourselves a hole," noted Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke coach Mike Gast. "We played a good, strong second half defensively, but our offense has to get better."

Jenny Nelson scored 14 points and Angie Gast had 12 for the Wolverines. Kristi Glassmann and Tanya Ulvin netted 11 points each and Cathy Gotziaman added 10 for the Rams.

Goodridge/Grygla-Gatzke was 15-for-50 from the field (30 percent) and 8-for-14 at the free throw line. Roseau went 19-for-55 from the floor (35 percent) and had a quiet 1-for-1 free throw game. The Wolverines out-boarded the Rams 35-30.

"It was a very physical game," reported Gast, who was happy with his team's second half comeback. "I think we tired them out. I felt we should have won."

Ontario imposes new fish regulations

Minnesota Department of Natural Resources officials have received notification from the Ontario Ministry of Natural Resources that in 1998, American anglers staying in Minnesota facilities will be limited to catch and release fishing for walleye and sauger in Canadian waters of Lake of the Woods.

The announcement came as a surprise to Minnesota officials. In past years, the two agencies have worked cooperatively to establish limits that protect the fish populations in Lake of the Woods while still meeting the needs of the local tourism economy.

"I have to admit, I was shocked and extremely disappointed when I was informed of this decision," said DNR Commissioner Rod Sando. "We have invested a great deal of time in developing an open process that keeps the public informed and involved in the decision-making process for Lake of the Woods. This new regulation is being implemented without any public involvement, scientific explanation, or coordination on our side of the border. The regulation could impose a great hardship on the Minnesota resorts in the Northwest Angle. Unfortunately, it appears that there is little that Minnesota or the United States can do this year to change it. I am pursuing all avenues to try and get this changed. Specifically, I am trying to meet with Canadian Consul General and we will proceed with the appropriate diplomatic efforts if necessary."

Hunting regulations will be topic of TRF meeting

Thief River Falls will play host to the first of several statewide Minnesota Department of Natural Resources public input meetings this month.

A proposal to regulate shooting near motor vehicles for grouse hunting and several other issues related to hunting and trapping seasons are on the agendas for the meetings, including a Tuesday, Feb. 10, gathering at the Northland Community and Technical College auditorium.

Traditional question-and-answer format will be used during the series of meetings that are designed to take comments and recommendations about hunting and trapping regulations. The meetings will run from 7 to 9 p.m.

To help address issues of "fair chase" related to the use of off-highway vehicles and other motor vehicles for taking grouse, the DNR is proposing to restrict hunters from shooting a firearm at a grouse unless the hunters are at least 20 yards from the motor vehicle and the engine is shut off. Exceptions would be made for hunters with disabilities who are in possession of a valid permit.

Also to be discussed will be the reductions in the woodcock seasons made at the federal level last year that are expected to be continued. These reductions include reducing season length from 65 to 45 days; delaying the opener from Sept. 1 to the Saturday nearest Sept. 22; and reducing the daily bag limit from five to three. These restrictions are in response to an observed long-term decline in woodcock populations.

Youth antlerless deer hunting in bucks-only zones will also be covered at the meetings. Under authority provided by the Legislature in 1997, the DNR may offer some limited youth either-sex deer hunting by drawing in otherwise bucks-only permit areas this fall. Under this authority, the DNR can phase in some antlerless deer hunting by youth under the age of 16 in permit areas where deer populations have not yet recovered to the point that they can be generally opened for antlerless deer taking by all youth, people with disabilities, military personnel, and archery and muzzle-loader hunters.

Use of electronic listening devices and an extended season for wild turkey hunting, along with a proposal to establish a uniform zone boundary for fisher, pine marten, bobcat and otter will also be on the DNR discussion list at the meetings.

Persons unable to attend any of the meetings can address written comments to: Season Comments, DNR Section of Wildlife, Box 7, 500 Lafayette Road, St. Paul, MN 55155.

The eighth graders beat Crookston 40-28 in the A game and won the B game 41-27. Chelsea Haviland and Megan Nelson scored 9 points each in the A game. Jenny Novak had a 14 point effort in the B game.

Wally Sperby, Mark Kozak, Ninth District Judge Larry Jorgenson, and Barb Fladeland observe television screens during the ribbon cutting ceremony for the interactive television system installed in courtrooms in the Ninth District court. The ceremony was held Friday. Participants in the ceremony included Minnesota Supreme Court Chief Justice Alexander Keith, judges, attorneys, legislators, and assistants in St. Paul, and Aitkin, Beltrami, Lake of the Woods and Pennington counties.

Information age makes an appearance in court

by David Hill
Associate Editor

Recently, Minnesota Chief Justice Alexander Keith joined justices of the Ninth District and state legislators in cutting the ribbon on a project that brings interactive television to the court system in the Ninth District Court. Although the ribbon was cut in St. Paul, viewers in Thief River Falls, Bemidji, Baudette, and Aitkin were able to see it happen and discuss it's potential with those doing the ribbon-cutting.

Pennington County Court System went on the air with its "Video Hearing Pilot Project" about two weeks ago. The event was remarkable in that the presentation of limited civil court proceedings on interactive television (ITV) is not only unique in Minnesota but the country. Many court systems make limited use of interactive television in criminal cases, but none have made use of the system for civil court proceedings — until now.

Comments of those who supported the project and will use it in the future made it clear that its impact in northwestern Minnesota will be significant.

In explaining its potential Ninth District Judge Dennis Murphy, who along with Judge Larry Jorgenson spearheaded the pilot project, explained that the first full use of interactive television took place about a week before the ribbon-cutting ceremony. The case involved a commitment hearing. Typically, Murphy would have had to travel to Crookston to use their interactive television system while the patient, physicians and other representatives appeared on television from Fergus Falls. In this instance, it saved the judge two hours of travel or "windshield" time because all he had to do was go to a room in the Pennington County courthouse where the ITV system is located. It took a few minutes of his time and he could quickly return to his office in the same building.

Murphy said the pilot project approved by the Minnesota Supreme Court allows the system to be used for: subsequent commitment hearings, Jarvis Hearings (hearings requesting the use of mood altering drugs on committed patients), probate hearings, conciliation, family court (post-decree, motions and legal arguments), domestic abuse hearings, expert testimony, hearings on implied consent (necessary if an individual objects), administrative meetings, and mandatory parent education meetings.

Murphy said those activities account for about one-fourth of all of the activities taking place in courts in northwestern Minnesota.

But Murphy said he is more impressed with the access it affords to other government agencies and information. The ITV system is somewhat secondary in value.

The system is on a dedicated T1 line, which affords a great deal of activity to take place on one line. ITV activity requires a great deal of space, but it is only about one-fourth of the availability on the line.

In setting up the system collaboration agreements were established with eight various government agencies. All of these agencies are connected to the system, which is managed by InterTechnologies Group, a sub-division of the department of Administration. They are also connected to MNet, which provides the typical server access that allows e-mail and internet access. This allows the court system to be connected to other courts in the district, other state and county offices in the same building, and other offices in state government in St. Paul and Minneapolis.

The 1997 Legislature funded the project in the Ninth Judicial District. In the first year the district received $741,000 to set up the system, and $30,000 during 1998 for maintenance. It costs $3,000 per month to operate the system in each county, $300 of that is picked up by the participating county and the rest by the eight participating state agencies. (Pennington County was paying $240 per month for the Extension Service to be connected to Internet. Now all of the county offices in the courthouse will be connected to Internet, but for $300 per month.)

Currently, there are four county courthouses in the Ninth District connected by this system — Aitkin in Aitkin county, Thief River Falls in Pennington county, Baudette in Lake of the Woods county, and Bemidji in Beltrami county. The next site added to the system will be in Warren in Marshall County.

Ninth District Judge Larry Jorgenson said he expects 12 of the remaining districts to be online by May 1 and conduct a statewide test of the system. Eventually, all 17 counties in the Ninth district will be connected to this system.

Murphy said they had proposed funding for the project in 1995 but it was rejected. He said they proposed funding for the project to the Legislature in 1997 but after working on it for six years, he was prepared to give up on the project. He said without Judge Jorgenson's persistence he might not have continued. With efforts finally coming to fruition, Murphy is enthusiastic about its future applications.

Judge Jorgenson said it's a reality because of the hard work and effort of many people. Friday he named several and thanked them individually.

The Video Hearing Pilot Project is a pilot project. Mark Kozak, law clerk for the Ninth District in Pennington County explained that they are building ways into the project to generate data on savings, use, how well it is used, and who wants to use it but cannot because it's unavailable. Kozak said they also are developing policies on use and availability. Eventually the project will be re-evaluated.

The system is already generating a great deal of interest. The equipment vendor, Acoustic Communication Systems in Plymouth, told local officials there's a great deal of interest about using the systems in courts, especially from South Dakota, and North Dakota.

Sen. Roger Moe, who played a key role in obtaining the financing for the project, acknowledged the vision and courage of those in the Ninth District who stepped out in the front of this important issue.

Chief Justice Keith called it a historic occasion that will hopefully lead to the modernization of the entire judicial system in the state.

Controls for the new interactive television system installed in a courtroom for the Ninth Judicial District in Pennington county operate remotely. The system is part of a unique pilot project approved by Minnesota courts and funded by the Legislature.

Salvation Army collects over $5,500 from kettles

Pennington County Salvation Army Service United reported Tuesday that they had raised over $5,500 during the annual Holiday Kettle Campaign.

Shannon Olson, chairman of the kettle campaign this year, reported that donations were just over $1,000 more than what was raised last year.

Olson and members of the all-volunteer service unit were very pleased with the success of this year's campaign. Olson credited the success to the 75 individuals who took time out of their busy holiday schedules to ring bells at the kettle at Kmart, and citizens of the community who put their spare change in the kettles scattered around town.

Olson said letters thanking those who wrote checks, and to organizations that committed members to ring for the kettle campaign, have been sent. Those organizations participating in the kettle campaign included: Boy Scout Troop 199, Noon Lions, Morning Kiwanis, Golden K. Key Club, City of Thief River Falls, Goodridge Lions, the Ministerial Association, and St. John Lutheran Church. She would like to thank everyone but knows it's impossible because so many contributed to the campaign. Olson said she was very pleased with the city council. One of the more successful days occurred when members of the Thief River Falls City Council rang the Salvation Army bells.

The purpose of the Salvation Army Service unit is to provide immediate emergency assistance. It is not the purpose of the unit to duplicate the work of other agencies, but fill needs not being met elsewhere. The aid is intended to be temporary. Families or individuals needing long-term assistance are referred to governmental social service departments.

The kettle campaign is the only locally organized fund-raising campaign conducted by the local unit.

Most common form of aid from the Salvation Army comes in the form of vouchers for groceries, meals and lodging, utility payments, fuel, emergency rentals, and clothing. Working alongside the Salvation Army in Thief River Falls is Adventist Community Services.

Last year, Community Services gave away nearly 26,000 items of clothing, 122 pieces of bedding, 407 for the Coats for Kids program, 152 items to the hospital, and assisted over 3,500 people. These figures do not include assistance provided to flood evacuees. In addition, they also shipped out 26.6 tons of clothing to areas in need of clothing. In all 22 volunteers provided 6,780 hours of services.

Beaver damage control grants now available

Grants are now available from the Minnesota Department of Agriculture for control of beaver activities causing damage to public waters, roads and ditches and adjacent private property, according to Becky Balk, agricultural land use planner for the department.

The state legislature will allocate $50,000 to MDA each year of the biennium to be used by communities across the state suffering from damage caused by beavers. Applicants for the grants must be joint powers organizations as specified by state law, and are required to match the grant.

Applications are now being accepted for the state fiscal year 1999, which runs from July 1, 1998 to June 30, 1999. The grants may be made only to a joint powers board established under Minnesota Statutes Section 471.59 by two or more governmental units, which may include Indian tribal governments. Counties are advised to consider consulting with townships and Indian tribal governments.

Application forms are available by contacting Balk by phone at 612-215-0369 or by e-mail. Deadline for application is May 18. E-mail address is Becky.Balk@state.mn.us.

Stay with car if stranded in winter storm

Leaving a vehicle stuck in a winter storm is not only dangerous but foolhardy. The vehicle is the best available shelter. Outside a person can become disoriented and/or exhausted, out of reach of rescuers.

While in the vehicle, conserve body energy and heat. Most of the time attempts to push or shovel the vehicle are futile and can lead to injury or exhaustion which will compound the problem.

Keep the exhaust pipe free of snow and run the engine for only short periods of time while keeping to let fresh air in.

To keep blood circulating freely, loosen tight clothing and change positions frequently. Move arms and legs, massage fingers and toes, tuck your hands between your thighs or under your arms. Elevate feet to improve circulation. Huddle together to share heat.

If you have a phone, dial 911. Describe your location, the condition of those in the car and what happened. Stay on the line until you know who you have spoken with and what will happen next.

Snowmobile clubs work to help Governor's Ride

"It would not be possible to host an event such as the Governor's Snowmobile Ride and Minnesota United Snowmobile Association (MnUSA) Winter Rendezvous without the help of the local clubs in northwest Minnesota," states Julie Olson of the Thief River Falls Convention and Visitors Bureau.

The Governor's Ride will take place Friday, February 13, at Thief River Falls and the MnUSA convention is scheduled for Saturday and Sunday, also in Thief River Falls.

Area snowmobile clubs cooperating to put in hundreds of volunteer hours grooming trails include the Warren Sno-Cat Riders, Marshall County Drift Skippers, Fourtown-Grygla Sportsmen Club, Goodridge Trailblazers, Plummer Snowmobile Club, Crookston Drift Busters, Red Lake Falls Pathfinders, Oklee Moonlighters, Fertile-Beltrami Sandhill Snow Cruisers, Roseau County Trailblazers and the Thief River Falls Sno Drifters.

"In preparation for the Governor's Snowmobile Ride and MnUSA Winter Rendezvous, clubs have been getting ready to roll out the red carpet," Olson said. "Trails are being groomed to perfection and we truly appreciate all their efforts."

Registration for the Governor's Ride February 13 is $15 for adults and $10 for children 14 and under. Pre-registration is encouraged by contacting the Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce. Individuals may also register at 6 a.m. on February 13 at the Best Western Inn. Registration includes an invitation to the Governor's Reception on Thursday, February 12 at 7 p.m., breakfast at 7 a.m. on the day of the ride, two coffee stops and lunch on the trail.

The ride will end back at the Best Western Inn around 4:30 p.m. Since school is not in session for School District 564 on February 13, families are encouraged to "ride the ride."

The Winter Rendezvous of MnUSA will take place Saturday and Sunday and in prior years has attracted over 400 snowmobilers from throughout Minnesota to the host community. Olson said this has had an economic impact of over $100,000 to the host area.

Registration forms for MnUSA are also available at the Chamber of Commerce office. Registration is $27 for adults and $10 for children 14 and under. Individuals who plan to attend the annual meeting are encouraged to become members of the organization. Annual membership is $15 per family.

The Rendezvous begins Friday evening with a reception at 7 p.m. at the Best Western Inn. Saturday's events include a day of riding and a reception and banquet at 6 p.m., followed by numerous door prizes and a dance. Sunday events include the MnUSA board meeting and a Casino Brunch Ride to River Road Casino.

Major sponsors for the three-day event include River Road Casino, Pepsi Cola, Cellular 2000, Thief River Falls Convention & Visitors Bureau, Thief River Falls Chamber of Commerce, Arctic Cat, Inc., Polaris Industries, Ski-Doo, Yamaha, City of Thief River Falls, Thief River Falls Times, Pennington County, Cell Glove, Minnesota Corn Growers Association, Hartz Foods Inc., Cenex of Grygla, Minnesota Office of Tourism and the Minnesota United Snowmobilers Association.

Special support for the 1998 Governor's Ride is also being provided by Northern Pride, Home Lumber Company, Evergreen Implement/John Deere, EMS of Thief River Falls, Northwest Civil Air Patrol, Knights of Columbus, Northern Motors, Grygla Hartz and Grygla First Responders. Several local businesses have also donated door prizes.

In conjunction with the Governor's Ride, a Kitty Cat parade has been scheduled for Thursday, February 12, at Floyd B. Olson Park in downtown Thief River Falls. Staging will take place at 4:30 p.m. with the parade at 5 p.m. Call KTRF radio station at 681-1230 to register children for the parade. Prizes will be awarded to all. Parade theme is "U.S.A." and sponsors are KTRF radio, Arctic Cat Snowmobiles and McDonald's of Thief River Falls.

About 300 at 41st Annual Fishing Derby

The 41st Annual Knights of Columbus Fishing Derby took place near the Eighth Street bridge in Thief River Falls Sunday, February 1. About 280 people participated in the event.

Weather was overcast with a slight breeze, temperatures around 25 degrees and a light freezing drizzle helped bring out a large crowd. Approximately $1,000 in prizes were donated by local merchants and given away throughout the two-hour fishing derby.

The first, and largest fish caught was a one pound, 18 and one-half inch northern pike caught by Neil Carlson of Warren. Neil was awarded a $100 savings bond. Only one other fish was a caught — a 15 and one-half inch northern pike caught by Jeff Matson of Thief River Falls. Gary Heden of Thief River Falls was the grand prize winner of $500. One hundred dollar cash drawings were won by Mike Jensen, Missy Fox, Jerry Altendorf and Vern Schommer all of Thief River Falls. Also, DeElda May of St. Hilaire won $100.

Periodic, remote broadcasting by Bill Meyer of KTRF provided the listening public with updates. The participants were provided with a food stand, bonfire, drilled holes and free bait.

Proceeds from the fishing derby are used to provide local scholarships and youth activities, such as the Knights of Columbus Basketball Free Throw Contest. The Knights of Columbus Fishing Derby is an annual event traditionally held the Sunday after the Super Bowl.

Arctic declares dividend, and reports third quarter results

Arctic Cat has reported results for the third quarter and nine months ended December 31 and its board of directors declared a regular quarterly cash dividend of $0.06 per share, payable on March 3, 1998 to shareholders of record as of February 17, 1998.

Net sales increased four percent to $139,808,000 for the third quarter ended December 31, 1997, from $133,877,000 for the same period last year. Net earnings increased three percent to $6,193,000 or $0.21 per share on a diluted basis, from $6,020,000, or $0.20 per diluted share, earned in the third quarter of fiscal 1997.

For the nine-month period ended December 31, 1997, net sales increased five percent to $422,121,000, from $400,9287,000 for the same period last year. Net earnings were up five percent to $26,969,000, or $0.92 per share on a diluted basis, for the first nine months of fiscal 1998, compared to $25,609,000, or $0.87 per diluted share, earned during the first nine months of fiscal 1997.

Christopher A. Twomey, president and chief executive officer said, "We are pleased with Arctic Cat's third quarter results, which are in line with expectations. Based on reports from our dealers, we believe that Arctic Cat is well on its way to its 15th consecutive year of increased retail sales of snowmobiles giving the company optimism for the upcoming '99 model year."

, Twomey added, "We are proud to announced that Snowgoer magazine has selected the Arctic Cat '98 ZR600 EFI as Snowmobile of the Year." Snowgoer praised the ZR 500 EFI and Arctic Cat for technological innovations such as the batteryless EFI system and Arctic Cat's AWS V front suspension as, "The best handling front suspension ever developed."

Dealer and consumer reception of the Arctic Cat all-terrain vehicle continues to be encouraging. This quarter the company announced the introduction of a new 500cc 4x4 model which features a durable, liquid-cooled, four stroke, four valve overhead cam engine as well as Arctic Cat's best in class suspension system. This model joins the 300 and 400 model series. Arctic Cat's 1998 models cover every major segment of the ATV market.

Unemployment rate in Minnesota hits all time low in November

Minnesota's seasonally adjusted unemployment rate was 2.8 percent in November, down from 2.9 percent in October and down one full percentage point from last year.

The state's unadjusted unemployment rate was 2.5 percent, down from last month's rate of 3.2 percent and down from last year's rate of 4.0 percent.

Not only are these rates new monthly lows for November, they are the lowest rates on record. In addition, on a seasonally adjusted basis, the number of employed persons in Minnesota is at an all-time monthly high and the number of unemployed is at an all-time monthly low.

Several factors have contributed to these record-breaking numbers, including:

- Weeks of reemployment insurance claimed are down across the board: a 16 percent decline from the reference week last year. They are particularly low in construction, which is down 24 percent from the reference week last year. The low construction claims are attributed to El Nino and the warmer-than-usual winter.
- The combination of a strong economy and workforce growth that cannot keep up with job demand is putting a squeeze on the labor market.

"These low unemployment rates and pinched labor market provide a unique opportunity for Minnesotans," said Governor Arne Carlson. "We need to direct our workforce resources toward high productivity, high value-added jobs, which will help assure a strong economic future."

In Pennington county, the unemployment rate was 3.2 percent in October and 3.7 percent in November. In Red Lake county, the unemployment increased from 5.9 percent in October to 6.8 percent in November. In Marshall county, the unemployment rate increased from 6 percent in October to 7.6 percent in November. In Roseau county, the unemployment rate increased from 3.0 percent in October to 3.2 percent in November.

A Dangerous Combination

Asthma sufferers may face a dangerous combination during the autumn months. Late season allergens, especially dust, may cause serious asthma attacks, often within 10 to 15 minutes of exposure. How can you fight this difficult combination?

- Avoid polluted or smokey air conditions.
- Tame dust and mold by cleaning frequently. Better yet, get someone to clean for you.
- Keep pets outdoors, and especially out of bedrooms.
- Close windows and doors during pollen season and use the air conditioner - stay indoors during midday and afternoon hours when pollen is highest.
- Explore treatment options with your health care team.

Another great lunch was prepared by Kay Aitken and served by Joe Sharp, along with a delicious confetti cake. We sang "Happy Birthday" and Bunny opened her many cards and gifts. Attending her party was Goodwin and Lucille Kvasager, Ruth Wilkens, Alma Hanson, Fern Eskell, Edna Hyde, Bernice Peterson, Inga Linder, Amelia Eskell, Joan Carpenter, Ron and myself from Plummer, Berty Derosier (Herbie went fishing), from Terrebonne, Pearl Laniel, Dorothy Myhre and Veronica Boucher of Brooks. It was a special day for a very special friend! God's blessings.

One of Terry Redlin's, the famous artist, beautiful scenery pictures has found its way to Lund Church in Gully. (Dianne) Mrs. Gordon Huseth and Julie, Donna and Glenn Huseth were to the Church this weekend and brought the framed picture in "Loving memory" of their husband and father, Gordon Huseth. It is a unique picture and is called "Almost Home", it would seem Gordy could have put it up before leaving us on July 4, 1996.

Women were busy on Monday afternoon working on quilts for Lund Ladies Aid. Those present were Alice Forsberg, Luverne Fore, Mary Berg, Grace Nyland, Millie Brovold and Sanna Brovold. If the weather keeps staying so nice we maybe wouldn't have needed to make them so heavy. The fun part is having a good cup of coffee.

Walter Samson thought he could add another year to his age on Friday and no one would know he was a year older or that it was his birthday. Soon Edna brought a nicely decorated birthday cake. We heard about the cake and soon there were many of us there to enjoy his birthday. Walter really enjoyed his many cards and the friends who came to the Gully Cafe and we couldn't tell he was a year older. Besides Walter's birthday, David Haugen and Mildred Solian also had a chance to celebrate their birthdays. At the Senior meals at the Community Center on Wednesday there were some talented vocalists who could sing the "Happy Birthday" song for the three of them and for all of us to enjoy.
